WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Both houses of Congress continued debate today on the Man Power bill. Little progress was made in the Senate, where the feature was the notable speech by Senator Lodge.

In the House, where general debate was ended and the bill went into its final stages, some of the amendments, such as the McKenzie proposal to call youths of 18 and 19 years after the force of men between 20 and 45 years had been exhausted, were defeated. The bill, slightly amended, will be passed by the House tomorrow.

Before adjourning, the House, in committee of the whole, rejected amendments seeking to change the ages and likewise declined to give election qualifications to soldiers below the ages of 21.

Representative S. Hubert Dent, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, in charge of the bill, had intended to procure passage of the bill before adjournment. Toward 7 o'clock, after the House had passed a number of minor amendments, Chairman Dent forced an adjournment to block the adoption of an amendment offered by Representative Madden of Illinois, excluding from exemption those engaged in Government work solely by reason of such employment.

Sentiment in the House apparently is strong in favor of forcing into military service the 20,000 or more men of military age who are working in civil life for the Government in executive departments and commissions in Washington and elsewhere. Mr. Madden, the author of a resolution which exposed this condition, pressed for the adoption of an amendment which would take these men out of Government departments unless they come under the terms of deferred classifications as laid down by the Provost Marshal General.

Dent Forces Adjournment.

Although Representatives Dent, Fields, Cannon, and others vigorously opposed the suggestion, it was apparent that the House was most willing to support Mr. Madden. To prevent such action and block other proposed attacks Mr. Dent forced an adjournment.

Adjournment was not taken, however, until it had been shown by a decisive vote that the age limits would not be changed, and that the War Department would not be compelled to exhaust those between the ages of 20 and 45 before calling into military service those from 18 to 20. The defeat of the McKenzie amendment, which was opposed by the Secretary of War, indicates that the House will give the military authorities full and unhampered power to raise an army of ninety-eight divisions and transport eighty of these divisions overseas by June 30 next.

The House began voting on amendments at 6 o'clock, after a day of perfunctory debate and dramatic incidents. Representative Albert Johnson of Washington staged one of these incidents, and Representative Tilson of Connecticut managed the other. Mr. Johnson exhibited two page boys, 18 years old, loaded down with full equipment. Both boys were rather small, and selected to carry out his argument that youths of that age were undeveloped and unable to even carry their full military equipment. The pages were Charles Mainhall of the District of Columbia and Joe Doyle of Missouri. The former weighs 102 pounds, and is five feet six inches tall, while Doyle stands four feet and two inches.

Before Mr. Johnson could emphasize his point in his speech Representative Tilson interrupted to say that these pages were undeveloped boys, neither of them in good health, and, as such, would not be called into service.

"But there are boys of that age who are strong and powerful soldiers," exclaimed Mr. Tilson, who called upon four strapping marines in the Speaker's gallery to stand. They did so, amid great applause, and informed Mr. Tilson that none of them was over 18 years old.

"I do not want to vote to take the 18-year-olds until the deferred classifications have been combed over," said Mr. Johnson. "I want to see how many

Germans Get Cheer-Up Tale of Bombarding Our Cities

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 23.—The German press has at last been told to admit that there are now 1,500,000 Americans in France, but to counteract this impression and show the Germans that the war is also being carried into the enemy's camp, the Cologne Gazette reproduces a map of the American coast from Boston to Key West, with the headline "Our U-boats on the Atlantic Coast."

The section north of Boston is left out of the map for the reason, as alleged, that there are no towns there large enough to bombard, but Boston, Providence, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Fort Monroe, Wilmington, and Charleston, it is asserted, all lie at the mercy of German U-boats and are all entreating the Government for protection by warships, as in the Spanish-American war. It is declared that the Government will be obliged to consent in order to avoid a panic.

The paper refers to a recent report of the bombardment of Charleston and Wilmington, saying that these towns are centres of war industries.

THINKS FOE UNFIT TO RULE COLONIES

ANSWERS SOLF'S SPEECH

Challenges German Secretary to Say That Belgium Will Be Restored.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Lord Robert Cecil, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in his weekly interview given today, replied to the speech made before the German Society on Aug. 21 by Dr. W. S. Solf, the German Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Lord Robert said that the British Government had been collecting and soon would publish evidence of Germany's brutality and callousness in governing her colonies, after which the world would agree that the colonies could not be restored to Germany.

Lord Robert said that Dr. Solf's utterances were a very remarkable "essay in psychology," which seemed to indicate that sections of German opinion were beginning to realize that the attitude taken by the Pan Germans must be disastrous to the future of Germany. He added, however, that it was not his view that the Pan Germans were done for, as in the last resort they would always dominate Germany.

The speaker referred to Dr. Solf's statement about Belgium, saying that it appeared to represent an advance toward decency, but it was not clear. He challenged Dr. Solf to say whether he meant that Germany was prepared to give up Belgium and to restore the damage done.

"Let him say this in plain language so that the whole world will understand," he added.

The Under Secretary asserted that only a few weeks ago Dr. von Kühlmann, (former Minister of Foreign Affairs,) was ousted because he said Germany could not have things all her own way, and declared that the German Chancellor, (Count von Hertling,) also had been made to explain away a phrase he uttered about the restoration of Belgium.

Referring to the Brest-Litovsk treaty, Lord Robert said that any one who had seen the way the so-called independent States were created would see that it had been done so that they would have as little independence as possible.

"When Foreign Secretary Balfour recently said that the German colonies could not be restored, he was speaking only what the conscience of mankind would have him say." Lord Robert continued: "Premier Lloyd George said months ago that the question of the colonies would be settled at the Peace Conference, but Mr. Balfour's more recent statement ruled out the possibility that they would be restored."

Turning to Dr. Solf's mention of a League of Nations, the speaker said:

"Devoted as some of us are to the conception of a League of Nations, we see no hope of the success of any such scheme unless preceded by victory, until it is acknowledged by Germany that her whole military system is criminal."

He said that only last April the Germans, in the flush of victory, were talking of a continent from Flanders to Egypt, and saying that the only peace possible was a German peace.

The Under Secretary asserted that as far as the Allies were concerned they had made up their minds that the only way to obtain peace was on the field of battle, and they were determined to carry on the war to victory.

LODGE DEMANDS A DICTATED PEACE, WON BY VICTORY

Senator Warns Against Any Negotiations Until Germany Confesses Defeat.

GIVES 'IRREDUCIBLE' TERMS

Restoration of Belgium, Return of Alsace-Lorraine, a Free Poland.

RUSSIAN BOOTY RESTORED

Italia Irredenta Returned, Teuton Path Eastward Barred, Free Palestine, and Europe Made Safe.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—In his maiden speech as Republican leader of the Senate, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts today stated what he regarded as definite and specific terms for a just peace. The speech was made during the debate on the Man Power bill. Senator Lodge has not actually become Republican floor leader, but at a caucus tomorrow he will be chosen to succeed the late Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire. His speech was made after consultation with members of his party, and is assumed to be a statement of the terms by which the Republican Senators will stand.

The Massachusetts Senator characterized his peace terms as an "irreducible minimum," and outlined them thus:

Belgium must be restored.

Alsace and Lorraine must be returned to France—unconditionally returned—not merely because sentiment and eternal justice demand it, but because the iron and coal of Lorraine must be forever taken from Germany.

Italia Irredenta—all those areas where the Italian race is predominant, including Trieste—must go back to Italy.

Greece must be made safe.

Most important of all, if we are to make the world safe in the way we mean it to be safe, the great Slav populations now under the Government of Austria—the Jugoslavs and the Czechoslovaks, who have been used to aid the Germans, whom they loathe—must be established as independent States.

The Polish people must have an independent Poland.

We must have these independent States created so that they will stand across the pathway of Germany to the East. Nothing is more vital than this for a just, a righteous, and an enduring peace.

Russia a Potential Peril.

The Russian provinces taken from Russia by the villainous peace of Brest-Litovsk must be restored to Russia. The President, as you all remember, has announced with wisdom and foresight the vast importance of sustaining Russia. If Germany continues to hold a large part of Russia, the world for years to come will be under the shadow of another great war, which will surely be precipitated upon us when Germany has developed her Russian possessions to the point of yielding her men, money, and supplies.

Constantinople must be finally taken away from Turkey and placed in the hands of the allied nations as a free port, so as to bar Germany's way to the East and hold the Dardanelles open for the benefit of mankind.

We must not be beguiled into concessions to Turkey in the hope of separating her from Germany. It would be a miserable outcome to have Turkey retained in Europe, a curse to her subjects and neighbors, a plague spot and a breeder of wars. Her massacres must not under any pretense be condoned nor her iniquities rewarded. Let Turkey and Bulgaria share the fate of their master and be so treated that they will be unable again to trouble the world.

Palestine must never return to Turkish rule, and the persecuted Christians of Asia Minor—the Syrians and the Armenians—must be safe.

After stating his views in this form, the Senator said:

"These are the principal conditions which alone will give us a victory worth having, and when we talk about a complete peace and a just and righteous peace, let it be known to all the world that this is what we mean."

The Senator alluded to the weapon which, he said, the Germans would strive to use—the 'insidious and poisonous' peace propaganda, which, he recalled, had wrecked Russia, and had provoked the Italian defeat on the Isonzo.

"It is the German propaganda which we shall be obliged to face in the en-

Three of Our Ships Torpedoed; 19 Missing from the Crews

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The sinking of three American vessels in foreign waters by German submarines was announced today by the Navy Department. The steamship Lake Edon, an army chartered cargo transport, was sunk on Aug. 21; the U. S. S. West Bridge, of 8,800 tons, on Aug. 16, and the U. S. S. Cubore, of 7,300 tons, on Aug. 15.

Sixteen of the crew of the Lake Edon are missing, thirty-nine having been accounted for. The names of the missing have not been reported to the Navy Department.

Three men were reported lost in the sinking of the West Bridge and there was no loss of life among the crew of the Cubore. Those lost on the West Bridge were Jens P. Nielsen, fireman, of Denmark; William I. Porter, fireman, Portland, Ore., and Robert J. McConkey, fireman, of Mount Vernon, Wash.

GERMANS FORTIFY ALONG THE MEUSE

Believe They Will Be Forced to Retreat There Before Winter, It Is Said.

NOW EXPECTING INVASION

Rhine Families Moving to Interior—Defeat Has Shocked the Nation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 23, (Dispatch to The London Daily Express.)—Germany's continued reverses have caused the General Staff to take precautionary measures which were considered "out of the question" only two months ago. These include the completion of the fortifications of the Meuse, in connection with which trench-digging has been started on a large scale between Dinant and Givet, thousands of prisoners of war and Belgian civilians being occupied in the work.

The Germans evidently believe they will be forced back on the Meuse front next Winter, and doubtless hope to cling to that line until Spring.

I had a conversation today with a Dutch woman of German descent who had just returned from a visit to relatives in a small village near Bonn, on the Rhine. This woman, who had not been in Germany for two years, though personally much attached to the old country, and who has lost two brothers in the war, made the following statement:

"The impression I gathered from what I saw and heard in Germany was one of real despair. In spite of what the newspapers say, or rather do not say, Germany's retreat makes the worst possible impression in Germany, especially on the Rhine, as the people there know that they will be the first to be hit if the enemy ever comes.

"The idea that German soil would be inviolate to the last has completely disappeared, and on the Rhine everybody expects, sooner or later, a foreign invasion. Many families are making plans to leave for the centre of the empire.

"The ravages made by the Allies' aircraft are simply terrific. Nobody is allowed to print a word about them. But you may take it from me when you read that 'there has been some material damage' it means that whole streets have been torn up, with a terrible casualty list to complete the picture.

"The Germans would have endured everything—a continuance of the blockade, famine rations, lack of shoes and clothes and all the rest—if their military successes had continued. No one ever believed it would be otherwise. The disappointment, therefore, is something tragic, and many people told me: 'If we haven't peace soon we are lost.' And that is what everybody thinks.

"To the general discouragement one must add, to give an adequate picture, that the Germans lack food and lack clothes, and the price of linen is rising to fantastic heights. How the people stand it I cannot understand. I am terribly weakened through remaining in Germany for two weeks. It was really too terrible for words.

"There is little hope, either, for the future. Some of the people still believe that there will be a revolution in France, England, or America that will end the war; but even the prospect of the Kaiser's sudden disappearance does not help them.

"Germany as I just saw it is the saddest country in creation. One never sees any one laugh, and, in fact, the only smile I detected was at a moving picture show at Bonn, when an American pre-war film was exhibited."

PROGRESS ABOVE SOISSONS

German Chemin des Dames Is Now Threatened by the French Advance.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Spurred on by their steady successes, the French armies of Generals Humbert and Mangin again gained important ground between the Matz River and the area north of Soissons.

West of the Oise the 3d Army under Humbert has crossed the Divette in the region of Evricourt, southeast of Soissons.

Mangin's troops have crossed the Oise River and the canal at Manicamp, eight miles east of Noyon, and are in the outskirts of the village of Morlincourt, on the north side of the Oise, a mile and a half from Noyon station, according to advices to Paris.

Important progress was also made east of Bagneux and to the west of Crecy-au-Mont, lying north of Soissons, according to the official communication issued in Paris this evening.

The battle line early today ran along the south bank of the Oise River, then along the Ailette River to a point one and one-quarter miles north of Pont Saint Mard, then along the canal, then to the east of Mont du Crocq and to the west of Juvigny Station. The French advance is now being pushed toward Juvigny.

Chemin-des-Dames Is Menaced.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—The latest advance of General Mangin's army, while not completely turning the Chemin-des-Dames position, menaces it seriously, and the fate of the German troops between the Vesle and the Aisne is uncertain, according to military observers here.

It is against Noyon, however, that the principal effort of the French armies is being aimed at present. Noyon is menaced from the northwest and northeast and also from the south, and the enemy is reduced to fighting from its left flank, from which the guns are pouring a tremendous fire incessantly.

On the extreme right wing the capture of Pont St. Mard makes the position of Coucy-le-Château precarious.

The presence of French troops on the Ailette east of Manicamp means that Chauny is only five kilometers away, and the French artillery commands the converging roads over which German troops and material are proceeding northward.

It seems that the Germans are withdrawing before the armies of Generals Debeney, Humbert, and Mangin without counterattacking, apparently being satisfied not to lose contact with the French troops while retiring.

"Everything Is Going Well," Says Marshal Foch, "We Have Begun Our Action and Shall Continue"

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 23, (Associated Press.)—"Everything is going well. We have begun our action, and we shall continue," said Marshal Foch to the war correspondents today.

The Marshal received the newspaper men in the salons of an old château. Conspicuous objects in the room were the military maps on the walls.

Asked concerning prospects for the future, the Marshal said:

"Realities are far better than any sort of promise. It is useless to make promises that may give rise to exaggerated hopes. Nothing but realities count."

Reminded of a previous occasion when he said that the German wave had been broken, Marshal Foch replied:

"Well, now it is retiring; see for yourselves."

Walking to a map on the wall, he pointed out the progress made by the Allies since the offensive began in July. When one correspondent referred to the French soldiers, the Marshal said:

"You may say anything you like about them. Whatever you say will never be too much. They are going on without respite, without relief, and without rest. We can ask anything of them; they are always ready to go on.

"You may tell the American people that their soldiers are admirable," said Marshal Foch to the correspondent of The Associated Press. "They ask nothing better than to go to their death. They can be reproached only with rushing ahead too fast—it is necessary to hold them back."

Referring to the British troops, Marshal Foch turned to the map, pointed out the recent gains of Haig's men, and said:

"You see they are fighting well just now, in this burning heat. Their ardor is unfailing. They ask nothing better than to march ahead, as you may see from those black marks on the map, which show where they are today."

OPTIMISM NEVER SO HIGH

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Aug. 22.—As had been foreshadowed, the Germans yesterday evacuated the whole Forest of Ourcamps and Carlepont Wood—in consequence of the French progress from Pontoise along the Oise to Sempigny—and Dreslincourt massif fell into French hands like a ripe plum.

The feature of yesterday's operations was the progress on the wings of the French armies. On the left, Lassigny was entered and the dominating height of Plemont was occupied soon afterward. During the night, the pressure was maintained, and today it is announced that French cavalry has crossed the Divette at various points. Mangin's right has pushed forward to the Oise and follows the example of the left by holding the river bank from Pontoise to Brentigny.

On the whole front the enemy was in retreat during the night and this morning with the French in hot pursuit. There are growing evidences of demoralization in the foe's ranks. The French once more are proving that, galvanized by victory, they can perform the impossible, despite the stifling heat and difficult country.

An exploit of Sergeant Joseph Aigisier which won the Military Medal and War Cross on the battlefield is a typical example. After capturing a machine gun and two of its servants—he had killed two others by a daring "Indian warfare" crawl through a cornfield under fire to a vantage point—the Sergeant became separated from the squad under his orders in a ravine where gas and shell smoke were so thick that it was impossible to see his hand before his face.

Another company was advancing on the right. He joined them, but in the smoke and confusion of the battle's ebb and flow he again lost touch with the scattered line of skirmishers, and ran full tilt into a party of fifteen Germans by whom he was captured after a desperate struggle in which he shot one and

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 23.—The quiet which prevailed on the American front along the Vesle has been broken. For the last twenty-four hours a series of violent local actions has taken place without material change in the front line.

The fighting started yesterday morning, when a raiding party of Americans brought in fourteen German prisoners from an enemy position north of the river. Captain William Harrigan, son of the late actor, was the hero of this effort. Two hours later three battalions of boche infantry attacked one American battalion west of Fismes. After the Americans recovered from the first shock they held their own against superior numbers.

An hour and a half after this attack started, and while it was continuing, the Germans launched another attack against the Americans to the east. The fighting kept up all afternoon, with the expenditure of a great deal of ammunition, but the Germans' attempts gained them nothing worth while. The fighting was renewed last night, and continues today in the nature of local engagements.

It was not quite plain what was the purpose of the Germans' strong local attacks against the Americans. Perhaps it was to keep them busy, and the boche might have had some notion about an attack being planned to drive them back to the Aisne. Then, again, they may have been trying to make a show to facilitate the movement of their main troops from the Vesle to the Aisne, inasmuch as the progress of General Mangin's army on the west is beginning to threaten German positions between the Vesle and the Aisne.

The American heavy artillery continues to rain shells upon the German back areas, throwing high explosives on German lines of communication well behind the Aisne River. Smaller guns day and night are keeping up harassing fire on the Huns between the two streams.

RAWLINSON STRIKES HARD

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The British attack on Crown Prince Rupprecht's armies has developed into a general engagement along a front of more than thirty miles.

Considered in connection with that of the French from their point of junction with the British to Soissons, the allied battle now in progress on a fifty-mile front promises to be one of the greatest of the war.

General Byng today advanced more than two miles on the six-mile front from southeast of Albert to the neighborhood of Grandcourt, east of the Ancre.

A few miles to the north the British captured Achiet-le-Grand, on the Arras-Albert Railroad.

Several thousand prisoners were taken and heavy casualties inflicted upon the enemy.

A late Paris dispatch says:

"Along the whole battlefront from Albert to Coucy-le-Château the fighting has been waged most furiously, especially against the armies of the British Generals Rawlinson and Byng on the extreme left wing, which is encountering the Germans' most desperate resistance.

Disastrous Day for Germans.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 23, (Associated Press.)—Victorious on a battlefront of thirty miles, extending from the Cojeul River on the north across the Ancre and Somme Rivers almost to Lihonsv, the Third and Fourth British armies under Generals Byng and Rawlinson at mid-afternoon were vigorously following up their successes of today, which apparently has been one of the most disastrous days ever experienced by the Germans.

The enemy has lost wide stretches of ground, numerous towns, thousands of men made prisoner and large quantities of materials and guns. He has also suffered further heavy casualties.

Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, the German commander, has thrown his men in before the advancing British armies in an effort to stave off the inevitable, but only to have them mown down again and again by storms of metal which poured from the British guns. One entire enemy battalion was annihilated during the fighting.

400 Dead Germans in One Spot.

Dead Germans in great numbers are scattered everywhere over the battlefield. As an example, 400 enemy dead were observed this morning on one small piece of ground over which the battle had swept.

With all this fierce fighting, and notwithstanding the fact that the British at many places have fought over open ground against an enemy protected in "pot holes" and strong points of other kinds, the British losses everywhere seem to have been extraordinarily light. This probably is due to the confusion the Germans find reigning behind their lines, as they are fighting a losing battle, which for them hourly grows more disastrous.

British, simply meant that the Germans suffered bigger losses.

During the night and this morning the front upon which the battle was being fought yesterday was widened appreciably both to the north and the south, while the ground in the middle, between Albert and Beaucourt-sur-Ancre, which heretofore had been fairly quiet, suddenly was drawn into the whirl.

British Across the Railway.

From the northern edge of the battlefield to the south the situation at last reports seemed to be as follows: New attacks from the River Cojeul and south carried the British across the Albert-Arras Railroad embankment. The British apparently hold Boiry-Becquerelle and Boyelles and have passed beyond the Arras-Bapaume Road.

The British troops just to the south, who for two days had been fighting for and afterward from the embankment, stormed forward and reached Hamelincourt, and are pushing on toward Ervillers, St. Leger, and Croisilles. Airplanes reported that British tanks had crossed the road between Ervillers and St. Leger, while some infantry was reported to be less than 1,000 yards west of Ervillers some hours ago. At about that time an airplane reported that the Germans had disappeared from their positions northwest of St. Leger and between that town and Hamelincourt, and that the fighting British found time in the midst of their task to cheer heartily.

Apparently the hard-pressed Germans, rather than suffer more here, where they have met with some of their heaviest losses, decided to get out. This locality was one of the places where the Germans had doubled their strength.

500 Captured in Gomiecourt.

The fighting to the south of this region began in the night, when strong British forces assailed Gomiécourt just a few minutes before the Germans had anticipated launching an attack at the same place. Gomiécourt was British at daylight. As it happened, the British upset all the enemy plans, and, after killing many Germans and capturing 500 in the town of Gomiécourt alone, Field Marshal Haig's men continued their forward movement and at last reports were pushing steadily onward.

Gomiécourt, by reason of its terrain, apparently was considered the pivot of a turning movement, for, once having taken it, the British sent troops swinging down south in the direction of Bapaume. The Germans on this portion of the battlefront were bady disorganized. There were Germans all over the place, but they seemed to have no idea of counterattacking. Some apparently did not even know exactly where they were.

The fighting south of Gomiécourt today was especially severe. Incidentally this movement cut in around the rear of Achiet-le-Grand. At the same time the British here, having launched another frontal attack on the enemy's stronghold, were again in hard fighting. While the battle was raging here British planes were helping the fighters on the ground by heavily bombing or using machine guns against the enemy. Several hits were scored on a building at the rear of which were a number of touring cars. The building apparently was a German headquarters.

Surrendered in a Body.

South of Achiet-le-Grand the British did not start today's operations so early as further north. The New Zealanders here stopped work to let a German counterattack develop. They "played dead" until the advancing enemy infantry was almost on top of them. Then they put down a heavy machine gun barrage just at the rear of the Germans, who surrendered in a body rather than be killed in their tracks. This happened just north of Miramont. Many of the prisoners were noncommissioned officers, and all of them appeared to be glad that they had been captured. When asked about the Austrians, the prisoners expressed the greatest contempt for their allies as soldiers, saying they were no good whatever.

Slightly to the south the British have crossed the Ancre River and started back in the general direction of Courcelette. Already they are reported to be southeast of Grandcourt. This move menaces from the rear the German stronghold at Thiepval, which is an old fortress.

At Albert the British pushed forward toward Tara Hill, at the back of that town, and an airplane report of about noon said the British troops held the entire position. About the same time German shells started breaking on Tara, while British shrapnel could be seen bursting some distance on the other side of it, showing where the enemy had been driven. Considerable numbers of prisoners were taken in this locality.

Pushing Toward Bapaume.

The British troops seem to be making good progress up the road from Albert to Bapaume. Welsh troops are participating in the fighting in this neighborhood.

South of Albert, Meaulte appears to be in British hands, having been captured early in the day. Thence the line extends southeasterly, with a break where the Germans last evening managed to take Happy Valley, just northwest of Bray, by throwing in fresh troops of the 25th Division, which apparently were brought up for this special purpose.

The Germans suffered severely here during the first attack. The fighting was very heavy. Since then the Germans have been constantly heavily fired upon. Happy Valley is a shambles.

South of the Somme the Australians were most successful in the part they played in today's battle. They easily attained all their objectives and apparently hold Chuignolles, Ghuignes and Herleville, and are pushing eastward of these villages a little distance to make sure of holding them.

In this region 33 German officers and 1,500 men of other ranks were made prisoner. Eleven of the captured officers were from one regiment.

The Germans offered heavy resistance at Chuignolles, but, with the assistance of tanks, the Australians hammered through the enemy and swept on, leaving the town and its environs filled with dead Germans.

On the ridge south of this town there also was fierce fighting, which almost reached the hand-to-hand stage before the Australians made it clear to the Germans that they were not to be stopped and shoved over the ridge and onward.

Guns Roar on the Whole Line.

Just now large numbers of guns are roaring away all along the line. At some places they are steadily hammering; at others the cannonade is rolling up into intense drum fire, telling where the fighting is going on. The German shells seem to be coming in from long distances. Evidently the enemy's guns have been moved back for safety. The German artillerymen apparently have not the greatest confidence in the ability of their comrades in the infantry to ward off the blows being delivered against them.

All day long streams of wounded, principally Germans, as well as great numbers of enemy prisoners, were flowing toward the rear. The day was cooler than yesterday, and the British soldiers were refreshed by it. It was slightly cloudy, but the air was full of British airplanes. A number of German planes were shot down over the battlefront during the day, each fall bringing a cheer from the British.

SUMS UP BRITISH GAINS.

Supplementary Report Tells of Important Successes in Four Separate Attacks.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The following official communication dealing with operations on the western front, supplementing Field Marshal Haig's communication, was issued tonight:

> During the day our troops have pressed their attacks vigorously and successfully on a front of more than thirty miles from Lihons to Mercatel.
> South of the Somme, English, Scottish, and Australian troops, attacking at 4:45 A. M., carried the villages of Herleville, Chuignes, and Chuignolles, together with the woods lying between these villages and between Chuignolles and the river.
>
> In the course of an advance of more than two miles into the German position great numbers of the enemy were killed, and many prisoners were captured by our troops.
> Ten minutes later English, Scottish, and Guards battalions attacked on the left of the battlefront and stormed the villages of Gomiécourt, Ervillers, Hamelincourt, Boyelles, and Boiry-Becquerelle. Here also many prisoners were taken by us, and during the remainder of the day our troops have made progress to the east of these villages.
> Meanwhile in the right centre of the battlefront English and Welsh divisions advanced against the German positions on the east bank of the Ancre from southeast of Albert to the neighborhood of Grandcourt, and gained ground after heavy fighting. South of Grandcourt a hostile counterattack was successfully beaten off.
> Later in the morning, about 11 A. M., English troops attacked on the left centre of the battlefront, along the line of the railway north of Grandcourt, and took Achiet-le-Grand and Bihucourt, and the ridge overlooking Irles. Our troops have continued their attacks during the afternoon.
>
> Several thousands of prisoners have been captured by us during the day and heavy casualties inflicted on the enemy.

GEN. BYNG CAPTURED 3,000.

His Own Casualties Reported to Have Been Well Below That Figure.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—General Byng's attacks of the last two days are regarded here as having been a great success, although the enemy tried tactics of withdrawal in order to avoid battle. But the Germans lost more than 3,000 prisoners, besides great numbers in killed or wounded, and the total British casualties, according to latest reports, have been well below the number of German prisoners taken.

FRENCH NERVED TO GREAT DEEDS

Sent to the rear under escort, he kept his wits about him despite the rough treatment he had just experienced, and noted all he could see of the enemy's movements and positions. When the party reached a wooded corner of the road he suddenly plunged at the nearest boche, hurling him headlong into a ditch, and through a hail of bullets dashed into the wood.

There followed a two hours' Odyssey of adventures and hairbreadth escapes in the enemy lines, but Aigisier's luck held, and he rejoined the French successfully. Then he gave information which proved of the utmost value, and without more ado picked up the rifle and equipment of a dead comrade and returned immediately to the firing line.

Nor is this an isolated case. I could quote hundreds like it, did space permit. With such troops, the highest hopes are legitimate, and the optimism of the whole army was never so great.

At the same time it is recognized that the Germans are occupying a strong position. The Forest of Saint Gobain is an impenetrable barrier, and the prospect of turning it from the left along the marshy "corridor" formed by the Oise toward Le Fère is at least doubtful. Before the French centre stretches the very strong massif northeast of Noyon.

It is on the allied progress further north that the situation now depends. Already the idea of a retreat behind the Somme cannot be wholly foreign to the minds of the German leaders, and even the respite thus gained might be short-lived should the British turn the position by progress in the region of Bapaume.

Behind that—a good way behind—there is still the protection of the famous Hindenburg line, but the enemy might well find the retirement under savage pursuit of the victorious Allies a very different matter from the organized and foreplanned retreat of the Spring of 1917.

THREE WEEKS HAS SEEN FORTUNE'S TIDE TURNED

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Aug. 21.—Returning to the front after a lapse of three weeks, I find a deep, comprehensive, and most exhilarating change in the position and outlook. At no time in this war, and rarely in history, has there been so large and sudden a reversal of fortune. It may be summarized as a passage from a desperate defensive to a steady offensive; but such summary phrases give the general reader a very faint idea of what is the vast transformation of the processes and spirit of all the armies engaged.

The tables are definitely turned. One reads it in the faces of men waiting alertly on the edge of shady woodlands for their turn to enter the fray, or of staff officers busy over their maps in some village schoolroom.

Since the recovery from the first shock of the original invasion, these fine fellows of the French armies have always been confident of the final result; for let the quarreling theologians say what they will, they are men of faith. Always they have gone down to their silent untrumpeted sacrifice, sure that things more precious to free men would at length be vindicated and made sure.

Supported by the dogged endurance of the British ally, this burning faith of suffering France has been the chief light of the Grand Alliance through the evil days and days of transient success; and now that the day of justification and achievement has dawned, the harvest of four years of bitter loss and incalculable effort is being gathered in.

It is no longer a question of local victories, of laboriously prepared operations yielding painfully limited results. The enemy is outmanoeuvred continuously, and throughout the active front.

Consider the steps by which this overturn has been reached. On July 15 took place the last German offensive in the Champagne and across the Marne west of Rheims. In July, the Champagne attack being already smashed, Foch delivered through Mangin and de Goütte his greatly designed blow at the German flank between Soissons and Château-Thierry.

By Aug. 1 the enemy had retreated half way from the Marne to his present line along the Aisne and Vesle. Four days later this enemy salient had been suppressed and the battle came to an end. So, for the moment, it seemed. But Foch had prepared not only to take but to keep the initiative.

HAIG'S LOSSES VERY LIGHT

By HENRY W. NEVINSON.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 23, (Afternoon.)—Attacks upon German positions today have been so numerous and so far extended that it is quite impossible for one man to cover more than a small fraction of the British fighting front.

Speaking roughly, one may say the British line of attack, and in nearly every case of advance, reached from a point near Hamelincourt, just east of the railway about seven miles south of Arras, southwest past Achiet-le-Grand and Miramount, both of which are still in the enemy's hands as I write, and then south along the Ancre to Albert, which the British hold securely, and from Albert down the Ancre to Dernancourt, and thence across a high plateau to the western outskirts of Bray, and so across the Somme to Chuignolles and down the Valley of Chuignolles to Herleville, below which the present line joins the former line near Lihons.

It will be seen, therefore, that the fighting front today extended over about twenty miles, if distances are measured in straight lines without making any allowance for necessary deviations according to the strength or lie of the land. Along the whole of this front, with one small exception during yesterday afternoon, the advance has been steady and successful. Large numbers of prisoners have been captured and some guns, though the addition of the total of the various fronts is not yet complete. At certain points an unusual number of Germans have been killed. The British losses are believed to have been peculiarly light.

Details of the Advance.

I may now give a few details of the general advance, starting from the northern point about seven miles from Arras, and again I must warn my readers that when the name of a place is mentioned in all this desert region it merely means a position covered with ruins and rubble without food, without water, and without inhabitants.

Beginning at the north of the line, then, I understand one division took Hamelincourt in the night and extended the gain northward to Boyelles and east past St. Leger to within about two miles of Croisilles. Further south Gomiécourt—not to be confused with historic Gommicourt Wood—was taken together, apparently with Ervillers. Lower down the enemy still cling resolutely to Achiet-le-Grand upon the railway, and at this point attacks and counterattacks have been frequent and severe. Both Prussians and Bavarians lost very heavily, and the conflict was marked by much confusion and many deaths.

Prisoners report that whole battalions were wiped out, but, as I have noticed before, prisoners' reports must be taken with caution. About 800 of them were captured in this northern section of our advance. Achiet-le-Grand held double numbers in its defenses, and certainly it formed a centre of the battle, but so did Beauregard, or Dovecote, about three miles southwest toward Miraumont. This excellent observation post has been fought over and changed hands five or six times, and though the British are said to hold it again now, it is hard to be certain.

Miraumont is still in the enemy's hands, or, more properly, it is an extended no man's land, for no one cares to enter its poisoned streets. In this section of the line about 1,300 prisoners had been counted by noon.

Since the Germans finally evacuated Albert yesterday afternoon the British troops have pushed out eastward toward the so-called Usna Valley and Tara Hill, but the result is at the moment uncertain. We only know that the British troops have advanced about a mile along the Bapaume road.

South of Albert our line now runs along the Ancre to Dernancourt and thence southeast over a high upland between the corner of the Ancre and the Somme near Bray. I understand that Meaulte on top of this line has not yet been captured, nor has Bray at the other end, though one supposes that the enemy cannot be comfortable in either.

Ridge a Difficult Position.

Early this morning I was on the main road close up to Bray and could see how difficult was the position upon the down or upland on my left toward Meaulte, for the ridge is absolutely bare and slopes gently upward like a glacis, or wave of open veldt.

Yesterday afternoon the Germans violently counterattacked upon this ridge. Apparently they came up from a deepish valley beyond and rushed the position. The worst fighting seems to have been where a small railway winds up from the valley to cross the ridge, and descends into Bray. Those who were present and told me of the event always mentioned the fighting on the railway, and they drew a very terrible picture of it.

What seems true was that part of the British line here was pressed back and the situation was only saved by some Australians on the right, who swung back their flank and so succeeded in covering the remainder of their force and the position, though they had to fight on two fronts almost at right angles to each other. The position is reported to have been restored by a counterattack early this morning, but the men I met coming from the scene were much exhausted from fatigue and strain.

South of Bray, across the Somme, the Australians advanced along four miles of the front from the river to Herleville. A barrage started at 4:45 o'clock this morning and then tanks advanced first, the infantry following closely. Chuignolles was taken at once and half the village or ruins of Chuignes, a mile or so beyond, together with the spurs of the plateau looking down into the valley east of Chuignes and running for some four miles down to the ruins of Fay.

The ridge on the British side of this valley was very strongly held. The heaviest fighting was there, and very many Germans now lie out upon it. From the top of it one looks almost due north across the Somme to Suzanne, which is only about nine or ten miles from Péronne at the great angle of the river.

The British losses are reported to be very light, considering the opposition. In this sector the prisoners at noon were said to be some 33 officers and 1,500 men, and it was expected that the number would reach 2,000.

It is possible the enemy may counterattack in the Chuignes Valley this afternoon, but the whole movement from north to south has been successful and the advance regular with only a few exceptions at particular points.

Prisoners Mounted Up.

Aug. 22.—I return today to the attack by General Byng's 3d Army on the German line lying about halfway between Arras and Albert, or, more exactly, from Moyenneville to Beaucourt on the Ancre. In summary, the situation at noon today was as follows:

The British advance measures 5,000 yards in depth as a maximum, but the maximum is pretty general. It is almost an average. The troops now hold all the line of the railway along this front, with the exception of a sector south of Achiet le Grand, nearly to Miraumont, where they remain a few hundred yards west of the railway, chiefly owing to the deep cutting, which is very strongly defended by machine guns from the eastern side.

At noon the total of prisoners came to 2,600, together with three guns, the latter not being numerous because the Germans began to withdraw their guns immediately upon attack, if, indeed, they had not begun the withdrawal before.

Tanks at the Forefront.

Miraumont has not been occupied, but is becoming encircled, and is full of gas. Some British tanks are reported to have crossed the railway and to have been seen on the Bapaume road, but their fate is uncertain. The heaviest fighting has been in the capture of Courcelles, in the north, and of a point known as Beauregard and Dovecote, northwest of Miraumont in the south of the line.

The British casualties have been slight, and in few divisions have they equaled the number of prisoners taken by the division. In nearly every place, I have heard, prisoners have openly expressed joy at being captured, but it must be remembered that the average prisoner's first instinct is to please.

I may now add a few details on the fighting of yesterday and today, beginning with the advance of the divisions on the left, or northern section, of our line. It must first be remembered that yesterday morning up to 11 o'clock the whole scene was covered by a thick, white mist as I described it, so dense that nothing over fifty yards distant could be recognized, and very naturally some of the tanks and battalions lost their direction and became confused during the attack. On the other hand, the mist saved many hundreds of British lives, because neither the German infantry nor their machine gunners could see the assaulting troops till they were close upon them.

In the north, British divisions took Moyenneville without much difficulty and proceeded to the railway, which here runs along the flat. The tanks are said to have crossed the lines, but were lost in the fog beyond, and the fighting for the railway lasted till 6 o'clock last evening, when it was gained, and the body of British troops are now reported to be holding the ridge about a mile beyond it.

Troops of a division on the extreme left were badly gassed by shells during their assembly, which seems to show that the enemy on this part of the line was not so much surprised by the attack as on other parts.

British Holding the Railway.

At Courcelles, as I have observed, the conflict was severe, but the divisions engaged passed through it to the railway, which they now hold.

Among the prisoners in this section were four Austrian observers, who spoke of the thoroughly good relations still subsisting between the Austrians and their German allies.

A noncommissioned officer, who waited to be captured in Courcelles, said that as observer he had reported that British were mustering for attack near Adinfer Wood at dawn. As Adinfer Wood is quite three miles from Courcelles, and I who was there at dawn could not see fifty yards toward Courcelles, that Sergeant must have been an observer of extraordinary value.

Prisoners taken in Logeast Wood, which was expected to give far more trouble than it did, report that though their part of the German Army is in good condition and well fed, there is great shortage of First Lieutenants, which proves that the best young blood of Germany is being drained.

Further south again, there was some opposition to the British advance at Ablainzeville, Bucquoy, and Achiet le Petite, but hardly any at Puisieux, and a certain famous division advanced almost up to the railway with very slight loss.

Held Up at Achiet-le-Grand.

But unfortunately the division attacking Achiet le Grand, upon the railway itself, never quite succeeded in occupying it, and part of the line running through the cutting south of that, as I noticed above, had not been taken by us at noon today. This was more unfortunate because the line curves westward, and so threatens to expose the right flank, or even the rear, of the division just north or left of the British troops in that sector.

Soon after midday today a barrage was put down upon the enemy here, and the position is probably being assaulted as I write. The British have also filled with gas the ruin of Irles, just across the railway, and of Miraumont, at the beginning of its further curve southwest toward Albert. As for Miraumont itself, not any one would now wish to enter that once admired city.

The heaviest fighting of yesterday and last night and today has been in the neighborhood of Serre and at the point of Beauregard or Dovecote—strange names now for so odious and bloodstained a place!—about half way between Puisieux and Miraumont.

Around Serre the British forward battery positions were heavily gassed yesterday. For Beauregard one of our divisions, which I have known as an example of fortitude and endurance in strange episodes of the past, had to struggle hard till late last night.

At 5 o'clock this morning a fresh German division, the 52d, which had just been brought down from the Merris region, counterattacked with successful violence. But the British returned later in the morning and drove it out again. Two famous brigades, which I long to mention for old acquaintance sake, specially distinguished themselves.

So the situation remained when I was obliged to return from that front early this afternoon. Both yesterday and today have been hot.

Airplanes' Great Service.

I hear now that this morning a part of the division in the north across the railway from Moyenneville was attacked by the 181st and 40th Saxon Divisions at Hamelincourt, but obliterated the attack; also that British airplanes have done great service in bombing the enemy's transports and communications. In one place they pursued and destroyed a train, and they have dropped about 450 bombs with destructive result.

Meantime things have been happening further down the Ancre, and, as I write, it is reported, though not yet officially, that Albert is in the hands of General Rawlinson's 4th Army.

VIOLENT ATTACKS ON THE VESLE FAIL

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Snipers on both side are busy and keep the atmosphere around Fismes continually very full of danger.

A scouting party of Americans yesterday found a comrade infantryman lying in a shellhole shelter wounded. He said he had been there two days, with bullet holes through both legs. He had lived by nibbling on three days' reserve rations. The man was taken to a hospital, where the doctors said he would probably recover in a short time.

Guard Division is Withdrawn.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 23, (Associated Press.)—The Fourth German Guard Division, which was thrown against the Americans beyond the Ourcq in an endeavor to stem the tide of the French-American advance, has been withdrawn.

Prisoners taken yesterday by the Americans in fighting west of Fismes were from the 29th Division, which was sent west to fill the gap made in the front when the guard was transferred.

The Guards were originally brought from Lorraine, and first appeared against the Americans in the region of Seringes and Nesles, suffering considerable losses.

selves out of the difficulty as well as they could alone.

Recriminations between the Prussians and Bavarians have been followed by disputes between the different arms of the Teutonic allied service, the prisoners say, the infantry accusing the artillery of inefficiency.

Many prisoners assert their regiments have suffered from the short fire of their own guns.

Reach Plateau Above Ailette.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE OISE, Thursday, Aug. 22, (Associated Press.)—General Mangin has driven the Germans across the valley of the Ailette on a front of several miles. The enemy's forces on the right wing of the battleline are on the plateau between the Ailette and Soissons and between the Ailette and the Oise.

To the left of Bretigny the Germans are north of the Oise, except those that are hiding in fields and thickets, dead or prisoner. It is impossible to estimate the number of captives being sent to the camps in the rear, and Army Headquarters itself does not have more than an approximate count.

The Germans are still stoutly resisting the First French Army around Roye. General Debeney's men, however, forged ahead again today both north and south of that town.

Cavalry is rendering marked service in the pursuit of the enemy. Not only are there cavalry advance guards, but other troopers are following the infantry to take care of the machine gun nests left behind by the Germans to be sacrificed in attempting to check the French advance. Aviators preceded the cavalry. They are dispersing enemy rearguards who attempt to make a stand and are breaking up and scattering convoys on the crowded roads with machine gun fire.

Batteries of guns and ammunition wagons with the horses at the gallop were pushing north today through an immense dust cloud over the fields where yesterday the German rearguard fought desperately to save part of their artillery. Many of the guns had to be left behind, as well as a great number of machine guns.

"The devil himself could not hold out against all that," said one captured German subaltern. "We didn't know which way to turn."

PARIS, Aug. 23, (Havas Agency.)—Between the Oise and the Aisne, during the advance of Wednesday and Thursday, General Mangin's army took 5,000 prisoners, according to advices reaching Paris.

FIVE KILLED IN COLOGNE IN BRITISH AIR RAID

Much Damage to Private Property, German Paper Says—Frankfort Also Attacked.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 23.—Five persons were killed and two persons badly injured and considerable damage was done to private property by bombs dropped from allied airplanes on Cologne early Thursday morning, according to an official announcement in Thursday evening's Cologne Gazette, a copy of which has been received here.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Five important cities in Germany and five hostile airdromes were heavily bombarded by British aerial squadrons on the night of Aug. 21-22, according to an official statement issued today by the British Air Ministry.

Military objectives at Frankfurt and Cologne, the statement adds, were heavily attacked, and good results were observed.

The text of the statement reads:

> In spite of the enemy's most determined efforts for protection, consisting of a large number of anti-aircraft guns, between the hours of 8 P. M. on the 21st and 10 A. M. on the 22d inst., five important towns in Germany were heavily attacked as well as five hostile airdromes.
>
> On the night of Aug. 21-22 the weather conditions were exceptionally good, and a large amount of the work was carried out by our squadron.
>
> Military objectives at Frankfort and Cologne were heavily attacked. Very good results were observed, and bombs were sent all around the stations and barracks.
>
> A railway junction of Treves was also successfully attacked. All our machines returned safely.
>
> Four hostile airdromes were heavily bombed and many hangars hit. Machine guns were freely used on airdromes, trains, and searchlights as well as anti-aerial batteries. One of our machines is missing.
>
> On the morning of Aug. 22 one of our squadrons attacked the chemical factories at Mannheim. During the heavy fighting on the outward journey two of our machines were brought down. The remainder reached and successfully bombed their objective. Very fierce fighting again took place on the return journey, as a result of which five more of our machines are missing. Three hostile airplanes were destroyed. Two of these seemed to crash, and one went down in flames.
>
> Two other squadrons attacked the railway sidings at Coblenz at about 7:30 o'clock on the morning of Aug. 22, and a hostile airdrome at Hagenau was bombed with very good results. All these machines returned safely.
>
> During the night 104 tons of bombs were dropped, and 215 tons of projectiles were dropped during the day.

Official Reports of the Day's Operations

British

LONDON, Aug. 23.

Night Report—We pressed our attacks vigorously and successfully today on a front of thirty miles from Lihons to Mercatel. South of the Somme we carried the villages of Herleville, Chuignes, and Chuignolles, with the woods lying between the villages and the river.

In the course of an advance of over two miles into German positions great numbers of Germans have been killed and prisoners taken.

On the left of the battlefront we stormed the villages of Gomiécourt, Ervillers, Hamelincourt, Boyelles, and Boiry-Becquerelle, and made progress east of these villages.

On our right centre we advanced against German positions on the east bank of the Ancre from southeast of Albert to the neighborhood of Grandcourt, and gained ground after heavy fighting. A counterattack was repulsed south of Grandcourt.

We have captured Achiet-le-Grand and Bihucourt and the ridge overlooking Irles. We continued our attacks this afternoon. Several thousand prisoners were taken and heavy casualties inflicted on the enemy.

Day Report—Fighting is taking place along virtually the whole front between Lihons, south of the Somme, and the Cojeul River. Our troops are reported making progress at a number of points.

During the night the enemy twice attacked our positions in the neighborhood of Baillescourt Farm, east of Beaucourt. He was repulsed.

On the Lys front our line has been advanced slightly east of Le Touret, northwest of Neuf Berquin and east of Outtersteene.

PARIS, Aug. 23.

Night Report—Between the Matz and the Oise there have been violent artillery actions.

We have crossed the Divette River in the region of Evricourt.

Between the Ailette and the Aisne we have made progress to the east of Bagneux and west of Crecy-au-Mont.

Day Report—During the night there was a violent bombardment between the region of Beuvraignes (south of Roye) and the Oise, notably at Piemont, Passel, and Chiry-Ourscamp.

We hold the southern banks of the Oise and the Ailette from Sempigny to the railroad at Coucy-le-Château.

East of Selens French troops carried their lines as far as the outskirts of Guny and Pont St. Mard.

The night was calm on the rest of the front.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 23, (via London.)

Night Report—Attacks by the English have been renewed northwest of Bapaume. Near Albert and the Somme our counterattacks are in progress.

The artillery engagement between the Ailette and the Aisne has been lively.

Day Report—Partial enemy attacks northwest of Bailleul and on both sides of the Lys were repulsed. We captured prisoners in a counterattack.

Yesterday the British continued in full force the attack begun on Wednesday north of the Ancre, and by crossing the Ancre extended their front to the north of Albert and as far as the Albert-Somme sector. The extensively planned attempt to break through completely collapsed at its first development. The British suffered a severe defeat yesterday.

On the battlefield northwest of Bapaume Prussian divisions with Saxon and Bavarian regiments, forestalling a hostile assault, attacked the enemy between Moyenneville and Miraumont. The enemy was everywhere surprised in the development of the assault which had been planned, and also in his strongly prepared positions. At places he was thrown back to a depth of two kilometers. This crushed the British attacks prepared for the morning.

In the course of the day the enemy attacked several times, especially from the direction of Puisieux and Beaumont-Hamel. He was repulsed everywhere with heavy losses. Strong attacks launched by the enemy from Albert broke down under our fire.

Between Albert and the Somme the enemy attacked after the strongest artillery preparation and pressed forward temporarily over the Albert-Bray road in an easterly direction. A powerful counterattack by Hessian troops, with portions of Prussian and Württemberg regiments, threw the enemy back across the road into his positions of departure. Batteries driving forward in the open shot to pieces many of the enemy's tanks.

North of Bray the enemy brought up cavalry for attack. It was almost entirely destroyed. On the battlefield partial engagements continued into the night.

Between the Somme and the Oise the day, on the whole, was quieter. The strong artillery duels south of the Somme died down in the forenoon.

South of the Avre, owing to our fire, French attacks near Fresnières were able to develop only at times, and were repulsed.

There have been infantry engagements in the Divette region.

Between the Oise and the Aisne during Wednesday night, following upon the shifting of our lines behind the Oise on Tuesday, we withdrew our troops behind the Ailette undisturbed by the enemy. Our companies which had been left on the west bank of the Ailette retired before strong enemy attacks launched between Manicamp and Pont St. Mard. Partial attacks by the enemy between the Ailette and the Aisne broke down under our fire and a counterattack.

In local attacks we pressed back an American line of posts between Basoches and Fismes and repulsed enemy counterattacks.

During air raids on the homeland, according to reports received up to the present, seven machines out of the enemy squadron of ten airplanes which attacked near Karlsruhe were destroyed by our chasing planes.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 23.—That division of the American Army known as the New York Division, and sometimes as the Metropolitan Division, has made good. This division trained at Camp Upton, Yaphank. Its numerical appelation the censor does not permit me to give, although it is well known in New York, and by this time also in Germany.

It is the first of the divisions of its kind to get into a real battle, and it has justified the faith that America has placed in her great military experiment. The Metropolitan Division's record in its first taste of war was eagerly watched by the leaders of our army because it represented that test.

This division, when it reached France, went into training with the British. Later it was moved to the American sector near Lunéville, and recently has done that which showed that its training was to good effect.

The "Melting Pot" Division.

No division in the American Army better illustrates the fact that all the world fights the Hun, for it is made up of men from Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn, Long Island, and Westchester County, and in it about every race is represented and almost every known creed has its adherents. Rich and poor, Jew and Gentile, high and low, all fight side by side. Truly those who love to call New York the "melting pot" would call this the "Melting Pot Division."

When this division first took its place in the line the eyes of the world were on it, for the result of the war and the future of civilization hang on what this division and those like it are to do to the Germans. Our higher officers were most eager to see what these new soldiers would do. How would they take the first withering fire of German machine guns? What would be their behavior when they caught hell in their first real barrage? What would be their conduct face to face, man to man, with the Germans on the field of battle? These questions have all been answered.

Met the Task Gamely.

They did what they were expected to do, and that means that they did well. They fought with bravery and calm that showed a power and will equal to taking the war into Germany, a task which will be laid upon the American Army next Spring. The officers of this division report enthusiastically upon the behavior of their men. There are no poor men, no rich men, no prominent men, no unimportant men in this division. They are all American soldiers now. The bootblack from Park Row bunks with a "buddy" who used to live on Riverside Drive, and each is proud of his pal.

One interesting thing is told by the officers of this division. Perhaps the best disciplined of all their men, those who aid the most in effecting disciplinary organization are men who, back in Manhattan, used to be gangsters. Former members of the Gopher Gang and the gashouse aggregation are second to none in the fierceness of their fighting when hand to hand with the Hun, and yet back of the front line they are the most amenable to discipline and the strongest supporters of military rules. The officers say that whenever any trouble starts the ex-gangsters can be depended upon to preserve order.

Regard It as a Personal War.

The men of this division all seem to regard the war as a sort of personal affair between themselves and the Germans, and they all talk of how many boches they expect to get. They mean every word of it, too. All the stories of what a terrible fellow the Hun is have not gotten under their skin at all, and they have perfect confidence that man for man they can lick any soldier that Hindenburg commands.

They are full of sympathy for the brave French civilians, and the sight of the ravaged French villages invariably awakens in them the strong belief that the Germans will not be sufficiently punished until a certain number of villages beyond the Rhine have been put in the same condition that the invader has left so many beautiful villages in France.

The censor's rules prevent giving the full story of the achievements of this division, but suffice it to say that it has shown what other divisions of its kind will do. It has shown that the American Army is going to make good with a vengeance, and it might not be a bad guess to say that the Metropolitan Division will be one of the first to cross the Rhine.

GERMAN SMOKERS PROTEST

New Standard Cigarette Is "Awful Stuff," Vorwaerts Says.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 23, (via London.)—The scarcity of tobacco in Germany has led to the introduction of a standard cigarette and the cigarette smoker of the Fatherland is loud in his condemnation of it. It costs nearly a penny, is put up in packets of various sizes and is called "Germany's Strength."

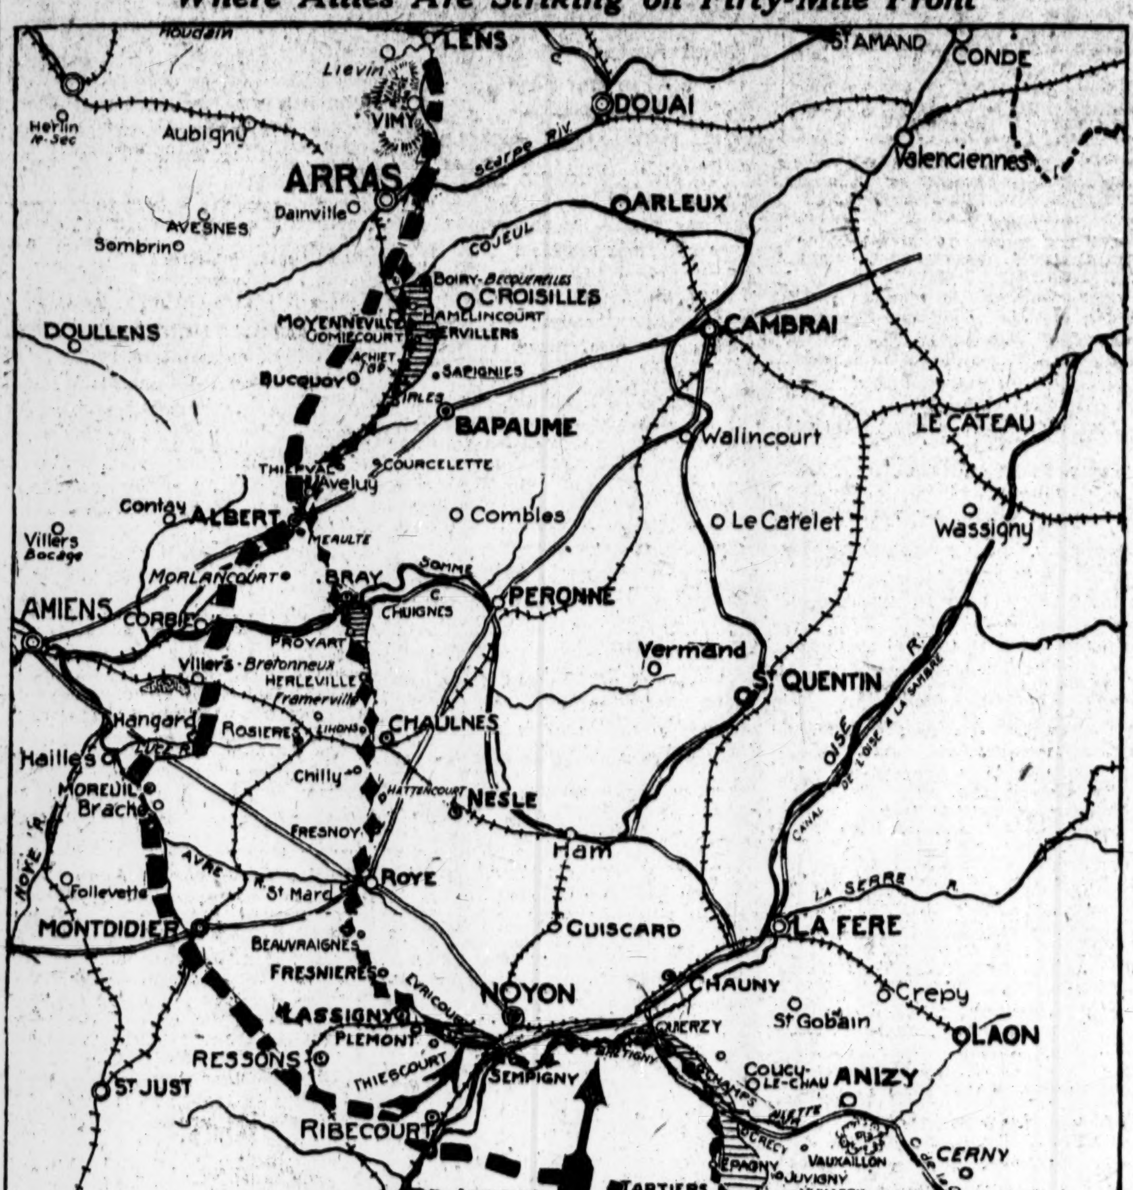
Vorwärts describes the sensation caused by smoking this anything but fragrant weed:

"When one lights this cigarette, one feels at once that Germany's strength must be tremendous to stand such awful stuff. If one inhale the smoke then the first feelings of seasickness set in. If the paper be removed a grayish mixture of substances is seen and the smell is like that of a musty cellar dwelling in which there is a shoemaker's workshop."

A slightly better cigarette is also made, but in order to obtain twenty of that kind the smoker must purchase forty of "Germany's Strength."

"Turkey and Bulgaria," adds Vorwärts, "have both had good tobacco harvests, and it is suggested that these allies might prove themselves brilliant seconds by coming to Germany's aid with smokable cigarettes, which would help us to keep our spirits up in many a serious hour."

Where Allies Are Striking on Fifty-Mile Front



The continuation yesterday of the Anglo-French offensive was more notable for the wide extent of the operations than for sensational gains at any one point, although substantial progress was made in many sectors.

The principal advances recorded in official reports are indicated on the map by horizontal shading; but these are probably only a part of the gains actually scored in the forward movement, which appears to be still in progress.

Between the Cojeul River and Albert General Byng's thrust east of the Arras-Albert railroad menaces the German hold on Bapaume.

South of the Somme General Rawlinson has advanced two miles on a six-mile front, capturing the village of Chuignes.

The French have crossed the Divette River at Evricourt and the Oise at Bretigny (both points marked by arrows), while north of Soissons they have pushed their lines eastward nearly to Juvigny.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The British situation was somewhat cleared up by the announcement in last night's report. For several days, ever since the first British attack north of the Ancre, the entire situation has been under a cloud. The British reports have been very reticent as to just what happened. The claims made were modest, and the details were meagre. The impression was created that the British advance had met unexpected resistance, and had as a consequence been held up. As a matter of fact it appears that this is what happened. If this is so, better news even than that of last night is still to come.

At the moment what appears to have happened is this: The British began their advance under most favorable circumstances. The early morning mist concealed their movements until they were close to the German lines, and the advanced positions were overrun before the Germans could rally to the defense. The front line was very thinly held, either because the Germans were in the act of withdrawing their forces or because a local system of defense had been employed. Reserves, however, were ready at hand and were quickly thrown into the fighting in considerable numbers.

This is entirely reasonable since the German position is such that an extended falling back toward the south or southeast—the direction of the British pressure—would quickly involve the entire line. These reserves checked the British advance after it had penetrated to a depth of about two miles. Then began a terrific pitched battle in the open. This lasted for nearly two days. There was apparently no let up, both sides attacking and counterattacking incessantly. Along the embankment of the Arras-Albert Railroad from Boisleux to Achiet-le-Grand the fighting was particularly heavy. The Germans, however, appear to have been completely outfought. Their lines broke and they fell back, giving up to the British territory of very considerable importance. All of the main highway from Arras to Bapaume is in British hands as far south as the outskirts of Biefvillers, less than two miles from Bapaume.

The fact that after the fighting of two days it was the German line that cracked is a most hopeful sign. Apparently the British progress is being continued, which is to be expected once the Germans begin to give ground. They are, however, fighting desperately to hold their centre about Albert, since to give ground here means to uncover the lines in the angle between the Somme and the Ancre. This in turn will similarly affect the Chaulnes front and force an adjustment here.

The highway from Bapaume to Albert is an important link in the defense of the more southern positions. With the railroad gone the enemy communications are not of the best. In fact, almost entire reliance must be placed on the highway. Once Bapaume falls, the entire front along the Ancre will be affected and the Germans will be hard put to it to maintain their forces in their present positions. It will be difficult, now, however to hold Bapaume. The British have the advantage of ground, and, whether they actually take the village or not, will certainly make the continued use of the road rather precarious. Nothing definite is reported south and east of Albert. It is therefore probable that for the most part the Germans are holding their own.

The British are engaged in one of the most important battles that the Allies have fought since July 18. On what they do will depend just how quickly the Germans must make their retreat. It is obviously to the Allies' advantage to force this retreat as rapidly as possible. The Germans want time to remove their material and to destroy what they cannot remove. The Allies have them going backward now and purpose to push the situation before it can be pieced together. The entire German line from south of Arras to the Oise has been terrifically shaken during the last few weeks and is in a dangerous condition. Hardly a division but has been most roughly used, losing heavily in prisoners and in other casualties.

If Foch thinks he has them beaten and has hurt their morale, we may be sure that as long as his reserves are in condition he will force the fighting every foot of the way. It is going to be an exceedingly difficult thing for the Germans to retreat under the terrific pressure which is now being applied. With the Allies pushing matters as they are now doing, the situation will be entirely different from that which prevailed in the early part of 1917. It will also be entirely different from the retreat to the Vesle, as the front is very much longer, and it will be correspondingly difficult to preserve the good order which marked the entire course of the latter operation.

BETTER BAND MUSIC TO INSPIRE TROOPS

PARIS, Aug. 23.—One by-product of this war which will be of benefit to all parts of America will be better music. It will grow out of the fact that 10,000 band musicians will go home to the United States after hostilities with more knowledge of and enthusiasm for music than they ever had before. This will be because of their thoroughgoing artistic training in France, plans for which have just been perfected by Walter Damrosch at the request of General Pershing.

Dr. Damrosch was about to return to America early in July, when General Pershing appealed to him to do something to improve the army music. Dr. Damrosch accepted this opportunity to serve the American troops, and today he outlined to me a big comprehensive plan approved by General Pershing, in which leading French band leaders and players will serve as instructors to the Americans. Co-operation in the matter has been authorised both by the French Ministry of War, because of the vital influence of music on good military morale, and by the French Ministry of Fine Arts, because of the opportunity offered for high-grade propaganda by introducing French band methods to the American public after the war.

For immediate army purposes, of course, the whole thing is justified on the score of military efficiency. General Pershing recognizes the vital part of music in warfare; so French musicians are to teach the Americans for exactly the same reason that French artillery and aviation experts have been training American soldiers. Hence the appeal of General Pershing to Dr. Damrosch.

Damrosch Tests Bandmasters.

As Congress had authorised the giving of commissions to army bandmasters, General Pershing desired that the 200 American bandmasters in France be examined before they received commissions. Dr. Damrosch agreed to devote five weeks to this work. A military band was accordingly sent to Paris, where every bandmaster was summoned to give a practical demonstration of his knowledge of the technique of conducting and his ability to instrumentate music for military purposes. Dr. Damrosch was assisted in the examination by a board including Lieutenant Weill of the French Army, a musician serving as liaison officer.

The majority of the bandmasters were young men of real musical talent, but many of them, having been thrown into the service without previous discipline in conducting, were lacking in the technique of the baton, and not only needed but craved further instruction.

Dr. Damrosch found that nearly all the bands were away below the number authorized by Congress—forty-eight players—and that many important instruments which have helped to make the French military bands the most famous in the world were totally lacking.

EYES OF ALL PARIS FIXED ON NOYON

Strategic City in German Hands Has Been a Menace to France for Four Years.

ITS NAME A RALLYING CRY

Kaiser's Armies Are Staggering Under Blows and Nearing Point That May Mean Disaster.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—For Paris the glorious news of the fall of Lassigny yesterday has already passed into ancient history. Every eye here this morning is focused intently on Noyon, the little city on the Oise which was so dear to the heart of Robert Louis Stevenson, but which more than any other place in France symbolized for nearly four years all that the presence of the hated invader of French soil means to every Frenchman.

It was Noyon to which the Germans retreated after their defeat at the battle of the Marne in 1914, and at Noyon they remained until the great strategic retreat of Hindenburg in the Spring of 1917. It was to Noyon they returned in the great drive of last Spring.

Noyon is barely fifty-five miles from Paris as the crow would fly up the valley which runs into and combines with the valley of the Seine a dozen miles outside of Paris. It was down this valley from Noyon that the Germans always planned to swoop on Paris, and the name of Noyon consequently for four long years has been able to evoke in the soul of every Parisian the haunting fear of what might happen.

Clemenceau's Warning Cry.

"Les Allemands sont à Noyon"—the Germans are at Noyon—was the phrase Clémenceau always used during the first three years of the war to remind his countrymen of the awful danger threatening France, before which every personal, party, and sectional difference must disappear. "The Germans are at Noyon" has been the slogan which, more than any other rallying cry, has inspired the French poilu to continue the grim and dogged uphill task which has brought the armies of the republic imperishable glory.

That is why this morning France awaits with intense eagerness the news that the ancient City of Bishops on the Oise has once more become French.

It is only now beginning to be realized here, so skillfully has Foch developed his great strategic plan and with such entire absence of all attempt at spectacular effect, that we are now witnessing the progress of what undoubtedly is the greatest battle the world has ever seen. The fighting extended yesterday over a continuous front of eighty miles. This has been increased by Byng's army "on a wide front" in the Bapaume sector west of Albert, which hitherto has marked the extreme left of the battle.

Paris is convinced that Foch will before long be trying in other sections both east and west, and especial attention is now being paid to the Vesle front, where it is obvious the Germans cannot long expect to remain in view of the steady advance of Mangin in the country between the Aisne and the Oise toward the great German bastion of Laon.

Note on the map the margin of the steadily advancing front in its relation to the positions held by the Crown Prince's defeated troops on the Vesle and to the Chemin des Dames, the first defensive position of the French strategically speaking, and further in its relation to the great railway centre of Laon, further behind again. Note further Gouraud's line of positions in the Champagne heights east of Rheims, where the magnificent troops of the best-loved commander in the French Army, flushed with their victory of July 18, have been eagerly awaiting since then the word from Foch that will let them hurl themselves again on the hated invader. With these factors noted, the lines on which the battle may very probably develop in the near future begin to stand out.

Foch's battle, as it is beginning to be called here, grows more magnificently suggestive in its possibilities every day. What would the barnstorming Kaiser, who grandiloquently announced that the name of the battle of the Emperor had been formally bestowed on the pitiful failure east of Soissons and that he had himself gone out to see the triumph of his troops, give to stand in Foch's shoes today?

The absurdity of the method by which the Germans are seeking to camouflage their long series of defeats in the present battle by asserting the failure of French efforts to pierce their front has excited much amusement here, where it is fully realized that so far Foch has made no attempt to break through the enemy line.

If this had been Foch's object, it is pointed out that the Marshal would have begun his offensive simultaneously along the whole line of the present battle, and then when he had concluded that the enemy had been worn down sufficiently, his masses of reserves would have been thrown against the part of the line judged to be the weakest, in the hope of smashing through.

Decisive Battle Not Yet.

That might or might not have resulted in a decisive battle, but all the facts available at present tend to show that this decisive battle is not likely to be engaged in until later on, when our unity in men and materials will assure success in advance.

At present we have in line sufficient forces to deal the enemy a series of smashing blows which are causing him enormous losses, throwing his defensive forces into the utmost confusion, upsetting all organization, and compelling him to undertake retreat after retreat in ever increasing disorder.

This policy is forcing Ludendorff wherever Foch strikes to sacrifice men out of all proportion to his resources, and no sooner has this been accomplished at one part of the front than the same thing is repeated at another.

The net result is that we are indisputably succeeding everywhere, and rapidly reducing the German armies along the greater part of the front between the Vosges and the sea to such a condition that the moment may soon come when it will be possible by concentration of effort against one section of his lines to literally break through. When that moment comes the series of defeats the Germans are now suffering will be transformed into irreparable disaster.

Think Bulletin Too Modest.

This afternoon again Paris found the communiqué issued at 3 o'clock far too sober. Well-founded reports which reached the city from the battlefront during the afternoon indicated that, good as was the bulletin of victory set forth in the official news, the real facts will be found later to be even more satisfactory. The total of prisoners captured by the Allies since July 18, it is asserted here, is now well over 100,000. It is rumored this afternoon that Mangin's army captured an entire German division on one part of its front and half of another elsewhere, but so far it is impossible to obtain confirmation of this.

The fall of Lassigny came rather as a surprise, as it had been considered impossible to carry the town without having previously secured the famous Plemont Heights, which protect it. As a matter of fact the capture of the town preceded that of Plemont. It is recalled with pride today that it is at Plemont from which one looks right down into the valley of the Divette, that the great German drive for Paris was broken on Mar. 30.

The hill at Plemont was held thirty-six hours by a single battalion of chasseurs-a-pied (light infantry) against two entire enemy regiments. Major Surian, commander of the battalion, since killed at Dormans, remained in an observation post completely surrounded by the Germans until relief arrived in the form of a French counter-attack. Plemont eventually fell, as was inevitable, but not until after the magnificent defense had lasted nine days. The French yesterday recaptured the glorious spot after less than twenty-four hours of effort.

The ardor of the French at Plemont yesterday was exemplified by a single incident. A young Lieutenant fell dead in the midst of his men. The latter were far in advance of their supports, and were determined that if they had to fall back the body of their beloved officer should not fall into the hands of the Germans.

The enemy came on in force, but the little body of poilus resolutely kept them off with rifles, machine guns, and grenades. Eventually, when their ammunition was exhausted, the little force dashed against the enemy with their trenching tools and pickaxes and drove them back a sufficient distance to enable the recovery of the officer's body.

ITALIAN FOOD CRISIS IS NEARING AN END

Controller Announces That Definite Arrangements Have Been Made by the Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—A Daily Chronicle dispatch from Milan states that Signor Crespi, the Italian Food Controller, has addressed a long encyclical letter of unusual importance to prefects and local administrations throughout the country, wherein he gives explicit assurance that the terrible privation in the prime necessities of life which Italian people in particular have had to endure will henceforth mark a downward curve, while stringent measures against hoarding and profiteering will reduce the present exorbitant cost of living, especially for the humbler class.

The allied Governments, he says, are now in a position to guarantee regular and adequate provisioning of their respective peoples, no matter how long the war may last.

Taking into account the fact that peace would not lessen straightway the actual needs, the four Food Controllers responsible to the Grand Alliance have elaborated a two years' program and have ascertained that the existing food stocks in North America will be amply sufficient to meet every deficit in the wants of the allied nations of Europe. The restrictions that have been so sorely felt hitherto will have to be enforced only as regards tonnage, since for every ten tons of provisions economized a unit of war can be brought to the battlefields, and for every ton of flour saved the allied Governments can now promise an hour less of war.

Definite arrangements have been made for importing 3,000,000 tons of cereals which Italy requires during the coming twelve months to supplement her home crops. The allied fleets are strenuously engaged in more efficacious defense of navigation in the Mediterranean, and the Italian Government will thereby be able to distribute fresh and better quality of bread. Large consignments of condensed milk and an abundance of lard will compensate for the prevailing scarcity of milk and butter.

Over 750,000 cans of salmon and tunnyfish are being put on the market this month, and closer attention is being devoted to the development of the game preserves. Toward solving the meat problem, there has been realized lately an economy of about 100,000 head of cattle per month. This, together with the enormous weekly imports of frozen mutton and equally big supplies of preserved pork promised by the United States, will permit in Winter relaxation of the three meatless days per week.

South America is sending over 50,000 tons of coffee, and before Winter sets in, there is a good prospect of remedying the great dearth of sugar which at the present time limits the monthly allowance per head to 250 grams.

Berlin Paper Pretends We Have a "Secret Treaty" with England.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 22.—The Lokal-Anzeiger pretends to learn from a well-informed source that America and England have concluded a secret treaty which is to regulate the attitude of both countries in the future, and that the treaty is of an economic as well as of a political nature. It is directed, the paper says, against the Japanese expansion policy in East Asia. The paper says England and America think that when Germany is crushed and Russia excluded from world politics, they can direct the policy in East Asia, as Japan is incapable of pushing her policy unaided.

PRINCE LVOV OFFERED HELP

Ruler Wrote That He Was Woeful and Longing—Called Labor Demonstrators Asses.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 23, (Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.)—The second of a series of extracts from the late Czar's diary is reproduced from the Russian newspaper Izvestia by the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin. Germania also has quotations from it.

The Vossische Zeitung explains that the frist extracts given are entries made on the days immediately following the abdication last year, while the Czar was on his return journey from Pskov to headquarters at Mogileff. Germania describes the entries as confirming the impression made by those already quoted of the insignificance of the personality of the late Russian Emperor.

The most interesting fact disclosed by the new extracts is that on April 5, 1917, the Czar was preparing for a journey to England. In regard to this the Vossische Zeitung says:

"The hoped-for possibility of his departure without hindrance he derived from the Government of Lvov and Kerensky. In the Romanoff archives is a cipher letter from Prince Lvov to the Czar in which the Prince promises to take the Czar to Murman. This letter will be published. Kerensky kept secret from the Petrograd Workmen's Council this agreement with the Czar."

Following are the entries quoted:

[These dates are according to the Russian calendar, which is thirteen days behind the Gregorian or ordinary calendar.]

"March 3—Slept long and well. Only awakened far from Dvinsk. A sunny and frosty day. Discussed with my people yesterday's events. I read much in 'Julius Caesar.' At 8:30 I arrived at Mogileff, where the whole staff awaited me at the station. At 9:30 I went to my house. Alexieff came with the latest news from Rodzianko. So Mischa (the Grand Duke Michael) has resigned! His manifesto closes with a wag of the tail for the Constituent Assembly, which is to be elected in three months. God knows what moved him to put his signature to such nonsense. In St. Petersburg the unrest has ceased. If only it had lasted longer!

Tells of Kerensky Visit.

"March 9—Began to fast, but fast did not begin with joy. After midday mass, Kerensky was here. He begged we might restrict our meetings to meal times and sit apart from the children. This was to a certain degree necessary for him in order to pacify the famous Soldiers' and Workmen's Council. To avoid any violence, one must adapt oneself.

"March 17—Slept well. At 10 o'clock good Alex (one of the Grand Dukes) arrived here upon a conference. At 12 o'clock I went to the station to receive dear Mama, who had come from Kiev. I took her with me and we breakfasted together. She stayed and talked for a long time. I received at last two telegrams from Alice (the Czarina). Went for a walk, horrible weather, cold and snowstorm. Received after tea Alexieff and Friederichs. Dined in the evening with Mama and sat with her until 11 o'clock.

"March 18—Day is clear and frosty. At 10 o'clock to midday mass. Mama came later. She breakfasted and remained with me until 4 o'clock. At tea I received General Ivanoff, who came back from the requisitioning. He had been to Tsarskoe Selo and had seen Alice. What has become of poor Counts Friederichs and Pojesloff whose presence excites everybody? They have gone to Friederichs's property near Pensa. In the evening with Mama.

"Woeful and Full of Longing."

"March 21—Last day in Mogileff. At a quarter to eleven read farewell command to army. Went to the house of the officer of the day, where I took leave of the staff and the authorities. At home, farewell to the officers and Cossacks of the Guard and the free regiment. My heart was breaking. At 12 o'clock with Mama in her carriage, where we breakfasted. Remained with her and her suite until half-past 4. Took leave of her, Sondro, Sergei, Boris, and Alex. Poor Nilow was not allowed to come to me. At quarter to 5 I left Mogileff. It was touching—the crowd of people who accompanied me. Four members of the St. Petersburg Soviet are in my train. Am heavy, woeful, and full of longing.

"March 22—Arrived quickly and safely at 11:30 at Tsarskoe Selo. God, what a difference! On the streets around the Castle, and even in the park, sentinels. Before my entrance some Ensigns went upstairs and saw Alice, my soul, and the poor children. She faced things bravely and healthily. All were in a dark room on account of measles, but they feel well, except Marie, who was only then beginning with the measles. Breakfasted and also dined at midday in the playroom of Alexie. (The Czarevitch) saw Benckendorff, went with him for a walk and worked with him in the gardens, as I was not allowed to go further. After tea I brought by affairs into order.

Burned Many of His Papers.

"March 23—Outside of the conditions under which we live here, the thought that we are together rejoices and consoles me. Received in the morning Benckendorff. Looked through papers, regulated and burned many. Sat with the children until 2:30; went for a walk with Dolgoroucki, accompanied by Ensigns. Today they were pleasant.

"March 24—Received Benckendorff in the morning. Learned from him that we shall remain here for rather a long time. It is pleasant to know this. Again burned letters and papers. Anastasia has the earache, the same as the others. Went in the afternoon with Dolgorouski for a walk and worked in the garden. At a quarter to 7 went to night mass, afterward went to Anna (a lady of the court and a favorite of Czarina) and Lilly. Thereupon to rest.

"March 30—At 10 o'clock we went to mass, at which many took communion; walked for a short time with Tatiana. Today a burial of victims of the revolution took place in our park, opposite the centre of the Alexander Palace. The sounds of funeral music and the 'Marseillaise' were to be noted. At 6 o'clock we went to a religious service.

Prepared for Trip to England.

"April 5—In the morning a short walk. Regulated my affairs and books; began to lay on one side everything which I will take with me when it comes to the journey to England. Worked in the garden.

"April 8—Passed quietly the twenty-third anniversary of our betrothal. In the morning I walked for a long time with Alexis.

"April 28—Abroad; today is the first of May. Our asses have therefore decided to celebrate this day by processions through the streets with music and red flags. They came into our park and laid wreaths. Walked for an hour and a half, and in the evening began to read aloud to the children 'A Millionaire Girl.' (This book title appears in English.)

"May 1—In the morning I went for walk. At 12 o'clock a geography lesson with Alexis. During the day I again worked in our vegetable garden. In the evening I learned that Korniloff had retired from the post of Upper Commander of the St. Petersburg military district and also of the resignation of Gutchkoff, always on the same grounds—irresponsible interference with the orders of the military authorities by the Labor Deputies' Council and by some organization or other standing much further to the Left.

"June 3—After morning tea, Kerensky suddenly appeared in an automobile from town. He did not remain long with me. He requested that some documents which had relation to internal policy should be sent over for an inquiry commitee.

"July 9—Three months we have passed here since I left Mogileff and came here, and we are prisoners. It is hard to be without news of dear Mama. All the rest is indifferent to me."

ITALIAN SNARL OVER SLAVS.

Press Controversy Raging Over the Government's Foreign Policy.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Aug. 22.—A controversy is raging here, says the Tribuna, over the proportional relations between the treaty of alliance by which Italy entered the war, the rights which are officially acknowledged therein, and certain new situations arising from unforeseen and unforeseeable developments of events, especially those regarding the fall of Russia. This ended that Pan Slavism to which the Slav nationalities of Austria had inclined to join their fate in the past.

This dilemma arose: Should they resign themselves to live in some fashion in the old Hapsburg Empire, or should they seek a new road to liberty, turning toward the west, stretching out their hands even to distant America—as was done by the glorious Bohemians who rushed to fight on our battlefields across from Siberia, the Pacific Ocean, and the Atlantic, not forgetting that their first duty lay toward the nearest great power, Italy?

The problem for Italy is: Should this heroic tendency in the Czech people spread, extend, and deepen among the Southern Slavs, would it not be suitable for Italy to make some generous concession to the desires and aspirations of these peoples in order to invigorate them and extend their rebellion, thus frustrating Austria's old game, which was carried out, both in peace and in war, of keeping Italy and the Jugoslavs always enemies?

This problem must be weighed by the Italian national conscience and solved at an opportune moment as a great historical decision.

In the polemic for and against Baron Sonnino, the Foreign Minister, and his policy, which continues unabated, the Milan newspaper Perseveranza, which generally is reliable, says that American military co-operation with Italy is certain, the Italian Government having ably and energetically negotiated with a view to insure it. The American Government wastes no time in diplomatic dissertations that are absolutely premature, it says. The only object of the Washington Government just now is to make war, and make it thoroughly, to obtain victory in the shortest time and in the easiest possible manner. The American General Staff knows perfectly well the function of the Italian front in the war against the Central Empires, and it knows that to defeat the designs of Pan Germanism it is necessary to beat Austria as well as Germany.

There's something about them you'll like.

CAPTAIN CURTIS W. DEGRAW, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. DeGraw of Prospect Street, Madison, N. J., has been wounded in France, and is now convalescent in a British military hospital near London. He is a graduate of the 1917 Plattsburg Camp, and was commissioned a Captain in August of last year. In a letter to his mother Captain DeGraw said he was wounded by a shell fragment. He has two brothers now in the service.

LIEUT. CARL A. FOSS was reported severely wounded when fighting with infantry regulars in the Marne battle. He is a son of Charles E. Foss of 75 Greenfield Street, Buffalo.

CORPORAL MICHAEL F. GETTINGS, severely wounded, is in Company F, 165th Infantry, Rainbow Division. His parents live at 764 Ninth Avenue. Corporal Gettings, who is 24 years old, enlisted in the old 69th the day after Congress declared war. He has two brothers in the service.

SERGEANT WILLIAM O'NEILL of the 165th Infantry, who was also a 69th Regiment veteran, has been killed in action. Ten days ago he was reported seriously wounded. Jerome O'Neill, who is a brother of Sergeant O'Neill, and who went to France with the 165th, returned to New York on furlough yesterday and reported that his brother was killed on July 18. Sergeant O'Neill was an adopted son of Mrs. James Cotter of 212 East Fortieth Street.

When the Rainbow Division sailed for France there were three O'Neill brothers in Company H, 165th Infantry, as well as their first cousin, Bernard Finnerty. Daniel O'Neill, a private, was killed in action two months ago. Six weeks ago Finnerty was killed. Jerome O'Neill wears the Croix de Guerre for gallantry under fire.

Burns is 21 years old, and is in Company M, 9th Infantry.

CHARLES H. ZWILLICH, wounded, lived at 1,390 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, when he enlisted last Summer in the Marine Corps. He is one of four brothers fighting in France. Zwillich is 26 years old.

MALCOLM PIERSON, a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Pierson of Turrell Avenue, Orange, N. J., has been wounded and is now in a French base hospital. He went to France with a regular army unit.

KENNETH PRICE, killed in action, was a son of T. H. Price of Burlington, N. J. He went with to France with the 114th Engineers, 29th Guard Division. He was 21 years old.

Private Arnold in Paris Hospital.

Mrs. Edward W. C. Arnold of Maple Lodge, West Islip, L. I., has received word that her husband was wounded during the fighting at Château-Thierry and is now in a Paris Hospital. He is a private in the 4th Infantry. While it is not believed his condition is serious, Mr. Arnold, it is reported, received a wound in the arm and is suffering from gas poison and shell shock. Mrs. Arnold's brother, Lieutenant C. Frederick Frothingham, of the 369th Infantry, was in the thick of the fighting, but he escaped without a scratch. Private Arnold has come under the care of Mrs. Arnold's sister, the Countess Koutousow Tolstoy, who has been a Red Cross nurse since the outbreak of the war.

HUGHES AIR REPORT EAGERLY AWAITED

Senate Disclosures of Waste Whet Anxiety at Capital for Further Facts.

URGE ONE-MAN CONTROL

Military Committee to Revive Demand Despite Some Official Opposition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The disclosures of delay, waste and other shortcomings in the army aircraft situation made by the Thomas report of the Senate Military Affairs Sub-Committee attracted wide attention in Washington today and whetted interest for the next development in the case, especially the recommendations to be made by Charles E. Hughes, who is conducting a separate investigation for President Wilson into allegations of dishonesty.

The recommendations made by the committee for the creation of a Department of the Air to unify the army and navy air activities also stimulated interest in Congress in pending bills seeking the establishment of a separate Air Department. Members of the Senate Committee, impressed by the recommendations made by the Senate Sub-Committee will concentrate attention on the project for single air control and it is understood that they will seek to obtain favorable action upon them.

The Administration has been opposed to the creation of an Air Department covering both army and naval aviation, or even the creation of a separate Air Department for the army, outside of the War Department. Secretaries Daniels and Baker have both been opposed to such a unification of naval and army air efforts. One very prominent naval officer, who has devoted much attention to air matters, asserted that the British plan for a separate Air Ministry had not produced entire satisfaction in England, and he challenged the assertion that England had an Air Ministry in the strict sense of the word.

Secretary Baker is examining the Senate report. He stated publicly yesterday that his department would examine "with great care" the "full text of the report," as well as all the evidence taken by the sub-committee, and that "our effort will be to take all possible advantage from the inquiry which the sub-committee has made and to give most careful consideration to its recommendations and findings."

It is altogether probable that the recommendations made by the committee will result in important and definite improvements in the air program. Secretary Baker will take up the sub-committee's recommendations in detail with Maj. Gen. Kenly, head of the Division of Military Aeronautics, who has just returned from a long inspection trip in the West, with the General Staff and other branches of the military service. It is understood that the Secretary will likewise send a copy of the report to the Attorney General for consideration in connection with the Hughes investigation, all other matter relating to the aircraft situation having been previously turned over to Mr. Hughes.

A report was current this afternoon that the sub-committee had prepared two reports, one for the public and another of a confidential character for use by the War Department, and that this confidential report had been turned over to Secretary Baker. Senator Thomas, however, denied that any separate report had been made and characterized the rumor as "moonshine."

The next sensational development in the aircraft situation will be the publication of the testimony that was taken by the sub-committee. This testimony has been printed. It is probable that some parts of it will not be made public because of the confidential military information it contains, but aside from this the whole testimony, it is understood, will soon be released. It was upon this testimony that the comment of the sub-committee as carried was based.

CENSOR BARS NEWSPAPERS.

Foreign Editions Held Up Without Notice to Publishers.

The New York Post Office yesterday morning notified the newspapers that yesterday's editions already sent to the Post Office had not been accepted for mailing to territory outside of the United States, because they contained the report of the Senate investigation of the aircraft situation, certain details in which, in the opinion of the Postmaster General, might give information to the enemy.

No request had been made of the newspapers not to publish the report in editions which might circulate outside the United States, and no notice had been given that editions containing such matter would be barred from the foreign mails. It was not until several hours after publication that newspapers were informed of the order, although it had been received from Washington several hours before the morning editions went to press.

Local Post Office officials stated that they had no explanation for this nor any general rule for future application. There was no interference with the circulation of newspapers within the United States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The Federal authorities issued orders last night under which copies of New York and other newspapers destined to foreign addresses were stopped in the Post Offices because Secretary Baker did not think that certain statistics in the Senate report should be allowed to go abroad, for military reasons.

While the Secretary of War ruled against particular parts of the report being circulated outside the United States however, the enforcement of the ban was not under his direction. When informed tonight that the order had been so carried out as to cause the maximum of inconvenience and without prior notification to the newspapers, Secretary Baker said:

"I had nothing to do with the manner of the enforcement of the censorship order. Late yesterday afternoon I was asked whether I objected to any portion of the Senate sub-committee's report going out of the country. I replied that I did not think that any of the figures contained in the report dealing with the number of planes should go abroad, for military reasons. I interposed no objection to any other part of the report."

It was ascertained that when the Secretary, in response to the inquiry made of him through official channels yesterday, indicated what he thought should not be sent to foreign readers of American newspapers, steps were taken in several directions to respect his wishes, and particularly through the Censorship Board in the Post Office Department, of which Robert L. Maddox, former Superintendent of the foreign mails, is Chairman.

Mr. Maddox went to New York this afternoon, and no formal statement regarding the circumstances attending the enforcement of the order was obtainable, but it was learned that the Censorship Board's members regretted the inconvenience caused by the manner of enforcing the order and that steps would be taken to avoid a repetition of it in future.

ROSENWALD AT THE VESLE.

Chicagoan, on Mission for Baker, Visits American Sector.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 23.—Julius Rosenwald, on a special mission for Secretary Baker, visited the Vesle front today in company with The Tribune correspondent, probably packing more exciting experiences into a few hours than ever before in his career. He came in connection with the Red Cross, but incidentally got into the war with both feet, and he liked it.

Mr. Rosenwald met women of the Morgan Red Cross unit in the streets of Vaux, where they were helping the refugees rehabilitate the ruins. From there the Chicagoan went to Château-Thierry, where he observed the desecrations committed in the cathedral.

Thence Mr. Rosenwald went northward to a big evacuation hospital, where he talked to men wounded in this morning's skirmish with the Boche. He was cheering them and asking the officers innumerable questions about Red Cross methods and efficiency. South of the Vesle he visited a Y. M. C. A. shop. The custodian explained business practically was nil because the town was shelled so much the soldiers had been withdrawn. He said the association had a store further north, where the men were fighting.

Mr. Rosenwald visited the emplacement of the mammoth "Bertha," where three railroad tracks were built to carry equipment, ammunition, &c. The gun revolved on a rotary platform, moving on balls eight inches in diameter. These remain with the concrete foundation and powerful hydraulic jacks.

Over the trenches leading to the storage the soldiers gave Mr. Rosenwald his most exciting experience—a tank ride, which he described as "rough stuff," showing how his wrist watch had been disabled. He rode ten minutes.

$6,089,064,750 TO ALLIES.

United States Also Has Out Pledges for Loans of $600,000,000 More.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Payments to the Allies since the United States entered the war today passed another billion dollar mark, and stood at $6,089,064,750. This represents the aggregate of checks actually drawn on the Treasury and paid, as distinguished from credits established or agreements by the United States Government to make loans, which now amount to $6,692,040,000.

All credit accounts are open, and are being drawn on periodically by the Governments to which they are extended, excepting that to Russia, which has an unexpended balance of $137,000,000. Technically, this is still available, but the Bolshevist Government has never presented any demands for payment.

Great Britain, $3,345,000,000; France, $2,065,000,000; Italy; $760,000,000; Russia, $325,000,000; Belgium, $154,250,000; Greece, $15,790,000; Cuba, $15,000,000; Serbia, $12,000,000.

Reports have reached the Treasury recently that some Italian commercial interests felt the United States was not making adequate loans to Italy, nor making sufficient effort to bring down the high rate of exchange, which works a hardship on Italian importers. Treasury officials explained today that every request of the Italian Government for loans had been granted, and that there was no difference of opinion between the two Governments. The exchange rate has been reduced materially within the last two months.

HINTZE ADMITS CAUSE "IS IN GREAT DANGER"

German Foreign Secretary Says Entire Truth at Times Does Not Serve Public Interest.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 23.—"Our cause is an exalted one, but it is in great danger," Admiral von Hintze, the German Foreign Secretary, told a conference of German journalists in Berlin, according to the Cologne Volkszeitung. He asked them to co-operate with him.

After asserting in what high esteem he held the press, the Admiral said:

"In these times the Government, the press and the nation must hold together with one aim—to win the war. If these factors do not hold together, we shall be beaten.

"The post of Foreign Secretary is by no means a desirable one. All objections I had made to my appointment were dispelled and I have undertaken this responsible post. I am not tackling my task with a bowed head or a heavy heart.

"I shall always show the greatest consideration to the gentlemen of the press. You will hear nothing but facts from me, but I cannot always give all the facts. The entire truth at certain times does not serve, but harms, the public interest.

"I am not at all concerned regarding attacks either on my person or against the Imperial policy. I am merely concerned with our cause. Our cause is an exalted one, but it is in great danger. I, therefore, call on you to co-operate."

The Foreign Secretary then had a confidential talk with the newspapermen, who represented the most important papers in Germany.

South Slav Politicians Among Those Who Faced Treason Charge.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 23.—Emperor Charles of Austria has pardoned twenty-four defendants awaiting trial on the charge of high treason at Serajevo, Bosnia, according to a dispatch to the Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin from Gratz, the capital of Styria.

Those released from prison include a number of South Slav politicians.

SUBMARINE OFFERED DOCTOR TO VICTIM

U-Boat's Commander Proposed to Care for the Diomed's Injured.

ODDS AGAINST FREIGHTER

Her Crew Put Up a Gallant Fight, but They Were Outranged by the Germans' Heavier Guns.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 23.—News of the sinking of the British freighter Diomed on Wednesday 393 miles east of Sandy Hook was brought here today by four officers and 100 of the crew. The latter included a large number of Chinese, who were brought in by another British steamship, which rescued them two hours after the U-boat had disappeared.

The story of the attack made upon his ship, told by Captain Baker of the Diomed, differed a little from the preceding submarine exploits off the American coast in that after shelling the steamship the Hun commander called out to the survivors in the lifeboats in good English, "Do you need a surgeon to attend to your injured men?" No one answered, the Captain added, because the officers of the Diomed thought it might be a ruse on the part of the Huns to discover the Captain or chief engineer and take him prisoner.

The Captain said that his gun crew put up a gallant fight when the U-boat opened fire upon them, but they were outranged by heavier guns, and when one of his crew had been killed outright, another seriously wounded, and others injured by the enemy's fire he ordered his men to abandon the ship. The Diomed was in the service of the British Admiralty, carrying supplies from the United States to England, and was on her way into port in ballast when she was fired upon.

"The first solid shot," Captain Baker said, "was fired across our bow, and this was followed by a second shot, which struck the ship on the starboard side forward of the bridge. We could see the submarine plainly, about a mile and a half away. She appeared to be one of the largest type, and had two big guns on deck, one forward and the other aft.

"Our gunners opened fire with the stern gun, by which time the U-boat had increased the distance to two miles and was bow on, a difficult mark to hit. The man had just fired the twelfth shot when one of the U-boat's hundred-pound explosive shells struck the stern, putting the steering gear and the stern gun both out of commission. This was followed by another big shell, which exploded in the boiler room, killing one sailor and seriously wounding another, who died after being removed to one of the lifeboats."

After this Captain Baker ordered the eight lifeboats lowered and the crew got safely away. Several of the Chinamen had hurts from the shrapnel, which were bound up as well as possible with handkerchiefs until they were taken on board the steamship which rescued them. The U-boat remained cruising among the lifeboats for nearly two hours, and went off at a speed of eighteen knots on the surface when the smoke of the other steamship was seen. The Diomed was a single screw steamship of 4,700 gross tonnage, built for the Booth Line of Liverpool at Greenock, Scotland, in 1895 for the Amazon trade. She was 392 feet long, 47 feet beam, and 26 feet depth of hold.

A Swedish freighter which arrived here today reported being held up seventy miles east of the entrance to this port last night by a German submarine whose commander detained the vessel an hour while he examined her papers, and then told the Captain that he could proceed. The Hun commander told the Swedish Captain that he was letting him go free because the steamship was engaged in carrying food supplies back to Sweden, but warned him to be careful as he was likely to have his ship sunk at any time if she continued in the American trade.

"You would not sink us without warning?" asked one of the Swedish deck officers of the submarine commander.

"Don't be too sure about that. It is better not to take any chance in such cases," the Hun replied.

BIG DRIVE POSSIBLE BY AMERICAN ARMY

Absence of Mention of Our Troops in Present Battles Causes Speculation.

MAY THRUST IN THE SOUTH

Way Prepared for Great Harvest by Foch's Whittling, Military Circles Think.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Almost unvarying success described in today's dispatches telling of the great allied offensive on the fifty-mile front stretching from Soissons northward to the environs of Arras raised hopes in military circles here for the most decisive defeat yet administered to the Germans. Observers were of the opinion that General Foch's whittling tactics of the last six weeks have been so effective that opportunity has come for a glorious harvest.

Absence of any mention of American troops in the descriptions of the great fight led to interested speculation as to the whereabouts of General Pershing's thirty divisions, which, according to recent announcement, are to be included in the first American field army. That practically all of these units have completed the training for which they were brigaded with the French and British has been known for some time. General March, the Chief of Staff, in his interviews with the press, has frequently referred to the return of additional divisions to the American Commander in Chief.

It has been thought, however, that a considerable number of American troops still are with the British 3d and 4th Armies, and most military officers were at a loss to understand why they had not been identified in the capture of some of the important enemy positions overrun during the day. Recent evidence of the mettle of Pershing's forces made it certain, it was believed, that if American divisions were with the allied troops, their locality tonight would be at the apex of the advance.

The most interesting theory heard was that the movement of American divisions to the sector assigned to the first American army is under way, all the divisions heretofore with the British having been withdrawn for that purpose and replaced by new units or reorganized veteran organizations brought up from the rest billets.

Concentration at this time of the United States divisions on the all-American front, when the forward movement of the more northern armies promises so much, could only mean that General Foch has assigned to Pershing some important task closely linked with the major strategy, in the opinion of experts here. This may be in the nature of a thrust in force to prevent the detachment of reserves to stop the gap in Picardy, or a far-reaching drive on the German flank as soon as he has got such a movement well under way.

Dispatches today declaring that a large number of new enemy divisions had been thrown into the struggle against the British gave strength to this theory.

BAKER ADVOCATES POWER PLANT BILL

Thinks Government Control Necessary to Supply Steel and Other Industries.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Secretary Baker, before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce today advocated the Sims water power bill authorizing the President to take over the power plants during the war, and strongly advocated Government ownership of the nation's power plants. This bill merely provides for the President taking control during the period of the war but Secretary Baker went beyond the apparent intention of the bill and urged Government ownership of the power plants. Indications are that the bill will be passed as a war measure.

Military men who have been studying the power question favor the Government taking over the power plants without delay. Reports received from a study made in the vicinity of Bethlehem say that it is necessary that the steel works there should receive 25 per cent. more power and the only practicable way this can be obtained is by the Government taking over the big plant at Hauto, Penn., and transmitting electricity made from coal at the culm banks to the industries in the Lehigh Valley.

Both Secretary Baker and Chairman Baruch of the War Industries Board, in the hearing today, told the committee that it was imperative that the industries have more power to manufacture war necessities and the only way this could be obtained, they said, was by the Government increasing the facilities of the power plants.

ALLIED MASTERY OF AIR SHOWN IN LAST WEEK

62 German Machines Were Destroyed, 21 Disabled, on the Somme Front Alone.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—British air fighting on the western front during the last week provides a striking indication of the difficulty now confronting Germany in the air, which must increase in the near future as the growing air superiority of the Allies makes itself felt. In the battle area, probably owing to the recent heavy German air losses over the Somme battlefield, enemy scouts are compelled to operate in large formations at a much greater height than formerly. Notwithstanding this, the British airmen continue to take a heavy toll of them.

Severe air fighting has occurred on the front between Albert and the Amiens-Roye road, resulting, according to the latest reports, in the destruction of sixty-two enemy machines and the driving down of twenty-one airplanes out of control. Twenty-six British machines have been reported missing.

SIX CONGRESSMEN FLY OVER LONDON

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The committee from the United States Congress which is visiting the allied countries, composed of James B. Aswell of Louisiana, Alvin W. Barkley of Kentucky, Marvin Jones of Texas, Milton H. Welling and James H. Mays of Utah, and Charles Hiram Randall of California, flew over London yesterday in battleplanes in which were installed the new Liberty motor.

The Congressmen declared their experience in their flight at a height of 6,000 feet was thrilling and said that the Liberty motor worked like a charm.

British officials and pilots, they asserted, pronounced the motor a great success, and predicted it would play an important part in future conduct of the war.

CZECHS IN SIBERIA TAKE ANOTHER TOWN

Allied Troops on the Ussuri River Front, However, Are Forced to Retire.

RED GENERAL CAPTURED

Peasants Deliver Murmansk Commander to British—Bolsheviki Hang 300 Czech Prisoners.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Lord Robert Cecil, the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, announced this evening that reports had been received in London to the effect that the Czechoslovak forces in Transbaikalia had captured the town of Berchnieudinsck, south of Lake Baikal, and had achieved a decided victory against the Bolshevist forces.

On the other hand, allied troops on the Ussuri river front, north of Vladivostok, outnumbered by the enemy, have been forced to withdraw after heavy fighting, says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Harbin, dated Wednesday. British and French troops were engaged in the battle but the brunt of the fighting fell on the Cossack and Czechoslovak troops. Japanese units aided in the retirement.

Bolshevist monitors, operating on Lake Hangka, are harassing the allied left and have detained additional Czech forces. Commands are being given the Bolsheviki in German.

The Ussuri River from the eastern boundary of Manchuria.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 23.—General Petapoff, Commander in Chief of the Red Guard army in the Murmansk region, is a prisoner in the hands of the Allies, says a Petrograd dispatch to the Weser-Zeitung of Bremen. He was caught by peasants while attempting to flee southward and handed over to the British.

Russian Red Guards, after the capture of Simbirsk, on the Volga, according to a Moscow dispatch to the Hamburger Nachrichten, publicly hanged in the market place 300 Czechoslovak prisoners. The hangings, it is declared, were a reprisal for "atrocities" committed in the town during its occupation by the Czechs.

TOKIO, Aug. 20, (Associated Press.)—It is believed that Baron Tanetaro Megata, former head of the Japanese Economic Mission to the United States, will head a similar commission which Japan will send to Siberia. Officials expressed the hope that they will be able to co-operate with American and British economic missions in the rehabilitation of industry and trade in Russia.

SIBERIAN UNITY CONFIRMED.

Washington Assured Omsk and Vladivostok Governments Agree.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Assurances confirming previous reports reached the State Department today that the anti-Bolshevist Governments at Omsk and Vladivostok are in full accord, which officials said meant that all Siberia virtually is under one Government with a small portion near Irkutsk controlled by Bolshevist forces aided by former German and Austrian prisoners.

The agreement between the two Governments was considered by officials here as one of the most important developments in the Russian tangle that has occurred since the overthrow of the Kerensky Government. The information came from Vladivostok, it is understood, and is accepted by officials here as presumably authentic. The significance of this declared agreement is that the Siberian Government is the largest and strongest of the various movements to align Russia again as a nation against Germany.

MANY FINNS FLEE TO AVOID WAR SERVICE

Escape to Sweden in Boats as German General Raises Army to Fight the Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Arthur Ransome, through whom Bolshevist news and views are usually expressed, sends the following dispatch to The Daily News from Stockholm:

"The situation in Murman will deeply affect the solution of the intricate puzzle of conflicting national class interests in Finland. Naturally it is to the Germans' advantage to force another nation to fight instead of herself, and her policy in Finland is to supply that little country with a King and a war simultaneously.

"A considerable section of the population is anxious to accept the German monarchy as a guarantee of further German help in case of need against the labor movement. Although, after the complete suppression of the Social Democratic Party, it is just possible to snatch a vote in favor of the monarchy, there can be little doubt that a general referendum of the whole population would reject it. The Socialists are not the only party opposed to monarchy. The Agrarians are urging that every possible hindrance should be put in the way of the election of a King. As a result, the Agrarian newspapers have been suppressed, and two Agrarian Senators have resigned.

"However, in spite of the opposition, a deputation has gone to Germany to look for a King.

"The same German policy is being followed here as in Turkey. The Finnish Army is being brought up under German auspices. A German Colonel, von Redern, has been appointed chief of the staff which controls both the army and the navy. This is resented by many even of the White Finns, who invited the German help.

"In spite of ancient sympathies, it seems that many Finns will be forced to fight England. An extraordinary situation will then be produced; the White Finns will be allies of the Soviet Government, which they consider their most dangerous enemy; meanwhile the Red Finns with the Allies at Murman will be quite logically fighting the White Finns, but at the same time will be fighting the Soviet Government which, though they are not themselves Bolsheviki, is their natural hope.

"In regard to this, Usenius, a Red Finn who represented the Finnish Socialist Government at Stockholm, says there is to be a general conference of Finnish Social Democrats and Trade Unionists at Moscow about Aug. 28, which will discuss among other things the relations between the Finnish and Russian labor organizations.

"The possibilities are that the inextricable tangles are already multiplying. Meanwhile preparation of the Finnish Army is proceeding. Every day Finns are escaping across the Gulf of Bothnia in open boats to avoid being forced into war. Even Aland Islanders are being conscripted, though many of them are unable to speak Finnish. Two hundred learned the other day that they were to be shipped to Helsingfors, and only thirty presented themselves. The bulk of the remainder made their escape to Sweden in little boats, one man sailing his dinghy from Aland into Stockholm Harbor."

OTANI TAKES COMMAND.

American Troops Parade and Are Warmly Greeted by Czechs.

VLADIVOSTOK, Aug. 19, (Associated Press.)—The Japanese General Kikuzo Otani, commander of the Entente allied forces in Siberia, today took charge of his command. The spirit of fullest co-operation was manifested by the Council, the officers assuring General Otani that they were proud to serve under him.

General Otani's staff will consist of General Yuhi, Chief of the First Bureau of Operations; General Inagaki, who was Commander of the Second Division of Supply and Administration, and General Nakazima.

The deferred parade of the American troops took place today under fine weather conditions. The Americans created a favorable impression on the other allied troops, who greeted them warmly.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Tokio, dated Aug. 20, says the Japanese War Office announces that the Japanese in Siberia are advancing beyond Nikolaievsk.

RED CROSS AT VLADIVOSTOK.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Heavy demands upon the American Red Cross in connection with the international campaign against the Germans, Austrians and Bolsheviki in Eastern Siberia were forecast today in a cablegram from the society's representative at Vladivostok. Steps have been taken to meet the needs and patients are being cared for at several places by the personnel of the Red Cross already on the ground.

Sixty Czechs and seventeen British soldiers have been admitted to the Russian island hospital at Vladivostok, taken over by the Red Cross, and 240 Czech patients in the fortress hospital there, old cases left by Czechs going to the front, will be taken charge of as soon as equipment can be obtained. The Czechs have agreed to assist in improving food supplies at the naval hospital, Vladivostok, containing 3,000 Czechs.

At the request of General Dietrichs, commander of the Czechoslovaks, the Red Cross has begun the equipment of a base hospital at Harbin containing 300 or 400 beds where patients are already being treated. A hospital train is expected at Vladivostok soon.

REPUBLICANS MOVE TO FORCE WOODS OUT

Congressional Committee Prepares to Unseat Chairman Who Opposed War Measures.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Plans to force the resignation of Representative Frank P. Woods as Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee were perfected tonight at a meeting of the committee. Four weeks ago Mr. Woods promised his friends that he would retire, and for that reason no hostile action was taken.

When Congress returned from its five weeks' recess Mr. Woods said that he would not resign, asserting that to do so would be a "reflection on Republican Congressmen who had been renominated and who had the same anti-war record as himself."

When his resignation was not forthcoming influential members of the committee decided that the only way to force him out would be by the appointment of a special committee to report upon a plan of campaign, with the recommendation that a new Chairman be elected. This committee was named tonight.

Mr. Woods is objected to as Chairman because of his defeat for renomination on his war record. He voted for the McLemore resolution, against war, and against the Selective Draft bill. Republican leaders say that he ought to retire voluntarily, but, failing to do so, they say that they will displace him at a meeting of the committee to be held next week.

Montagnier Found Innocent.

He was expelled from Italy in 1915 and came to Switzerland. The negotiations in his case have lasted ever since. Mr. Montagnier now intends to enlist in the American Army.

LUSITANIA CHARGES REVIVED IN GERMANY

Dr. Barthelma Says Liner Was Sunk 'by Design,' and Washington Knows It.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 23.—German newspapers again are harping on their former charge, that the Cunard Line steamer Lusitania was carrying ammunition when she was sunk. The revival of the charge, which has been officially proved to be untrue, is due to a report received in Germany by way of Stockholm that disclosures in a lawsuit by survivors of the Lusitania against the Cunard Company had established the fact that the steamer carried explosives.

"We Told You So" and "That's What We Wanted to Know" appear in the headlines of some of the German newspapers received here. Dr. George Barthelme, former Washington correspondent of the Cologne Gazette, contributes a particularly violent article to his newspaper, in which he asserts that the Lusitania also carried guns. Barthelme says this always has been denied, but that the time will come when proof of it is forthcoming, just as has been the case with the ammunition question.

Barthelme goes so far as to make the statement that it is within the knowledge of officials at Washington that the Lusitania was sunk by design, the steamer's watertight bulkheads and portholes having been intentionally left open.

SAYS HE SANK LUSITANIA AND ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

German Officer Captured After U-Boat Is Sunk with Scores of the Crew.

TOULON, Aug. 23.—The British passenger steamship Bandy while on a voyage between Malta and Sicily was torpedoed by a German submarine and, although the explosion tore a hole in her starboard side, the vessel succeeded in reaching the harbor here today.

The U-boat which fired the torpedo was attacked by patrol boats escorting the Bandy and was sunk. Six of the submarine's crew, numbering 65 officers and men, were saved, including the first mate.

The admirable conduct of the crew of the Bandy was responsible for the safety of all the passengers. Two men were wounded when the torpedo exploded.

The mate of the submarine when hoisted aboard a destroyer attempted to commit suicide. He appeared to be insane and made wandering statements about the loss of his submarine. He said the lost U-boat had torpedoed the Cunard liner Lusitania and had destroyed an aggregate of 600,000 tons of other allied shipping.

Available shipping registers do not list the British steamship Bandy and she probably is a new vessel.

Advices from London on Aug. 10 said that Lieutenant Commander Schwieger, who commanded the submarine which sank the Lusitania, had been killed when the U-boat of which he was in command struck a mine in the North Sea.

MOFFATT ROAD TAKEN OVER

Railroad Administration Reaches Agreement with Receiver.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Operation of the Denver & Salt Lake Railroad is to be taken over immediately by the Government under an agreement reached here today between the Railroad Administration and the receiver of the road.

The road, commonly known as the Moffatt Road, runs from Denver 255 miles northwest, and is known to tourists as a scenic route.

The Railroad Administration agreed to take over the road and to pay the standard basis of compensation. One-half of the cost of increased wages since Jan. 1 is to be met by the Government and one-half by the railroad.

Paris Sees American Barge Fire.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Fire started last night on a barge containing 540 tons of gasoline belonging to the American Expeditionary Forces. The flames continued for fourteen hours, intermittent explosions being followed by clouds of smoke. The fire has attracted the attention of large crowds of Parisians.

LODGE DEMANDS A DICTATED PEACE

suing months, and it therefore seems to me," he said, "of the last importance to know exactly what we mean by peace. Generalities will not serve. It must be, it is commonly said—we have all said it—a just and righteous peace.

"But what is a just and righteous peace? What are the conditions that would make it so? What is the irreducible minimum? We intend to make the world safe for democracy. But what exactly do we mean by democracy? If we mean, as we undoubtedly do, the democracy of England, France, Italy, and the United States, we can all understand it; but the Bolsheviki masquerade under the name of democracy, and the Bolsheviki, by a combination of treachery, corruption, and ignorance, have reduced Russia to servitude under Germany and have engendered a form of democracy as dangerous to the world as the government of the Hohenzollerns. But assuming, as we do when we say we must make the world safe for democracy, that we mean our own conception of democracy, how is it to be made safe? Broadly speaking, there is only one way to obtain this security of the nations, this safety of democracy, this preservation of freedom and civilization, and that is by reducing Germany to a condition where by no possibility can she precipitate another war for universal conquest, with all its attendant sorrows, upon an unoffending world. I see only one way in which it can be done, and I will enumerate the results, the hard facts, the essential conditions to which we must attain."

Not Trying to Crush Germany.

At this point, Senator Lodge made his statement of the terms he proposed.

"It is idle," he said, "to talk about our annihilating the German people. Nobody, of course, has any such idea. It could not be done, even if we wished to do it. We are not engaged in this war to try to arrange a Government for Germany. The German people must do that themselves, and they will get precisely the government that they desire and deserve—just as they now have the Government they prefer, whose purposes and ambitions and barbarism they share and sustain. Our part and our business is to put Germany in a position where she can do no more harm in the future to the rest of the world. Unless we achieve this we shall have fought in vain. Congress and the President had no right to declare war unless they meant to do precisely this thing. Nothing less would justify our action. We are pouring out the best blood of the country, the blood of our chosen youth, upon the altar of patriotism. We are making every sort of pecuniary sacrifice. We are bearing an immense burden of taxation. We are mortgaging with our loans the future of coming generations. We have set aside for the time being the constitution under which individual liberty has been preserved and the country has grown and prospered. We have adopted measures which lead to the building up on one hand of a great bureaucracy, such as that which crushed and ruined Russia, and which, on the other, are stimulating the development of State Socialism.

"No peace that satisfies Germany in any degree can ever satisfy us. It cannot be a negotiated peace. It must be a dictated peace, and we and our Allies must dictate it.

"The victory bringing such a peace must be won inside, not outside, the German frontier. It must be won finally and thoroughly in German territory, and can be so won nowhere else.

"We shall do it, but we must be above all propositions of a bargained peace, all suggestions of negotiations; deaf to every voice which would divert us from the path; deaf alike to the whimper of pacifist and to the wheedling or truculent appeal of the helpers of Germany. When Germany is beaten to her knees and the world is made safe by the arrangements which I have suggested, then we shall have the just and righteous peace for which we fight. In this way—and in no other—shall we obtain it. We shall obtain it because we are going to win. Let us but be true to ourselves, and we shall not then be false to any man."

Hails Man-Power Bill.

Of the man-power bill, the Senator said:

"This is a great measure of preparation, and expresses, I am sure, the feeling of the American people in regard to the prosecution of the war. The weight of the United States is already turning the scales which for so long have hung in the doubtful balance.

"Great victories have been won. The reasons for those victories I believe to be two—the appearance of American troops in large numbers on the fighting line and the unity of command. From nothing have the Allies suffered so much as from the lack of unity of command, and our Administration is entitled to high praise for having cordially joined in putting all the armies on the western front under the command of Marshal Foch.

"In military operations nothing can be worse than divided counsels and independent commands, even if each commander is a man of the highest ability. For military successes there must be one man and one mind to make the final decision. That has been one great element of strength to the Germans. The fact of this unity of command which we and our allies have at last attained has been felt from one end of the western front to the other. The other reason for success was the appearance of the American troops in the fighting line.

"I can imagine the glow of satisfaction with which Marshal Foch put his new soldiers to the touch. He must have rejoiced mightily when he saw those American troops fling themselves upon the Germans, and in many cases drive before them in headlong rout that famous infantry. Imagination, as Napoleon said, plays a great part in war, and the presence of these new and gallant troops from the United States and the consciousness that thousands more were coming must have infused fresh spirit and renewed vigor in our brave and sorely tried allies."

Senator Lodge warned the Senate that the victory thus far won was a "victory of arrest," and that the "victory of offense" was yet to be achieved.

THE GREAT BATTLE IN PICARDY AND ARTOIS.

In extending his battleline, which now reaches as far north as the Cojeul River, four miles from Arras, and swings round below Noyon in the south, almost fifty miles long, Marshal FOCH must be giving the German General Staff something to think about. As its line is holding nowhere and losses in prisoners and guns must now exceed the totals recorded in all the phases of the late German offensive, there must be something like consternation at headquarters. The morale of the German Army is undergoing a severe test, such as it was never exposed to before in this war. In the first battle of the Marne the German loss in prisoners did not mount high, considering the decisive character of that battle, and the retreat to the Aisne never verged on a rout—in fact, it was conducted with skill and deliberation.

In the present battle in Picardy and Artois the Germans are being subjected to furious and well-directed hammer blows, shrewdly struck at every weak point in their line. Marshal FOCH's design is to beat it back without making dangerous salients for the allied armies. In no conflict of the war has the attack been more persistent and relentless. Since July 18 the Allies have battered away at the enemy, allowing him no rest. He has been steadily forced back by blow after blow, with concentrated power in every case behind it. The aggressive form displayed by the Allies has surpassed anything seen in the war up to this time. The German commanders must be soberly concerned about the ability of the rank and file to stand up under the unrelieved strain. There is real danger that the morale of the army will crack.

In the last three days General MANGIN has taken 5,000 prisoners in the south and Field Marshal HAIG several more thousands in the north. From Albert, which fell to them on Thursday, the British, under General BYNG, are pounding their way forward with tanks mile after mile. The grip of the Germans on Meaulte has been torn away, and south of the Somme, Chuignolles and Herleville have been captured. Gomiécourt, a key to the defense, has been taken. The whole British line is moving forward. Bapaume, Combles, and Péronne may be regarded as objectives, but the present business of both British and French is to kill Germans and strike terror into their ranks. Between the Oise and the Aisne the process of pinching the Germans out of Noyon goes on without pause, and after Noyon has changed hands the French objectives will be Chauny and La Fère. Unless the Germans can stay the advance, neither the line of the Vesle nor that of the Aisne can be held.

FOR SENATOR FROM MICHIGAN.

It was the ingenious plan of the Michigan Democratic bosses to nominate Mr. HENRY FORD as the Democratic candidate for Senator in the Democratic primaries, and as the Republican candidate in the Republican primaries, flooded for the purpose by Democrats, each party having access to the other's primaries under the tolerant Michigan law. To make a "solid" Republican State send a Senator Democratic, so far as he has any politics, to Washington, a Senator picked by Democrats, approved by a Democratic President, and forced on the Republicans by the Democrats, was a plan worthy of the choicest political cynicism.

Mr. FORD, who may be described on the whole as an habitual abstainer from politics, had no hand in, no knowledge of, if such innocency can be believed, this thimblerigging game. A lot of Democrats chafed at it. An independent radical Democrat appeared, and the canny Michigan member of the Democratic National Committee, Mr. W. F. CONNOLLY, can't spare enough Democrats from their proper primaries to do the intended benevolent job in the Republican oracle of the people.

Meanwhile, as the boom of the illustrious pacifist surged and thundered, partisan feeling woke up and became embittered among the Republicans, notably in the country districts where it is traditionally strongest. To put a coarse name to a delicate work of political sleight-of-hand, they thought they were being "bunkoed," and the more they thought of it the more their temperature rose.

Former Governor CHASE S. OSBORN, one of the famous seven Roosevelt Republican Governors of 1912, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator. He is a Dry, a man of popular, engaging qualities, but with a gift for political feuds. He is a Northern Michigan man, and his strongest support is in that not too populous region. He has a genius for salient and polyphonous speech; and any campaign into which he inserts himself is sure to be vivid.

It is expected, however, that Mr. TRUMAN H. NEWBERRY of Detroit will be the choice of the Republican primaries; and they could hardly make a better one. He is the antithesis of Mr. FORD. If rich, he is reasonably and not romantically so. He served in the navy in the Spanish war. He was a competent Secretary of the Navy for a short time in Mr. ROOSEVELT's second Administration. He is now in the service of his country. He is a man of education, of affairs, long deeply interested in national defense, especially in naval matters. He would be an eminently fit candidate to oppose Mr. FORD.

SECRETARY BAKER SHOULD BE HEEDED.

In the civil war young men under 21 saved the Union. Giving figures in support of his statement, Mr. REED of Missouri declared in the Senate on Thursday that "the war "of the rebellion, on the Federal side, "was fought by men under 21 years, "and the majority were under 18." With that precedent, why should the employment of youths of 18, 19, and 20 to save civilization and human liberty be opposed in Congress? Is there a political motive in the opposition? Does enemy propaganda enter into it? Surely the figures of Adjutant General HARRIS should give the obstructors pause. He shows that more than 77 per cent. of the men who have volunteered for the army, navy, and Marine Corps were under 21. Youths of 18 were accepted for the army before the war, and they have been accepted since April, 1917. Has there been any protest until now? What difference should it make whether youths of 18 join the army through enlistment or by the medium of the draft? And yet a distinction has lately sprung up. It is very curious. Certainly there is nothing rational in the new qualm about sending young soldiers between 18 and 19 to battle. Secretary BAKER, who can never be charged with the ruthless spirit and who has as much regard for young men as any member of Congress, does not want to have soldiers of 18 and 19 put immovably in a deferred class. On Thursday he made this statement:

> I hoped that the Congress would not make the law so inelastic as to make it impossible for us to call the 18-19 men until we could certify definitely that we had exhausted the other ages, because the long drawn out processes of classifying and deferring men take so long that we can never tell when we have absolutely finished with the other ages. My plan was to defer the call of the 18-19 men as far as practicable.

But it cannot be practicable for long, if General CROWDER is right—and the Secretary accepts his figures—when he says that it will not be possible to have eighty divisions abroad by July 1, 1919, without using the 18-19 men. The condition must be faced that if they are not to be called out next Summer the war may drag on for another year or two, with appalling losses of our manhood and a vast expenditure of treasure. Congress no doubt will agree with Representative KAHN that personal opinions must go into the scrap-heap "when the military authorities ask for these young men." They themselves do not ask to be excused from fighting for their country by the side of older men.

APPRECIATION OF OUR ALLIES.

The country is under a deep obligation to Senator CHAMBERLAIN of Oregon for his memorable services in connection with army legislation since the United States entered the war. No member of Congress has worked harder and more intelligently to carry out the well-considered plans of the General Staff. The Senator is the greatest authority in Congress upon military preparedness, and he is so regarded in England, where his indefatigable labors are well known and he is held in high esteem. In those labors Mr. CHAMBERLAIN is so engrossed that he has no time to read the war news from the front in France. Otherwise, he would not entertain the view reflected in the following observation, which he made in the Senate on Thursday when he was speaking about the Americans fighting in formations with the French and British forces:

> It was like brigading life with death, taking these young men fresh from the field and the forge and the farm, with all the life that America can give, and brigading them with men who had been fighting for four long, tedious years. They could not in the very necessity of the case have a vigorous esprit de corps when they were brigaded with wornout men.

Senator CHAMBERLAIN has not kept up with the news recently. We are sure that he does not want to do our brave allies in France an injustice, whether they be British or French. They have not been fighting like wornout men, like men with no life in them, since the third week in July. Marshal HAIG's Fourth and Third Armies in Picardy and Flanders have forged ahead in irresistible style, taking many thousands of prisoners and great numbers of field guns. British troops have never fought better, with more dash, with more gallantry. And what glorious, deathless work MANGIN, DE GOUTTE, HUMBERT, and DEBENEY have done, inspired and directed by the immortal FOCH! In the last days of July a Scottish division, after two nights in lorries and a march of ten miles with full packs, relieved an American division in the Soissons sector, ran into the battleline, and at the charge drove the Germans from their positions. On the eastern side of the salient English troops, brought round by rail, also distinguished themselves by fighting with the same spirit and success. A few days later General MANGIN issued a general order addressed to the British divisions under his command in which he said that they "reached "the battle at its fiercest moment, "when the enemy, defeated for the "first time, brought up his best di-"visions, which were numerically su-"perior to ours," and continued:

> All you English and Scottish troops, both young and veterans, have shown the magnificent qualities of your race, indomitable courage and tenacity. You have won the admiration of your brothers in arms, and your country will be proud of you, for to you and your commanders is due in large measure the victory we have just gained against the barbarous enemies of all free peoples.

It is evident that our British allies are far from moribund. Senator CHAMBERLAIN will realize it when he catches up with the military operations on the western front. Marshal HAIG has vied with the great French Marshal in praising the fine fighting qualities of the American troops in action, and there is no doubt the Americans know that their French and British comrades are live ones. General BRIDGES, the head of the British Military Commission in America, made a gentle plea not long ago for appreciation by the Allies of one another's military virtues — recognition of merit, wherever manifested, and always unity of sympathy. Brothers in arms do not fail in this respect.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

The commercial agreement just concluded with Sweden, in general outline like those previously arranged with Spain, Switzerland, and Norway, is important from several points of view. Its economic effects are considerable; Sweden guarantees that none of the food or other supplies imported by her under this arrangement will go to Germany or will release Swedish goods for Germany; she allows to the Allies "a fair proportion" of her iron ore, which hitherto has gone almost wholly to Germany and has been of great importance to the German war machine; she charters 400,000 tons of Swedish shipping to the Allies. From the standpoint of international law the agreement is one more reinforcement of the doctrine of ultimate destination, that a blockaded country cannot be permitted to import goods from overseas via neutral territory, a theory first developed in the American civil war. Furthermore, the agreement marks another recognition of the principle that a nation producing food, raw materials, and manufactures has the right to dispose of its necessarily limited quantities for export in such a way that its enemies will not be benefited thereby. This has been recognized before by the European neutrals in the case of Germany, but some of them have shown a remarkable reluctance to acknowledge the same right for the Allies.

That they acknowledge it now is the most significant implication of the new arrangement. Sweden's friendship for Germany has been in the main a class friendship, an interest of the Government, the aristocracy, and certain other classes rather than of the nation. The effect of the disclosures concerning Germany's use of Swedish diplomatic facilities was felt in last year's elections, and last Fall there came in a Liberal Ministry, temperamentally better disposed to the Allies. But a force more potent than temperamental sympathy has been at work. Its effects have been seen in Spain, where the Government has at last been stirred by submarine sinkings of Spanish ships to the declaration that for each ship sunk hereafter a German ship interned in a Spanish port will be seized. They have been seen in other neutral countries. In the Netherlands a new Conservative Ministry has just come into power, headed by JONKHEER COLYN. It was said some months ago that he acted as the medium of a German peace approach toward England; he denied it. Whatever the fact may be in this case, he has shown himself in the past as very well disposed to America; and sentiment in Holland is not likely to look with disapproval on opinions of this sort. In Norway, always the friend of the Allies, in Denmark and Switzerland, where sympathies have been divided, the same change is at work.

FOCH has done it. Six months ago the small neutral States of Europe felt that the ultimate possibility of absorption into Germany could not be disregarded, because of the immediate danger of opposition to the wishes of a power which appeared to be winning the war. In the recent change of opinion among the neutrals, in the growing readiness of their Governments to take action which a large part of the population must long have desired, there is the visible working of allied victories on the Marne and the Somme. This change has never been better expressed than in the dispatch sent to A. B. C., a strongly pro-German organ of Madrid, by AZORIN, its correspondent, who had visited the American bases and camps and the American forces at the front in France. "Amer-"ica will come victorious out of this "war," he wrote. "The politics of the "whole world will move its centre to "North America. In the face of the "future which is preparing, what will "be Spain's attitude? Shall we re-"main again, as in the sixteenth "century, outside the course which "all humanity follows?"

There may be persons in Germany who still think that Germany will win. The neutrals do not think so, and they do not want to be on the wrong side when the decision comes.

RAILWAY RATES AND COMMODITY PRICES.

After six years' deliberation the Interstate Commerce Commission decides the private car case so far as it is a matter of rates, but opens another chapter where the rates enter into the making of prices and the supply of markets. The trouble arose when the carriers were unable or unwilling to supply the facilities which distributers needed to supply markets. Railways are carriers, not merchandisers. No one could reasonably expect carriers to study markets like those who find their profits in them, and reckon their freight rates as costs. In modern large scale operations profits come from economies, and money is made by those who devise new ways to supply needs better than their competitors. When the Standard Oil Company devised tank cars it was able to show cause for a cheaper rate, and to undersell its competitors. But that was rebating, and unfair competition to which common carriers could not be parties.

But not for that reason ought such a cheapening of the carriage of oil to be lost to the sellers and consumers of oil. The meat and fruit trades demand the use of refrigerator cars and the replenishing of their wastes of ice. Ordinary freight rates should not apply to them, not even if the carriers and the packers were exposed to the reproach of rebating. The benefit to the public in the cheapening of fruits and meat and the widening of the markets to which meat can be supplied from central abattoirs and distant climates is substantial, and ought not to be lost from niggardliness about profits when they are less than the service to the public is worth. Similar considerations apply to the cars which need heating instead of cooling, such as the early vegetable trade requires. The care of such commodities is a service apart from their carriage, and is better performed by those interested in the price and condition of the goods than by those charged merely with the duties of transport.

When cars have been deficient the shippers who have supplied them have had undue advantage over competitors. When shippers have supplied heat or cold in transit there has been a confusion of rates with charges for ice or fuel or other services, and the separation has baffled both the law and its administrators. It was easy, comparatively, to decide special cases, but the application of the same rule to all has caused as much harm as benefit, obstructing both the development of railroading and merchandising.

Hereafter, a larger fraction of a cent a mile is to be allowed in an additional rate for tank, poultry, and heater cars than for the like service in ordinary cars. In cars privately owned no additional charge shall be made except when the ordinary rate is based on other types of cars which are operated more cheaply. Packers are forbidden to refill the refrigerators, and the railways are directed to supply themselves with the means of doing the work. In this manner it is probable that the line haul will be made inclusive of the charges of transportation, and those who have found an indirect profit in supplying the service will find their profits reduced to that extent.

It remains to be seen how the new rules will work. The railways are not able to meet present demands upon them, and this service affects some three million cars, on every considerable railway in the country. Shippers have come to think less of the rates they pay than of getting service at any rates. In similar manner it may come to be thought that stopping of concealed rebates is less important under present conditions than the supply of markets at prices which consumers can afford to pay. That will have no weight with those who consider these questions matters of morals, and are eager about the reduction of profits.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Blow at "Business as Usual."

Quite the most important statement contained in the address made this week by the Assistant Director of the Federal Employment Service at the conference of its field agents in Washington was contained in the sentence, "The time has come for the entire nation to realize that 'business as usual' is no longer possible." That statement will give much pain in not a few quarters—in all, that is, where full realization has not yet been attained as to the nature and size of the task which the war has brought upon the country and as to the necessity for subordinating every one of its other interests to the supreme interest of winning the war, and of winning it as quickly as possible.

There is hardly any honest business, of course, in behalf of which those engaged in it, making profits out of it and giving employment by means of it, cannot offer a more or less plausible argument for exemption from suppression or restriction, on the ground that it, too, is "essential" in one way or another to successful conduct of the war. On analysis, however, a large number of these claims comes to nothing more than the truism that any disturbance of business routine involves loss and hardship for considerable numbers of people. It does, unquestionably, but loss and hardship are the natural and inevitable consequences of war. Business must bear its burdens like everything else, and they are as nothing as compared with those borne by the men who go to the front.

Examination of the list of occupations and industries declared nonessential by the Assistant Director, and therefore under obligation to release for war activities the labor they now employ, is interesting in itself, but still more because it is so short—because it is so evidently only a beginning of what must come. As usual, the automobile and those who use it come in for first attention, it being apparently impossible for the official mind to get rid of the notion that every motor-driven vehicle, even though it be used by a grocer in place of his old delivery wagon, is a luxury. The remainder of the list is open to little just criticism, though it will be the cause of bitter complaint from not a few of the classes of workers it affects.

Authority Used Admirably.

Enviable indeed is the man who can end an evil by issuing concerning it an order that must be obeyed! This exclamation is evoked by the news that Rear Admiral WOOD, commanding the naval district of which Boston is the activating centre, has just told all the officers under his control that hereafter every document sent to him by them must have its authorship revealed by a name as well as by a signature. In other words, what the Admiral demands is that there shall be a typewritten name to be read, in addition to a written name as a guarantee of identity.

That is a most excellent idea, and if only it were universally adopted, or universally compelled, a vast saving of time and temper throughout the world would be effected. There are, of course, some people who not only can—everybody could who tried—but do write their names legibly, and with due regard for the fact that legibility, while desirable in all writing, is necessary for names—if they are to be read, instead of guessed at or given up entirely. A much greater number of people, however, seem to abandon all attempt at legibility when they sign their names, and even to take pride in making them a mere scribble—in short, a "signature."

That does well enough for the receiving tellers of banks, and for near relatives and close friends, but such scribbles are most irritating when they appear at the foot of letters to strangers and—here comes the real reason for these feeling remarks! — on manuscripts that are offered for publication by newspapers and other instruments of light and leading. The use, then, of a hieroglyph for a readable name is distinctly and doubly sinful, in that it evidences, on the one hand, utter inconsideration for the convenience and happiness of others, and because, on the other hand, it leads to the utterance in great quantities of language obnoxious alike to morals and taste.

Admiral WOOD has taken precisely the right measure—for him. Those of us who lack his power can do nothing but plead with the offenders, and pleading to such hardened wretches as these is lamentably ineffective.

They Do Not Ask for a Million!

Among the many agencies for good that are finding it harder now than in the days of peace to get the money they need is the University Settlement Society of 184 Eldridge Street, and it has a particular cause of sorrow at just this time in that it lacks the funds it has been accustomed to use every Summer in sending away on brief vacations young dwellers in humble city homes who, without such help, must remain in the crowded streets and tenements all the year round. This is an important form of beneficence, and the University Settlement carries it on as a public work, entirely nonsectarian, with only the desire to give vacations to those who need them most.

The amount of aid demanded at the moment is small—it seems absurdly small, when so much of current talk and thought is in millions—when it isn't in billions. With $300 more than it has the society can round out to 800 the number of outings it can provide this Summer, but this amount should be in hand at once, for use before the public schools open.

CALVERT BREWER is the Treasurer of the University Settlement Society and HENRY W. TAFT is its President.

The Times's Anniversary.

From The Lexington (Ky.) Herald.

On Aug. 18, 1896, THE NEW YORK TIMES passed into the ownership and control of its present management, last Sunday marking the completion of twenty-two years under that management. In all the history of journalism there is no more remarkable growth than that of THE TIMES during those years. THE TIMES has developed into the best newspaper in the world today. There is no newspaper that has covered the events of the war so completely as has it; there is no newspaper that has given higher evidence of sturdy Americanism than has it. Democratic in principle and in policy, it rang clear and true in its demand for preparation for war and for our participation in war. Loyal to every cause for which the Allies fight, it is clear-sighted in detecting and courageous in condemning the mistakes, omission, and commission that have been brought about by the mischievous doctrines of pacifism and pro-Germanism and the power of those misled by such doctrines.

EFFORTS TO SAVE FINLAND.

Present Government Warned of Dangers in German Influence.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to your editorial in today's issue, will you allow me to point out that in your otherwise excellent expression of opinion entitled, "Finland's Friends" you are, I am sure unintentionally, doing the Finland Constitutional League of America an injustice in assuming that it is "endeavoring to exculpate Dictator Svinhufvud"? The sole Finland Government representative now left in this country, who has known Svinhufvud personally for many years, declares vehemently and with evident sincerity that the Dictator is a man of the most absolute integrity and strength of character, whose every act is animated by the single desire to promote Finland's welfare as he sees it. We who have not been similarly favored may acquiesce in this estimate of Svinhufvud's motives, and I myself am free to say that from my brief meeting with him at Helsingfors in 1907, at the opening of the first One-Chamber Diet, of which he was President, I was much impressed with his strong and self-reliant personality and the dignity and sureness with which he presided over the proceedings on that memorable occasion, when for the first time in the history of Europe women (to the number of nineteen) took their places in the legislators' seats. But I, as an American citizen, deplore some of the things he has seen fit to do—or, if you prefer it, to see done—and am strongly of the opinion, as are doubtless most of us in and out of the league, that he has in some measure become a German tool—an unconscious one, maybe, but none the less a tool.

Above all, believe me when I say that the Finland Constitutional League of America most emphatically does back up the anti-German majority in the mother country, and that we do not want a monarch over Finland—a grotesque anachronism, as it appears to us, in a land so democratic to the marrow. Indeed—and this the American public should know—only a few weeks ago we sent an emissary specially to Finland to impress that fact upon the Svinhufvud Government and to convey to it that a too pronounced pro-German yielding would infallibly exert a painful impression upon Finnish-Americans, with a consequent loss of their moral support, to say the least. Unfortunately, nevertheless, we have to admit that there has been a large growth in monarchic sentiment over there in the last few months, due not by any means solely to German cajolery and pressure, but even more to the natural reaction on the part of the orderly masses of the Finnish people against the frightful excesses of the reign of terror indulged in during the four months' rule of the combined Red Guards and Russian Bolshevist soldiery, not a tenth part of which has been revealed here.

Nevertheless, I desire to repeat that the majority sentiment of the Finnish nation is still opposed to a monarchy; and as for the scheme of a German princeling as their ruler, it is anathema to them. Despite the frequent ridiculous stories to the effect that the Finns are about to choose such a one—stories that have cropped up at intervals for the last few months, and always with a different candidate for the honor, supplied through Swedish Socialist sources, and as frequently contradicted either by subsequent denials or the convincing logic of cold fact—we of the Finland Constitutional League of America who are working against that precise consummation of German chicanery, will believe it when we see it, and not a moment before!

And as for General Mannerheim, to whom you so feelingly refer, he is as true and single-minded a patriot as he has proved himself a remarkable military leader and strategist, whose genius even the Germans, who met him with evil results to themselves on many a battlefield on the Russian front before ever he commanded the Finnish White Guard armies, freely admit. So, in whatever he may see fit to do in the future in connection with the tangled Finnish situation, more power to his elbow! Some day Finns of all classes will be ready to acknowledge, equally with the Swedish-Finlanders and others who now stand by him, the immensity of the debt that the whole of Finland owes him!

HERMAN MONTAGU DONNER,
President Finland Constitutional League of America.

A Famous Russian Painter Starves.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Today my wife and I have received a letter from a Russian friend living in Paris, communicating to us sad news. In the Pays on July 31 there was printed this item:

> Ilia Repin, the most celebrated painter of Russia, has died of starvation in a hut on the road from Petrograd to Finland.

We knew Repin very well. His and our children were growing up together in Petrograd, where he was professor in the Academy of Arts. Those who had been to the Chicago Exposition will perhaps remember Repin's famous picture, "The Cossacks Writing a Reply to the Sultan of Turkey." "Ivan the Terrible," in the Tretiakoff Gallery of Moscow, is perhaps the most thrilling of Russian pictures. By "The Longshoremen" (Burlaki) Repin made a powerful protest against the maltreatment of the longshoremen of the Volga.

As portrait painter Repin has had no equal in Russia. If Nicholas II. is remembered in the future it will be as painted by Repin's brush. For over ten years Repin lived in Kuokkala, Finland, half an hour's railway trip from Petrograd. Lately he became a vegetarian, but it appears that he could not get enough even of the vegetable food. Truly incredible times we are living in.

FOCH.

His face lean, worn and lined, intent, grim, sage,
Most soldierly yet with the thinker's brow—
Soldier of France and our great leader now!

Not with the Prussian War-Lord's bristling mien,
No air of pomp or of prestige; serene
Unchanging confidence is his whose might Springs from the sacred sense of being right!

No flow of windy words, no pageantry
Of arrogance and pride; the dignity
Of one whose plans spell victory, yet know
A code of honor to a perjured foe!

The son of a Republic, born to be
Its saving, selfless "man of Destiny";
Strong in retreat, yet stronger in advance,
The brain, the hope, the driving Will of France!

Grave-eyed and sad he looks, as one whose part
To wear the scars of battle o'er his heart.
The wounds of France are his—her grief sublime
And her untarnished glory for All Time!

ELIZABETH NEWPORT HEPBURN.

HOOVER URGES MORE FOOD ECONOMY HERE

Back from Europe, He Says We Must Give Allies More Beef and Sugar in Next Year.

BETTER BREAD PROMISED

He Tells Needs of Civilian Populations to Keep Up Morale, Aside from Armies.

Herbert C. Hoover, the Federal Food Administrator, arrived in this country from England yesterday, accompanied by his wife, his private secretary, Lewis Strauss; Dr. Alonzo Taylor, and Alexander N. Smith. He was sunburned and looked none the worse for his six weeks' trip to the war zone, where he had several exciting moments due to air raids and shells from the big guns.

Mr. Hoover said he had enjoyed his visit abroad and the chief feature of it, in his opinion, was the 200,000 letters he had received from school children in England thanking him for what he had done for them all in conserving food.

He was received by King George in London and was much impressed by the King's democratic manner and his interest in every question connected with the feeding of the Allies. Mr. Hoover also, at the headquarters of the Belgian Government, visited King Albert, who conferred a new title upon him which in English is "The Friend of the Belgian People."

Mr. Hoover declined to comment upon the war from a military viewpoint, but he appeared to have gathered the impression from the officials in London and Paris that it would certainly not be over before the Fall of 1919 at the earliest.

Mr. Hoover's Statement.

After visiting the Federal Food Board offices at 6 West 57th Street and lunching with friends in the Hotel Biltmore Mr. Hoover and his party departed for Washington. Before going he gave out the following statement:

"The harvests in France, England, and Italy are better than one could expect in the tremendous drain of man power to the front. This is due to the women. There is no sight in the world that would so appeal to the American heart as that of the literally millions of women doing all the work of getting in the harvests while their men are at work in the shops and driving back the Germans.

"The total food that must be imported by the Allies for human consumption in the year beginning Sept. 1, is in round numbers as follows:

"Cereals for human consumption, 500,000,000 bushels; fats (pork products and vegetable oils,) 4,000,000,000 pounds; sugar, 1,500,000 tons; beef products for civilian consumption, 900,000,000 pounds. In addition to this, beef must be imported for army needs and oats for army horses.

"If this program is fulfilled there will be no need for drastic rationing of their food as during last year, except in beef and sugar. The world shortage in these two commodities makes it hopeless to satisfy their whole need. On the other hand this program provides an ample supply of bread and fats, without rationing of either, and together with their own production gives sufficient supplies.

"The restrictions on the consumption of pork products in allied countries have already been removed and bread will be in full supply by Sept. 1, and of better quality than last year—and it has been pretty bad in France the last few months.

Burden Falls on North America.

"After shipping is set for the transport of the American Army and for military purposes of all the Allies, a definite amount of tonnage is made available for the transport of the program of food for civilian consumption. The purpose of our European food conference has been to determine the amount of food upon which health and morale can be maintained, and to determine the nearest possible sources of supply of this food to the Allies; for only by the shortest voyages, such as to North America, can the above supply be provided with the tonnage available.

"Therefore, upon North America falls the burden of food supply, and any failure means that much less food for the civil populations. While Canada can export 100,000,000 bushels of grain this year, the major part of the allied program for next year falls upon us. We have also to feed our own enormous army.

"It is the largest call for food exports we have ever undertaken. We can do it if we simply have the will to live with every economy and to waste nothing, and it will put us to no hardship.

"By the great effort of our farmers our United States harvests are better this year, but in order that we may build up a surplus of wheat this year as against possible crop failures such as we had last year, we have decided to mix 20 per cent. of other grains with flour in all the countries fighting Germany. We cannot ask for better bread than France, and we propose the American people should maintain a common standard of bread with them.

"Under these arrangements, however, the bread situation in the United States will be much easier than last year, and in allied countries an enormous improvement. Bread to them is of the first importance, as it comprises 50 per cent. of their food intake. By supplying them with bread and fats in such amounts as will not necessitate rationing on their side we can rest assured that their courage and strength in the war will remain high during next Winter.

"It will be a bad Winter in Europe because coal will be much shorter there than even last Winter, and the health of their populations cannot be maintained if they, in addition, are to be also restricted in their allowance of bread and fats. Our complete fulfillment of our last year's promises in food, and our assurances to furnish even larger supplies this next year have removed from them the least fear of hunger.

Our Army Heartened Allies.

"The German drive and the apprehension of famine last Spring brought a great deal of discouragement to the civilian populations of England, France and Italy. The arrival, however, of the American Army, its instant magnificent performance in action, the gradual overcoming of the submarine with the assistance of our navy, together with our assurances of all necessary food, have put a new heart into the Allies. Since the war began I have not seen their spirits so high or their determination to finish the job so fixed as it is today.

"There is much bitter complaint abroad at the prices of our food products. It is necessary to remember that the working people and soldiers' families of the allied countries are upon a much lower average income than our own people. The average wage is not over $10 per week. The Government allowance to the average soldier's family is considerably less than this. American bacon at 50 cents per pound is very difficult to them. Their Governments have found it necessary to sell our breadstuffs at a great loss in order to help the people out. On the other hand, the higher wage level in the United States renders our production costs higher in any event.

"The only real difficulty in the United States is sugar, and that is a shortage that cannot be helped. We cannot take ships from carrying our army or allied bread and send them to the East Indies to fetch us candy and sweet drinks, and we will simply have to divide the West Indian sugar with the Allies and put up with what we have. There is, even then, enough sugar for the essential uses for every one, and much more than our friends in Europe have.

"Since I have been away I have been thanked time and again for what the American people have done in food during the last year. The men, women, and children of the allied countries at meetings and gatherings of all descriptions expressed heartfelt appreciation for the sacrifice we have made, which have meant to them their daily bread during last year. They universally express amazement at its accomplishment on a voluntary basis.

"I have many thousand letters from children which I am asked to distribute to children in America, expressing directly their knowledge of whence and how their loaf came to them. I have replied to all these demonstrations, and I believe the American people will support the attitude, that any expressions of this kind are unnecessary; that this war in part belongs to us, and that efforts in food production and saving by our people are but a part of our job against a common foe.

"Upon the President's authority, that we eat at a common table in a common cause, I have given assurance to my food colleagues in Europe that we will provide the enlarged demands for next year.

"We have to make good!"

MINISTER MORRIS RETURNS.

Envoy to Sweden Tells How He Counteracted German Propaganda.

Ira Nelson Morris, United States Minister to Sweden, and Sir Robert L. Borden, the Canadian Premier, arrived in this country from England yesterday. Mr. Morris said he had made a trip to the western front, where he saw the American soldiers in action, for the express purpose of being able to return to Stockholm and tell the Swedes what America was doing in the war. He did this because of the German propaganda being circulated in Sweden with a view to injuring America and the other Allies.

In France, Mr. Morris said, every credit for the recent victories is given to the men from America, and the enthusiasm everywhere is great. Mr. Morris is going to Washington to report to the State Department.

Another passenger on the same ship was Mrs. J. Ward Morrill of Ottawa, who has spent nearly two years doing nursing work on the Italian front. She said the morale of the Italian Army improved from the moment it was known that the United States intended to send soldiers to assist Italy. The Italian soldiers are amazed at the manner in which the Americans have shipped over such vast quantities of supplies and equipment for their armies, Mrs. Morrill said.

TELLS OF SHIPPING AIMS.

To Win War and Then Carry Our Trade, Says Hurley.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. — German propaganda designed to create dissension among the Allies by stories that the United States will use its enormous fleet of transports and food ships for trade conquests after the war was the subject of a statement today by Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board. He said that every nation now lined up against autocracy could be depended upon to detect the source of these suggestions and discount them.

"In building her merchant fleet America plans first of all to win the war, and after that to overcome her own neglect to provide ocean transportation for her own trade," said Mr. Hurley. "To this end the people of the United States are preparing to develop transportation for their own trade routes, without disturbing the trade rights of other nations.

"It is unthinkable that a nation fighting shoulder to shoulder with the other democracies should turn its resources after the war against them for trade conquests, the nature of which was largely instrumental in causing the war."

MUNSON QUITS SHIP BOARD.

Will Resume His Duties at Head of Steamship Line.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Frank C. Munson of New York has resigned as a member of the Shipping Board and will resume his duties as President of the Munson Steamship Line, believing that he has accomplished the work—that of obtaining neutral ships for the use of the United States—which led to his appointment.

Since becoming a member of the Shipping Board, Mr. Munson, with Edwin F. Gay, has been its representative on the War Trade Board and also a member of the committee of the Shipping Board in charge of perfecting arrangements to protect merchant ships from submarines. His chief duty, however, has been to obtain the use of neutral ships, through which about one million tons of shipping has been made available.

A successor to Mr. Munson has not been named.

5,377,468 Soldiers Carried Between May 1, 1917, and July 1, 1918.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Railroads carried 5,377,468 soldiers in the United States between May 1, 1917, and July 1, 1918, including each movement of a soldier from one point to another. Up to Jan. 1, the movement numbered 2,218,532 and from Jan. 1 to July 1, 3,169,587.

More than half, or 2,902,000 of these troops were carried on special trains, 1,079,000 on regular trains and 1,395,000 were drafted men carried to training camps. The average distance run by each special train was 937 miles and the average number of troops carried by each train was 405.

GERMAN EMPRESS ILL.

Kaiser Leaves Headquarters to Visit Her at Wilhelmshohe.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 23.—The German Empress is ill at Castle Wilhelmshohe, Hesse-Cassel, the Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin says, owing to overstrain from her war relief work. Physicians in attendance promise her full recovery within a few weeks.

The Kaiser, who has been almost uninterruptedly in the field since the Spring offensive, has left Main Headquarters for Wilhelmshohe, especially as "the Empress's sons are prevented by their service obligations from attending at their mother's bedside."

The Berlin Vossische Zeitung says that the Empress is suffering from nervous depression, due to her numerous visits to the hospitals and talks with the wounded from the most recent offensive.

POPE ONLY THANKED KAISER

ROME, Aug. 23.—Referring to newspaper statements that the Pope, answering a telegram from the Kaiser, who sent him greetings on his name day, had invoked a benediction on "the Emperor's work," the Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, says:

"This statement is untrue. The Pope thanked the Emperor for his greetings and for the benediction which the Emperor himself had invoked on the charitable work of his Holiness."

SIR ROBERT BORDEN PRAISES AMERICANS

Canada's Premier Says All Europe Is Impressed by Our Fighting Men.

"MADE VICTORY POSSIBLE"

Germany, He Adds, Must Be Made to Realize, Through the Air, the Martyrdom of Other Nations.

Sir Robert L. Borden, Premier of Canada, returned yesterday from a three months' visit to England and France, where he saw the American soldiers at the front. During his stay in London the Premier attended the Imperial War Conference, where he met delegates from all parts of the British Empire.

"Since I sailed from Canada in May," he said, "more than one million men have been safely transported across the Atlantic, and it is impossible to overestimate the confidence brought about in England and France by the American soldiers. All Europe, in fact, is impressed by their general physique, their resourcefulness, and the magnificent fighting qualities of these men from the United States. I have seen thousands of them in camps and landing from transports, and have been very much impressed by the remarkable rapidity and thoroughness with which they have acquired the necessary training and their resourcefulness and adaptability in action on the battlefields of France.

"It is beyond question that the victories of the last four weeks would not have been possible but for the American divisions now in the battleline. The Canadian soldiers are glad to fight for their mother country, and they have amply showed that in their work during the last four years. They, like the Americans, are splendid fighters.

Before leaving for Ottawa last night Sir Robert L. Borden made a statement in which he said:

"There is most effective and harmonious co-operation between the armies of the United States, Great Britain, and France. From Sir David Beatty, as well as from Admiral Sims and Admiral Rodman, I know that this is equally true of the British and American Navies. During the German offensive in the early Spring months the Canadian divisions were not engaged, but during recent weeks they have won as conspicuous a victory as ever fell to their lot since the outbreak of war.

"Driving forward on a considerable front, they hurled back the Germans fourteen miles, and captured nearly 10,000 prisoners and more than 150 cannon. Their casualties numbered considerably less than their prisoners, and they hold all the ground which they captured.

"The men from both countries have learned to realize most vividly the savage malignity of Germany's purpose and methods. They are determined that this war shall be fought to a finish and that there shall be no repetition of its horrors. The devils by whom German militarists are possessed must be cast out. The spell with which they have bound the German people must be broken.

"As the mastery of the air passes more and more completely to the Allies the German people will more and more realize, through war carried on in their own territories, the martyrdom to which they relentlessly subjected other nations. It is equally the duty of the allied nations to purge Germany of her madness by unsparing use of economic pressure until she has given convincing manifestation of sanity and a clean spirit. Let no selfish purpose or divergence of interest impede united action to this end. An assassin State must be barred from the society of decent commonwealths until they are convinced of its sincere repentance."

CASH IN NEWBERRY RACE.

Michigan Candidate's Manager Admits Spending $150,000.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 23.—Paul H. King, manager of Truman H. Newberry's Senatorial campaign, has issued a statement in reply to the open letter of Lieut. Gov. Dickinson in which it was charged that huge sums of money were being spent to obtain the nomination of the former Secretary of the Navy. King admits that large sums are being spent, the total being set at $150,000, but he says not a cent is being spent illegitimately. He takes a slap at Henry Ford when he says the issue is "Americanism versus Pacifism," and that the money is not used so much to obtain a seat in the Senate as for the triumph of the principle of Americanism.

The statement in part follows:

"We have as an opponent the best advertised man in the world except the Kaiser. Millions of dollars have been spent in making his name a household word. While Commander Newberry did not have this advantage, we have, through our campaign of education, made him within a few months as well known in Michigan. The sum of $150,000 will cover every expense in connection with the campaign and every cent of it has been expended just as the Anti-Saloon League spent its funds for purposes authorized by law. The amount is certainly small in comparison with the cost of the anti-preparedness campaign conducted in the newspapers of the country by one of the candidates for Senator."

CARDINAL FARLEY IS SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Cardinal Farley's condition showed an improvement today and the physicians who are attending him issued this bulletin:

> The Cardinal's condition this evening is slightly improved, but is still critical. Temperature 101, pulse 100, respiration 26.
> DR. THOMAS F. McPARLAN,
> DR. ERNEST FAHNESTOCK.

The Cardinal is critically ill at his Summer home at Orienta Point, suffering with the second attack of pneumonia he has had since he left New York several weeks ago. The improvement in his condition reported yesterday was very gratifying to the many friends and church dignitaries who journeyed to Orienta Point today to inquire as to the Cardinal and to pray for his recovery.

Mgr. Thomas G. Carroll, the Cardinal's secretary, was very hopeful today because of the improvement the Cardinal has shown. The improvement began yesterday and was more pronounced today. Cardinal Farley's temperature was lower, according to the night bulletin, and it was said he appeared much more comfortable than he has been for several days, having practically no distress.

Chief Chemist of Bayer Plant Will Be Examined Here.

Dr. Arthur Franz Felix Mothwurf of 31 South Main Street, Albany, who was the chief chemist and assistant manager of the plant of the Bayer Company at Rensselaer, N. Y., was arrested on a Presidential warrant yesterday and brought to this city for examination by Chief De Woody of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation. The prisoner, who is a German subject, is wanted by the Government in connection with the effort which, the Government charges, was made to deceive the Alien Property Custodian regarding the real ownership of the Williamson & Crowell Color Company of Providence, R. I. The alien enemy owners of the Bayer Company turned that property over to the country after they were charged with obtaining control of the Rhode Island concern, which was continued ostensibly as an American concern.

Mothwurf is also alleged to have tried to conceal from the Federal authorities his ownership of a $16,000 interest in a concern by transferring the money to an American citizen of German birth, who is said to have agreed to return the property to Mothwurf after peace was declared. Mothwurf took a note for the $16,000, which stated that the money was to be returned "six months after peace was declared." Dr. Mothwurf was born in Bavaria, and is reputed one of the ablest chemists now in this country. Rufus W. Sprague, the Chief of the Enemy Alien Bureau, committed him to the Mercer County jail, pending further investigation by the Department of Justice.

Mrs. Edith S. Georg of Newburg, prominent in Red Cross activities there, and wife of a well-known enemy alien, refused several weeks ago to register as an enemy. Following her promise to the authorities, she has at last signed her name as a subject of the Emperor of Germany.

There is probably no reason why German spy melodrama and Yiddish farce comedy should not mingle to make a thoroughly enjoyable play, even when trimmed and embellished with musical numbers and dances, Third Avenue burlesque, and a quartet of comic detectives who are also a jazz band that serves at a pinch for waiters. There were moments last night at the Harris when it seemed that Montague Glass and Jules Eckert Goodman, with the aid of George Marion as producer, had assembled their very complicated machinery and got it going at full speed, with every cylinder hitting. Yet it takes only a slight defect in lubrication to convert a twin-six into sick twins.

The original inspiration of Messrs. Glass and Goodman was apparently the notion that the Potash and Perlmutter formula could be made good once more, simply by putting Abe and Mawruss into skirts. So we have the waitress and cashier of a Second Avenue restaurant, with Fannie Brice as the champion of hot temper and hotter repartee, and May Boley as her antagonist. The nimble and racy wit of Mr. Glass has seldom been happier or more prolific than in the lines attributed to these young women. Yet somehow the effect was not quite convincing.

The gift of a needle-pointed, highly colored, vernacular may not be quite beyond the gamut of feminine accomplishments; but women who have the saving grace of good comradeship under a hailstorm of insulting personalities are as hard to believe in as the neck of a camel. When the machine guns of gibe and retort spat loudest and hottest, with no faces scratched, somehow the trousers of Abe and Mawruss peeped out from beneath those skirts and killed illusion.

Neither is it altogether easy to believe in a master organization of German spies and bomb plotters who whisper heroically "For the Fatherland!" and face death unflinching, among the clatter and gabble of insensate farce. And on top of that Fannie Brice strode forth to the footlights in burlesque costumes to "do" a movie vampire and an Indian Maiden of subway melodrama, while four actors who had appeared as a jazz band became suddenly singing waiters, and finally comic detectives.

Mr. Marion's recipe for whipping these spicy and alien elements into a salad was apparently to pound every point with a sledge hammer and take the whole at racing speed. And, as aforesaid, there were times when the result was a pursuing whirlwind of laughter. But as a whole the success of the production is problematical, and probably worse than that.

Miss Brice was her familiar self, and won the applause of an obviously friendly audience. Vera Gordon came very near to creating a real character—a Jewish matron of admirable presence and volubility, whose conversational powers bloomed and flourished to the detriment of a game of poker. George Sidney was equally good as broker in restaurants, who sold out the Second Avenue place for a Westchester roadhouse, which became the scene of the second and third acts. With a more possible part and play either of these actors is capable of excellent results.

Perhaps the most original work of the evening was done by the jazz band quartet, headed by Joe Smith, who became waiters and then detectives at the drop of the hat. Their performance was admirably pitched in the key of reckless fantasie, and sustained with unerring skill. But as Miss Gordon and Mr. Sidney suffered shipwreck because of the irresponsibility of so much of the play, these four broke their shins against its intermittent moments of intended seriousness.

There has seldom been a more puzzling, a more baffling, hodgepodge. The one thing certain about it is that the separate elements in it are the creations of men of very real talent and originality. Perhaps it is only a question of proper fusing, which will be solved in time.

SUBWAY RIDERS HURT.

The failure of an electrically operated switch to work properly at the Union Square station of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's Broadway subway line resulted in the injury of four passengers of a derailed car last night and caused considerable confusion among homegoers of the downtown business district. None of the injured passengers was hurt severely, and all were able to leave the station after their cuts and bruises were dressed by ambulance surgeons from Bellevue and New York Hospitals.

The accident occurred, according to officials of the road, when a train in charge of Motorman George Jenninger and Conductor George Balman, with 150 passengers aboard, started to cross from the express to the local track, northbound to Times Square. The forward car of the three-car train climbed the switch and ran along the flooring for fifteen feet, tossing the passengers about.

JOSEPH AJELLO FOUND DEAD

Joseph Ajello, 63 years old, a real estate dealer with offices at 71 Wall Street, was found dead last night with his body lying over a gas range in the kitchen of his apartment at 29 West Twenty-sixth Street. Mr. Ajello had suffered attacks of vertigo for several years, and the police believe that while trying to warm hot water bottles to get relief from an attack he fell over the range and was overcome by gas. He had not been seen since Wednesday.

Dr. Norris, Medical Examiner, gave the cause of death as gas suffocation. Joseph Ajello of 201 East 118th Street, a nephew, was notified.

THIRD AV. CAR MEN VOTE TO CALL STRIKE

CALL MOVE "SUSPENSION"

Charge That Sixty Men with Union Buttons Were Dismissed—Appeal to War Labor Board.

At a meeting held in Bohemian Hall, 321 East Seventy-third Street, last night representatives of the 4,000 conductors and motormen of the Third Avenue Railroad system voted to "suspend work" until the company was willing to recognize their right to organize. The question of pay was not considered.

Following the meeting the representatives, 300 conductors and motormen, went out along the lines of the system to notify the employes operating cars of their decision to strike. They met the cars and told the conductors and motormen to take them back to the barns, as the men had voted to "suspend work" and they intended to tie up the lines so that not a single wheel would be turning today.

They also took steps to see that the men of the early morning shift were notified so that they would have opportunity, if they had not before, to join the union and also the strike. The organizers asserted last night that so many men would refuse to take cars out that this morning would see the strike in full swing.

At the barns at 129th Street and Amsterdam Avenue and Third Avenue and 129th Street cars were leaving on schedule at 2 o'clock this morning, and officials said they believed the strike order would be abortive.

Discharged for Wearing Button.

At the conclusion of the meeting, P. J. O'Brien, international organizer of the Amalgamated Association of Electric and Street Railway Employes, made a statement in which he asserted the men voted to suspend work because early yesterday morning more than sixty conductors and motormen were discharged by the company because they appeared for work wearing the button of the union.

No statement was issued yesterday by the company beyond an announcement made last night by the Second Vice President of the Third Avenue system, Leslie Sutherland, in Yonkers, that a further increase in pay had been granted.

Representatives of the union said they would take up the question of the right to organize with the War Labor Board at Washington, as it was deemed a question which could easily be settled by arbitration. It was contended by the union leaders that the men were in no way to blame for their discharge yesterday morning, as they did not seek to antagonize the company. Mr. O'Brien said that more than 100 car crews had probably been discharged up to midnight last night.

"The whole question," said Mr. O'Brien, "was left to the men, as there was no agitation on the part of the union. In fact it was not until noon today that I was apprised of the actual state of affairs. I was then told of the discharge of the men and learned that they had conducted several meetings in the last few days at which they had discussed the question of wearing buttons.

Expects 2,500 to Quit.

"More than 300 men joined the union at the first meeting tonight, and it is expected that 1,000 more will have joined before morning. By tomorrow night we expect that at least 2,500 employes of the Third Avenue system will have suspended work. This suspension should not be called a strike."

It was learned, however, at the meeting that the car conductors and the motormen preferred to call their action a strike instead of a suspension of labor.

The system includes the Third Avenue line, the Forty-second Street crosstown line, and the red cars on the Broadway surface system. It could not be learned at the company's offices, Third Avenue and 129th Street, what the company would do in an attempt to break the strike. There was no violence yesterday following the discharge of the men, although police reserves were sent to the company's car barns at Third Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street and Tenth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street.

The announcement of a wage increase made by Vice President Sutherland yesterday was of from 1 to 4 cents an hour more over the increase announced last Wednesday. The increase will be general over all the lines of the company, including the line in Yonkers.

According to the new scale first-year men will receive 41 cents, second-year men 43 cents, third-year men 45 cents, four-year men 46 cents, five-to-nine years men 47 cents, ten-year men and over 49 cents. The working day will be ten hours.

The increase announced last Wednesday was 40 cents for men from one to three years, and 43 cents for three-year men and over. Prior to Wednesday the pay was 29 cents an hour for first-year men.

The increase will become effective as of Aug. 18.

It is believed the company will shortly apply for an increase in fares to meet the added increase of labor and material.

SHIPWORKERS WANT A DOLLAR AN HOUR

Skilled Employes Present "Friendly Demands" to the Labor Adjustment Board.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Skilled workers in the shipbuilding industry of the country have presented "friendly demands" to the Labor Adjustment Board of the Shipping Board for an increase in wages to $1 an hour, double time for all overtime. Saturday half holidays throughout the year, and a 10 per cent. bonus for all night shop work. The present wage is approximately 75 cents an hour.

The demands were framed by representatives of the various crafts after conferences which began in Philadelphia and were continued in Washington with the Labor Adjustment Board. They grew out of the termination of the six months' period of settlement of the first dispute decided by the board, which involved Delaware workers. Its award stipulated that living conditions were to determine later readjustments.

Before passing on the wage question, the Labor Adjustment Board, composed of V. Everit Macy, A. J. Berres, and L. A. Coolidge, will decide whether a country-wide basis shall be used in determining wage scales. The board today discussed the question of the country-wide basis, but adjourned without reaching any formal decision, it was said. Wage scales heretofore have been fixed on a basis of districts, comprising shipyards in a few States. All of these adjustments are for six months, and the last will terminate in October.

The men have an agreement with the board that wage questions shall be settled by negotiation. The present wages average $5.77 a day on the Pacific Coast and vary from $5.80 to $6.50 elsewhere in the country. The increase would approximate 30 per cent.

Union leaders are said to be unanimous in desiring the establishment of a uniform national scale for members of their crafts.

18 TO 45 DRAFT TO BE ADOPTED TODAY

young men like Edsel Ford, son of Henry Ford, who asked for deferred classification because he was needed in Ford's business, are left in this land. Edsel Ford finally secured classification as 2-A, (wife and child,) and also as 8-A, (necessary assistant of necessary industrial enterprise.) That made him practically immune under the old draft unless the rules are changed. And, gentlemen of the House, this new bill will send the 18 and 19 year old boys to war ahead of all the Edsel Fords in the country.

"Theodore Roosevelt has written that 'the son of Henry ought to feel it absolutely obligatory on him to go to the war.' Pass this bill and he can't go. This ends volunteering. Read the hearings on the subject. Note that enlistments are suspended. Read Secretary Baker's statement that an able-bodied man of 40 or 42 will not be permitted to enlist. Will you O. K. a plan by which a father of 40 cannot give his life for his 18-year-old son? They say Henry Ford is to be inducted into the Senate. If he is to come, I wish he were here now to see if he would vote to send poor men's 18-year-olds while his own precious 23-year-old Edsel is set aside.

"Will you draft the 18-year-olds while a single fighting man under 31 sits in uniform at an official desk in Washington? If you must draft 18-year-olds, won't you at least make the draft maximum 50 years and authorize volunteering, so that able-bodied men such as myself can get into the trenches? Enact these provisions and I will enlist tomorrow, and I am only one of countless thousands. Get it down to the last analysis, and there are 150 men in this Congress who should vote themselves into this war before they vote the extreme youth of the land into it.

18-Year-Old Pages Exhibited.

"Standing beside me are two 18-year-old pages, employed by the House of Representatives. They are part of the man power of the United States, but I submit that they are hardly fit for life in the trenches. That boy there is half as high as this gun I ask him to carry, and that other fine, manly, little fellow does not weight within fifty pounds of the equipment that I ask him to shoulder. Can anyone imagine this patriotic, growing boy leading a charge against a gas attack? Can you see him blinded for life at an age two years younger than our own beloved chaplain, Dr. Couden, lost his sight?"

Mr. Johnson later tried to get adopted his amendment to limit the draft ages to those between the ages of 19 and 45 years. This was defeated by a vote of 90 to 172. An amendment, presented by Representative Blackmon of Alabama, limiting the ages to 21 and 45 years, was defeated by a vote of 42 to 194. Only eleven Republicans voted for the latter amendment.

The committee refused to accept an amendment offered by Representative Lunn of New York to qualify the McKenzie amendment by stipulating that the boys of 18 years of age should be called last "so far as practicable." This was defeated without a division.

"I want the best army that we can get to go to France," said Representative McKenzie, defending his proposal. "I offer this amendment not because of any particular interest in the individual boy, while I love him, but because I believe it is good military policy and I believe it will give us the strongest army that we can get, stronger than if we put in the boys. What does it do? It simply says, 'Yes, we agree, though it may be a trial for us to do so, that you may enlist the boys from 18 to 45; put them all in.' We are not denying them the power nor the right.

"We put them in, and what does my amendment say? It simply says to the War Department—and from the bottom of my heart I believe it is good military policy—'You can take the boys up to 20, you can take the men up to 45 as you please, you can put them in to fill the quotas as they come in, but the boys of 19 shall not be called until these men are taken, and they will make stronger and better soldiers for our country, and then the boys of 18 shall be called last.'"

Declines to "Lay Down."

"I stand here today as a free American citizen appealing to other free American citizens to do the thing that they believe will be best for the country and not best for some individual. When I went on the Military Affairs Committee I resolved to give my best and my earnest thought to these great questions that come before it, and I am still doing so, but I decline most respectfully to surrender my manhood and what little intelligence I have, what patriotism I may have. I decline to surrender this to the Kaiser of Germany or to any other man who would undertake to dictate to me and say that I must lay down and have nothing to say in that position. When it comes to that I want to be relieved of the responsibility of serving upon the committee.

"My friends, it is up to you. You can put in these boys now. I am not saying that they shall not be registered, that they may not be used if necessary; all I am appealing for is that in the name of justice, in the name of good military policy, you take the older men first, to stand the terrible strain that will be put upon them, that you use them first, and if the time comes when we need them, then we can put in the boys."

By a vote of 120 to 167 the McKenzie amendment was defeated, although some of the big Democratic leaders voted for the creation of three classes. Among those who supported the amendment were Speaker Clark, Democratic Floor Leader Kitchin, and Chairman Dent, and some who had voted against war and the original selective draft law.

The amendment sponsored by Representative Johnson of Washington, to increase the age limit from 45 to 50 years, was defeated by a vote of 118 to 168.

Although the State Department has expressed itself as opposed to drafting aliens, the committee adopted an amendment offered by Representative McCulloch of Ohio to provide for drafting aliens of those countries associated with the United States in this war.

The Drafting of Aliens.

This amendment, adopted by a vote of 129 to 74, reads:

> No alien who is a citizen or subject of any of the countries co-belligerent with the United States in the present war shall, unless contrary to existing treaties, be granted exemption from military service, or placed in deferred classification under the provisions of this act, or any rule or regulation to be issued by authority granted under the provisions of this act, solely on account of alienage, and provided, further, that the War Department shall immediately after the passage of this act reclassify all aliens heretofore registered who are citizens or subjects of the countries co-belligerent with the United States in the present war and who have been exempted or placed in deferred classification on account of alienage, and said aliens shall be immediately called for service unless such action would be contrary to existing treaties. Provided, that the act of May 18, 1917, is hereby amended accordingly.

An amendment presented by Representative Doolittle of Iowa, to give election qualifications to boys of 18 who are drafted, was rejected on a point of order that it was not germane.

While the committee was rushing rapidly through the bill, hopeful of completing it before 10 o'clock tonight, Representative Gregg, in a brief speech, appealed to the members to be patriotic, and treat themselves as they had treated others. He offered an amendment to include "officers, legislative and executive, of the United States or States" in the provisions of the draft law. This was adopted by a viva voce vote, only a few nays being heard.

Representative Madden of Illinois then offered this amendment:

> No persons employed in an executive department, governmental establishment, board or commission, or given a deferred classification, shall be exempt by reason of such employment from military duty under the provisions of this act, now or hereafter.

This proposal developed a great storm of protest. Vigorous speeches were made against it by Representatives Cannon, Fields, Dent, and Sims.

Loud Cries of "Vote."

After Mr. Madden had reviewed the situation and insisted that no man should have exemption solely because of his employment by the Government, there were loud cries of "Vote," indicating that the House favored the amendment. At this juncture Representative Dent forced adjournment. There are very few controversial matters left undisposed of, and the House will probably pass the bill late tomorrow.

In the Senate, Senator Calder of New York asked Senator Chamberlain, Chairman of the Military Committee, how the policemen in New York would be affected by the draft. The recent letter from Mayor Hylan, stating that 3,000 policemen would come under the provisions of the bill, was read. Senator Chamberlain said he did not think the policemen would be drafted. Attention was called to the fact that the President could exempt men from military duty if they were needed in other necessary work. The matter was left at a standstill, but the understanding seemed to be that the police force would not be wrecked.

Strenuous objection was made by Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan to the committee amendment allowing men from other localities to sit on draft boards.

"I don't want any stranger there; I want neighbors and friends, and I want the tear drops of the mothers to fall before the feet of those they know," he cried.

Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey offered an amendment to limit the changes in the draft boards to men within the States, thus preventing a man from South Carolina sitting on a Nebraska draft board. Senator Chamberlain said this was originally in the bill, but was left out through a typographical error.

When the amendment allowing wives of soldiers and sailors to fill Government places came up Senator Shields of Tennessee moved to exempt women from civil service examinations. From this idea the debate spread to the plan of exempting mothers of sons in the army from the examinations. When the Senate adjourned this question was being discussed.

Senator Thomas of Colorado, author of the "work or fight" amendment, which is opposed by labor as an anti-strike provision, today defended his proposal, declaring it did not amount to conscription of labor.

Senator Lodge declared himself in favor of lowering the age limits, but said he though 45 years "is a haphazard age to fix," because when 40 is passed the great mass of the directing classes of war industries is invaded and: "You are invading a very valuable class and for a small result; about 150,000 men is all they expect to get between 40 and 45. I think 40 years would be a much better age to stop with."

PRESIDENT USES INFLUENCE.

Tells Senators of Opposition to Man-Power Bill Amendments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—President Wilson, in a conference with Senators Martin and Simmons today, exerted his influence to have the proposed amendments of the Man-Power bill placing restrictions on the calling of youths of 18 and 19 defeated.

The President also was understood to have informed the Senators that, in his opinion, the "work or fight" amendment as reported in the bill to the Senate was unnecessary.

EXPECT 7,000 MEN TO REGISTER TODAY

Last-Minute Instructions Issued for New Yorkers Who Reached 21 Since June 5 Last.

Martin Conboy, Director of the Draft for New York City, estimates that about 7,000 men who have reached the age of 21 years since June 5 last will register for military service in New York City today. The registration places will be the district headquarters of the 189 local draft boards of New York City.

The following last-minute instructions were issued from the office of Director Conboy yesterday afternoon:

THOSE WHO MUST REGISTER: Men who have become 21 years of age between June 5, 1918, and Aug. 24, 1918, inclusive.

DATE OF REGISTRATION: Saturday, Aug. 24. Persons whose religious tenets forbid work on Saturday may register on Monday.

TIME: Between 7 A. M. and 9 P. M.

PLACE: At headquarters of local board covering address of registrant. If in doubt, inquire at once at nearest local board or at police station.

PENALTY FOR FAILURE TO REGISTER: Loss of right to deferred classification, prosecution for a misdemeanor, and possibly immediate induction into military service.

This registration will be followed early in September by a large registration of men of the ages to be decided upon by Congress.

The regulations which will govern today's registration are the same as those which applied on June 5 last, with the exception of Jews with religious objection to registering on Saturday, who will be permitted to register on Monday. Word that an exception had been made in favor of such orthodox Jewish registrants was received from General E. H. Crowder, the Provost Marshal General, yesterday. General Crowder said in his notification that he had received a protest from the Association of Ordained Orthodox Rabbis, who urged that some day other than Saturday be set aside for the registration of men of their congregations. Accordingly, General Crowder designated next Monday as registration day for all men who because of religious beliefs are opposed to registering today.

It has been announced from the office of the Provost Marshal General that enough numbers remain over from the lottery following the June 5 registration to care for all men who are expected to register today. The men who are registered today will be assigned numbers by Adjt. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, after which they will ascertain their call numbers by referring to the official drawing of June 27 last.

The work of classifying the men who will become eligible for service today will begin on Monday. It is expected that fully 60 per cent. of them will be found available for call as Class 1-A men. Practically all Class 1-A men registered today will be called to the colors by the middle of September.

MURRAY YIELDS TO TILDEN IN TENNIS BATTLE

TILDEN AND PELL REACH NET FINAL

Murray Bows to Cunning of Clay Court Champion in Straight Sets.

WESTERN EXPERT BEATEN

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 23.—William T. Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia, stood to the forefront in the semi-final round of the invitation tennis tournament at the Meadow Club today, for it was the Quaker City contender who vanquished Robert Lindley Murray of Niagara Falls in straight sets at 6—3, 6—3. The other final-round bracket went to Theodore Roosevelt Pell, who scored a victory over Walter T. Hayes, the last of Chicago's representatives in the tournament, at 6—2, 7—5. It was Hayes who put out the little Japanese Kumagae in yesterday's play, and it was therefore something of a surprise when he in turn fell before Pell.

The doubles also was advanced to the final-round brackets. In the upper half of the draw Tilden and Vincent Richards, national doubles champions, came through, and in the lower half the Chicago team of Hayes and Ralph H. Burdick were returned the victors.

Hayes and Burdick first defeated Kumagae and Harold Taylor in a second-round match at 6—2, 6—1, and later in the afternoon defeated Murray and Pell in a three-set encounter at 7—5, 2—6, 6—4. Tilden and Richards earned their first victory of the day over Conrad B. Doyle and Lieutenant William F. Horrell with the score of 6—3, 6—4, and in the semi-final round defeated Harold Throckmorton and Walter Merrill Hall at 6—3, 6—4.

The match between Tilden and Murray was expected to be the one of the tournament, and in a measure it did live up to expectations, but Murray was far from being in condition to withstand the driving attack that Tilden kept up through two sets. Murray was not 50 per cent. as strong as he was two years ago, or even last year. Many of the shots so characteristic of his play were faulty. There was not one time during the contest when he succeeded in getting a half volley shot over the net, and he was weak on the low full volley. In the doubles encounter, with Pell as his partner, Murray was beginning to find himself.

Tilden was a revelation. He possessed everything in the way of shot-making, and to have beaten him Murray would have had to possess all of the fire and dash of his game of two years ago. The Philadelphian crowded the net continually, cutting off Murray's drives with crisp volleys that defied return. Murray tried heroically to stem the tide of defeat, but his game was not sharp enough to hold the aggressive Tilden at bay.

Murray's game is founded on a net attack, but he could not play in his accustomed position with any sense of security, because he sacrificed everything to get to the barrier, leaving his court open for passing shots which were almost inevitable because of his own softened drives.

In the first set Murray had a lead of 3—1 on games, but Tilden quickly recovered himself, and after that raced through five games for the set, Murray during that time getting only six points. After the opening clash it was evident that Murray could not hope to stand against the brilliant and steady play by Tilden.

Pell's victory over Hayes showed the former at his best. For some strange reason Pell, without much practice, has been able to attain a proficiency that is comparable only with his play of 1914. With all of his shots working well he proved a powerful antagonist for the conqueror of Kumagae, sweeping through the first set at 6—2. He was the personification of steadiness and with it there was a sparkling quality to his work that made him well nigh invincible.

In the second set Hayes proved a stronger rival and carried the contest along at a merry clip before he was defeated. Pell was within a point of winning the match at 6—4, but Hayes succeeded in eventually winning the game to bring the set to deuce. Hayes, however, was unable to make his own service good for the vantage game, and lost the final game on Pell's service.

The summaries:

Men's Invitation Singles.—Semi-Final Round—Theodore Roosevelt Pell defeated Walter T. Hayes, 6—2, 7—5; William T. Tilden, 2d, defeated Robert Lindley Murray, 6—3, 6—3.

Taylor, 6—2, 6—1; Robert Lindley Murray and Theodore R. Pell defeated Henry B. O'Boyle and Alex Iler, 6—2, 6—4. Semi-Final Round—Hayes and Burdick defeated Murray and Pell, 7—5, 2—6, 6—4; Tilden and Richards defeated Throckmorton and Hall, 6—3, 6—4.

ACCIDENTS SPOIL GETAWAY.

Poughkeepsie Grand Circuit Races Marred by Falls.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Two accidents marred the getaway day at the Poughkeepsie Grand Circuit meeting. In the first heat of the 2:08 trot Gentry C., driven by Geers, caught his hoof in a boot coming down the home stretch, throwing Geers out. The sulky wheel of Opera Express ran over the fallen driver and Fleming was also thrown out, while Belle Stanford collided with Fleming's sulky and Halstead was thrown. All the drivers and horses escaped injury.

Kelly de Forest won the heat, but Opera Express took the next two and the race, beating Lord Stout by a head in the final heat.

The second accident came in the third heat of the 2:20 trot, when Anna Maloney caught her foot in a boot in the home stretch, throwing Deveson. He also escaped injury.

The surprise of the day occurred in the free-for-all trot, when Lu Princeton defeated St. Frisco. The Geers horse won the first heat handily in 2:03¾, but went to a break on the first turn in the second heat. Lu Princeton also made a break, but caught quickly and St. Frisco could never reach him. The time was again 2:03¾. Lu Princeton won the third heat by a neck in 2:05.

CUBS NEED TWO VICTORIES.

Pair of Triumphs Will Give Chicago League Pennant.

Secretary of War Baker yesterday received the communication from the National Commission requesting that the work or fight order be extended until Sept. 15, so far as they affect the baseball players who will participate in the world's series. It was learned officially at Washington that Secretary Baker will recommend to General Crowder that the request be granted. Official notification is expected from General Crowder today.

There is now no doubt that the Chicago Cubs will win the pennant in the National League. They have only two more games to win in order to make their victory over the Giants a mathematical certainty. The Giants have eleven games more to play, including the double-header on Labor Day. Chicago has fourteen more games to play. The Cubs now have a lead of ten and a half games on the Giants, and even if New York should win all their remaining eleven games, which is not at all likely, Chicago would have to win but two more games to clinch the flag.

The race is much closer in the American League, and it will be some days before the Red Sox lead over Cleveland is a certainty. Boston now has a lead of three games. They have won two more games and have lost four less than the Indians. As Cleveland is finishing up the season away from home and the Red Sox are playing out their schedule at home, there is only a slight possibility of Cleveland beating out Barrow's club.

President Johnson of the American League said in Chicago last night that the details for the series which were arranged at a special meeting of the National Commission at Cincinnati recently would probably be announced today. The games, according to the tentative plan, will begin on Sept. 4. The Chicago games may be played at Comiskey Park instead of at the North Side park of the Cubs, which has a seating capacity of only 16,500.

GIANTS BID CHICAGO SAD, TEARFUL ADIEU

Causey Explodes in Ninth and Cubs Snatch Victory by 3 to 2 Score.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Cecil Causey weakened in the ninth inning of today's game and the Cubs rushed two runs over the plate, giving them a 3 to 2 victory over the Giants in the last game of the year between these teams. For eight innings Causey got by rather nicely, though only sharp fielding behind him pulled him out of one or two tight places.

When the Cubs went to bat in the ninth and the Giants apparently had the game sewed up, Causey blew it away in short order. Phil Douglas hurled eight innings of the fray for the Cubs, retiring in favor of a pinch hitter in the Cubs' half of that frame, and Speed Martin worked the last inning for Mitchell's men. Rain fell intermittently throughout the pastime.

The Giants were the first to score, a scratch hit by George Burns starting them on their way to two runs in the sixth inning. Young followed Burns's hit by drawing a pass and Kauff slugged the ball down the left field foul line for two bases, scoring both men.

The Cubs pushed a run over the plate in their half of the same inning. After Douglas had been retired Flack doubled to left and went to third when Burns made a wild peg to head him off at the far corner. Hollocher then hoisted a sacrifice fly to Kauff, and Flack beat Benny's perfect throw to the plate by inches.

The score remained unchanged until the Cubs' half of the ninth, when Causey, who had allowed only five scattered hits, suddenly lost his grip. He hit Merkle with a pitched ball and Pick singled to right. A single to left by Charlie Deal filled the bases, and O'Farrel rapped a double to right centre, scoring Merkle and Pick.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—With two out in the last of the ninth, Strunk on second and Ruth on first, these two players worked a double steal and Strunk scored with the winning run, 6 to 5, on Catcher Severeid's poor throw to Maisel. GOOD NET SCORE BY HODGES

Those affiliated with the Metropolitan Advertising Golf Association competed in a variety of events at the Baltusrol Golf Club yesterday. About fifty-five members were on hand. The low gross prize in the morning was won by A. C. Perry with a score of 82. There were two net prizes, the first being won by Victor Whitlock, 96, 18—78, and the second by F. S. Newberry, 99, 20—79. Whitlock also won the War Savings Stamp competition with the same score.

In the afternoon the gross prize went to G. B. Martin with 86. M. Saunders won the first net with 99, 22—77, and S. C. Stevens finished second with 98, 18—80. Saunders also won the War Savings stamp competition in the afternoon. There was an all-day selected score event, eighteen out of the best thirty-six holes to count. This resulted in a tie between Don Parker and H. Y. Barrow, both returning 82.

The best selected net was won by G. T. Hodges, 84, 10—74. S. C. Stevens was second with 88, 12—76. Hodges and T. McIlroy were first in the four-ball competition, 82, 14—68. In the putting contest a tie resulted between G. B. Martin and D. L. Hedges, with 30.

Golf Cup to Tewksbury.

QUINCY, Mass., Aug. 23.—Paul Tewksbury today won permanent possession of the General Charles H. Taylor Trophy by defeating Eddie Lowery in the final round of the Boston Press Club golf tournament at the Wollaston Golf Club by 4 up and 3 to play. It was Tewksbury's third successive victory in the annual competition.

Howard Shades Smith.

Johnny Howard, who patrols a beat in Bayonne sometimes and at others follows the profession of fighting, last night shaded Jeff Smith, a former leading middleweight, in an eight-round bout at the Jersey City Baseball Park. Howard forced most of the fighting, and pleased the greater part of the crowd.

SUNNY SLOPE GETS DECISION BY A NOD

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 23.—With many of the turf stars reserved for the big events scheduled for tomorrow Jockey Johnny Loftus was the centre of interest at the race track today. This lad has just been reinstated by A. K. Macomber, to whom he is under contract, and when he made his first appearance since the Belmont meeting he was greeted with cheers that lasted throughout the parade. Loftus was mounted on J. E. Widener's Naturalist, the top weight in the Sagamore Handicap, and it was not until the end of the stand that he realized the continuous applause was meant for him. He lifted his cap then in acknowledgment of the unusual tribute, while many took the incident as a hunch and hurried to place a wager on Naturalist.

The confidence in Loftus was misplaced on this occasion, though it was a piece of ill-luck that cost him the race. Fairy Wand had set a terrific pace, with Naturalist following until the turn. There Loftus made his move, and just as Naturalist looked all over a winner, the horse swerved, and it was all the jockey could do to keep him from crashing through the fence. William Martin's Sunny Slope, the favorite, was three lengths back of Naturalist, but when the latter dropped out of contention, Sunny Slope came with a rush, and got up in time to beat the tiring Fairy Wand by a head.

Those who pinned their faith to Loftus were rewarded in the next race when his horsemanship roused Little Nearer to better speed than he has shown this season, the old horse coming away in the stretch to win by a length from Conduit over the distance of a mile and five-sixteenths. There might have been a different result but for N. K. Beal being put on the fence by Tokay when racing head and head in the back stretch. The foul was so palpable that Sande, who rode Tokay, was suspended for four days.

Little Nearer's time of 2:10 smashed to smithereens the track record of 2:13 4-5, made by Delhi in 1904, and is only two-fifths of a second slower than the American record standing to the credit of James R. Keene's Ballot. A warm day contributed to the further demolition of records, Harry Payne Whitney's Pigeon Wing beginning the attack on time by running five furlongs in 57 4-5, and wiping out the mark of 58 2-5, made by Eternal a week ago.

W. R. Coe's handsome sprinter showed his best form in the second race at six furlongs, when he carried 140 pounds and, after being badly hampered at the start, came on pluckily in the stretch to win by a length from Old Koenig in 1:10 2-5. This put Polymelian back on the record tables, as the time equaled that of Jyntee, made yesterday. In winning the Sagamore Sunny Slope also made remarkable time, turning the mile in 1.36 2-5.

ROGERS PEET
YOUR MONEY BACK IF YOU WANT IT

When a customer writes such a friendly letter and cites such a striking example of the sort of service we always try to give, why hide our light under a bushel?

"From boyhood I have been a reader and an admirer of your exceptional ads, both in the daily papers and theatre programs. Knowing that 'SERVICE' is one of the strong points in your ads, I thought you might be interested in knowing of my experience last Saturday, August 17th.

"It was quite necessary that I procure a new suit, but owing to conditions over which I had no control, it was impossible for me to get to your Warren Street Store before 11:48. I remarked to the salesman that it was rather an imposition on good nature to rush in at the last minute and try to get a suit in such a short time, and he replied that 'we can always close the store, but we can't always sell a suit.'

"To make a long story short, I walked out of the store at four minutes after twelve with a perfect-fitting suit and some incidentals from the haberdashery section. It goes without saying that I also carried a smile and the extreme gratification of being able to procure just what I wanted so quickly through the excellent service that your establishment renders."

COMMODITIES PRICES.

More Changes Shown in the Past Week Than for Some Time.

Local commodities prices varied more this week than for some time, and, according to Dun's list, showed a total of sixty changes. Of these thirty-three were advances, compared with twenty increases, in a total of forty revisions, last week. One of the features was the comparatively small number of fluctuations in the foodstuffs.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on forty-one standard commodities this week at this city, unless otherwise specified. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

There was a slight excess of declines in the foodstuffs this week, in spite of the upward trend of the general list. Spring 100 per cent. flour was off a little here, but the Winter grade showed no change. Bacon went up here, but hams were steady at the recent level. At Chicago live sheep and short ribs showed the only declines in the provisions market. Mess pork and live beef did not change, but advances were recorded by live hogs and Middle Western lard.

Advances were general in the dairy products. The better grades of butter and the best cheese advanced, while fancy nearby eggs moved up another 4 cents a dozen to a figure 12 cents a dozen higher than at this time last year. The best Western eggs also advanced. They went up 2 cents a dozen and are now 3 cents above the corresponding 1917 figure. Choice marrow and choice red kidney beans were lower in the vegetable list, as were onions. Rutabagas turnips advanced to a price per barrel that is four times as high as last year's. Potatoes did not change for the first time in many weeks. No changes in the fresh fruits in the list were seen, while the dried ones showed only a drop in citron and a rise in prunes.

No. 4 Santos coffee went up again, but No. 7 Rio was unchanged. The listed teas did not fluctuate, but in the spices declines were shown by mace and by black and white Singapore peppers. Corn and rye supplied the declines in the grains list, offsetting advances in malt and oats. Tallow advanced. Common Hudson River brick declined.

Eight of the fifteen listed changes in the drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils were advances. About the only feature was the drop of $10 a barrel in the price of Norwegian cod liver oil. The new price is $125 a barrel, compared with $115 at this time in 1917. In the paints, higher prices were quoted on American litharge, American red lead, dry white lead, and white lead in oil. The paper list contained a rise in M. F. book stock and declines in chip and straw boards.

For the first time in a long while neither advances nor declines were shown in the hide and leather lists, due, probably, to recent Government price-fixing activities in those fields. The revisions in the metals list consisted solely of a decline in tin and rises in spelter and ordinary antimony. The week's activities in the naval stores brought forth higher prices in resin and turpentine, the price of the latter recovering after a steady drop that lasted through several weeks.

The combination of a quiet market and less bullish news from abroad resulted in slightly weaker prices on the standard weights of burlaps here. With the busy season at hand, however, a recovery is looked for almost at once. Further revising by the Price Fixing Committee of the War Industries Board resulted in the adjustment of some more prices on cotton goods during the week. Among them were wide and bleached sheetings, medium sheetings, and brown drills.

Must Obtain Licenses for Export.

A long list of commodities which will hereafter be considered by the War Trade Board for exportation to Holland and Denmark proper, exclusive of their colonies, was made public yesterday, including automobiles, various drugs, cutlery, and numerous other articles. The announcement stated that these would "now" be considered for export, and through a typographical error, it appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES that the list would "not" be considered. Exporters of these commodities must obtain export licenses for shipments from the War Trade Board.

Dry Goods Trade Review.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 23.—Marshall Field & Company, in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say:

Shipments of dry goods for the week were very much in excess of the same period of 1917. Road sales for immediate delivery were larger than for the same week a year ago. Few lines are being offered for Spring delivery, and slightly fewer customers were in the market compared with the current week a year ago. Collections continue good.

The Coal Situation.

The danger of a serious shortage of household coal in this part of the country has become quite remote, Saward's Weekly will say today, because of the successful efforts to increase output and control distribution. Though there is still a vast accumulation of unfilled orders, these represent rather the approximate requirements of consumers from now to next April than any immediate needs. In the bituminous trade there is a fair supply of ordinary steam coal, but a shortage of the best grades of high and low volatile coal. Apparently the mines cannot turn out these special grades in sufficient quantities to meet all the ordinary and war requirements.

Woolens Nearly at Standstill.

Business in men's wear fabrics for next Spring is very nearly at a standstill. Now and then a mill may have a few pieces of cloth made from wool already on hand to offer to customers, and here and there resales of odd lots of fabrics from second hands may occur, but outside of such isolated cases very little business is being done. Those clothing manufacturers in need of goods for next Spring are, therefore, dependent on the efficiency of their buyers' methods of scouring the markets for whatever occasional offerings may be obtained.

Spring Shoe Business Develops.

A good deal of interest is developing in shoes for next Spring, and, according to reports from local representatives of New England factories, already quite some business has been placed. With the great conservatism manifested in all quarters in the matter of styles, retailers are not averse to early ordering, and quite a few road men are now out in their territories with Spring sample lines. It is said also that retail stocks the country over are rather low, and that there is still an active demand for Fall and Winter goods.

Gray Goods Buying Continues.

There was continued activity in the local market for gray goods yesterday, with interest broadening out into several constructions which have been more or less inactive up to now. Among the sheetings sold from first hands for September and October deliveries at Government prices were 36-inch 48 squares and 36-inch 48-40s. Sateens were fairly active, chiefly 38-inch 64-88s and 39-inch 64-104s for delivery in August and September. Among printcloths 38½-inch 44-40s were in demand. There was also some business in bandage cloths, 36-inch 32-28s figuring most prominently. From second hands there was considerable activity in printcloths for September and October delivery. The leading constructions in this business were 39-inch 68-72s at 19 cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 16¼ cents, and 39-inch 80 squares at 23 cents.

Jersey Fabrics in Fall Lines.

Jersey fabrics, which one manufacturer of prominence in the local trade goes so far as to say are destined to replace serges as a staple weave, are very much in evidence among those lines of women's suits and dresses which are selling best for the Fall season. Wool, silk and silk fibre jerseys are all prominently displayed, and each is getting its full quota of orders. They seem to be most popular in dresses of a tailored and semi-fitting type designed for house, street or business wear. Pepper and salt effects, red, tan, green and blue mixtures, as well as solid shades of all these colors, are high in favor.

Upper Leathers in Demand

There has been a substantial trade in upper leathers in the local market during the last few weeks, according to reports from authorities in this trade. They have been bought both for domestic use and for export. In black calfskins, the better grades of all weights and the low grades of the heavier weights have been quite active. Only the light weights in the low grades are comparatively neglected. In these some slight price concessions to get business have been noted. In the others, however, prices have held firm around the levels which have prevailed for some time.

Fabric Gloves Are Popular.

Fabric gloves for women are said to be selling, at retail as well as wholesale, in constantly increasing volume. Both silk and cotton lines are wanted in substantial quantities by retailers for immediate delivery to fill in stocks sadly depleted by a heavy Summer trade. Manufacturers, however, are not in position to make deliveries for some months to come, while supplies in the hands of jobbers and distributers are not over plentiful. Large orders also are being placed for delivery next Winter and Spring, and the prospects are that those will be very busy seasons.

Fall Business in Men's Ties.

Fall business in men's ties is making good progress, according to reports from manufacturers in this city. Though the number of ties sold shows a slight decline from the record of this same period a year ago, the total in dollars and cents, due to the higher prices now prevailing, is considerably above that in 1917. There seems to be about the same ratio between bright and subdued shades selling this year as last, but they are selling in different quarters. The retailer with the exclusive trade is sticking to the more subdued designs and darker colors, and the store catering to workers is going in more for striking effects and bright colors than ever before.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, reported by the Mercantile Exchange, 16,354 cases. The general conditions of the market are unchanged. New laid qualities continue very scarce and any shipments that contain a fair to large proportion of such are promptly taken at fully sustained prices, the highest grades still tending in sellers' favor. The medium and lower qualities are still pressing for sale, and there are liberal offerings of these for which holders are very anxious to find an outlet at any reasonable offer. Storage eggs are in good demand and firm. The actual tendency of the market is slightly in sellers' favor. Nearby white eggs are quieter, and buyers are more critical when paying top quotation. Some receivers have a surplus on hand of stock which has recently been salable at full prices. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 50@51c; regular packed, extra firsts, 47@49c; regular packed, firsts, 43@46c; seconds, 37@42c; poor to fair, 20@36c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 35@37c; No. 2 and poorer, 20@34c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 31@33c; under grades, 20@30c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery, whites, fine to fancy, 66@68c; ordinary to prime, 50@65c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 45@65c; Pacific Coast, whites, firsts to finest, 64@65c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 45@60c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery, browns, 52@55c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 38@51c; refrigerator, special marks, 43@53½c; firsts, 42@42½c.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

With a fair amount of activity, considering the restrictions under which the market is laboring, stocks developed a vigorous tone yesterday and closed higher, almost without exception. The rise in the rails was particularly gratifying as evidencing a return of confidence in the Government's disposition to meet the companies fairly in the matter of compensation and after-war adjustments. A direct explanation of the better demand for issues of this class was found in Director General McAdoo's statement that he was confident that the long-pending contract differences would be settled satisfactorily in the near future. It is high time that they were after eight months of negotiation.

As a class, the rails were preferred yesterday, but the entire list benefited from the inspiriting war news and the announcement that J. P. Morgan & Co. would begin next week lending money on call at the current rate for bankers' acceptances, where they are offered as security. The importance of this new departure in stimulating the acceptance market transcends its immediate relief to the money market. It is a logical extension of the advantages possible under the fullest use of the Federal Reserve Bank's facilities based on the approved banking practice in London.

As for the movement to obtain an opinion from the Federal Reserve Board which would serve as a guide to the proper policy to be pursued by the banks in lending upon Stock Exchange collateral there seems less need now than ever for a pronouncement. The Stock Exchange supplies a highly necessary function in the credit organization of the country and the existing facilities for restraining undue activity which might easily result if funds were available to finance it have worked admirably in holding transactions down nearly, if not quite, to the minimum necessary to support a genuine investment market.

The Cotton Exchange has rarely seen such a forward movement in a single session as resulted yesterday afternoon when the speculative short interest turned about and bid prices up on the unfavorable developments in the new crop situation. Net advances in futures at the end of the day ran from 263 to 282 points, with the maximum range close to the limit of 300 points fixed by the rules of trading. October, December, and January futures all sold up over 34 cents a pound at the height of the bidding.

LONDON MARKET FIRM.

Offers of Sound Securities Light—Mexican Stocks React.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Trading on the Stock Exchange was firm today with a meagre supply of high-class securities. Foreign stocks were steady, but foreign railroads were irregular. Guayaquil securities were two points lower.

Mexican issues reacted in sympathy with a sharp fall in Mexican Northwestern Railroad shares on a unsatisfactory statement of the company's affairs. Shipping shares were in good request and industrials were firm. Cement securities were active and the feature of the market. African land stocks were in good demand.

Money was quiet.

Paris Bourse Steady.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Prices were steady on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 62 francs 80 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 26 francs 75 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 87 francs 89 centimes.

JUDGMENT IN COTTON SUIT.

Demurrer on Ground That Brokers Failed to Pay Tax Set Aside.

In the suit to recover $12,620, with interest, brought by Edward F. Hutton and others, brokers and members of the New York Cotton Exchange, against Archibald S. Terrill, Judge Julius M. Mayer of the Federal District Court granted yesterday a motion made by the plaintiffs for judgment on the pleadings, because the defendant had unsuccessfully demurred to the causes of action set forth in the complaint. Sustaining the motion, Judge Mayer, however, grants leave to Mr. Terrill to answer within fifteen days, without costs.

The suit was brought to recover moneys alleged to have been expended for defendant's use and at his request in the purchase and sales of cotton for future delivery on the New York Exchange. Mr. Terrill in the demurrer asserted that the complaint failed to show that the provisions of the United States Cotton Futures act of 1916 had been complied with because it failed to allege that the stamp tax of 2 cents a pound of cotton purchased or sold was paid by the plaintiffs.

"When plaintiffs made purchases on the Cotton Exchange," Judge Mayer says, "they were obviously the persons to be charged under the statute so far either as the Government or the seller was concerned." He adds after considering the issue raised by Mr. Terrill in the demurrer, that the complaint failed to allege the payment of the Government stamp tax.

"Passing by without deciding plaintiffs' contentions that there is no allegation to justify the inference that the cotton sold was of the grade or standard taxable and that the provisions of Section 12 apply only to an action to recover on the contract itself as distinguished from an action to recover moneys expended for another's account, the demurrer is not good as a matter of pleading. It will be noted that the statute does not make the contract void, but only not enforceable in the courts of the United States. What the statute thus provides amounts at best to a defense or bar to recovery and must be pleaded by way of answer."

SUBSCRIBING TO BONDS.

Several Hundred Thousand Dollars Already Pledged for Fourth Loan.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Although the opening of the Fourth Liberty Loan is still more than a month off, several hundred thousand dollars in subscriptions already have been pledged to the loan by foreign language organizations in different parts of the country, according to reports to Hans Rieg, director of loan organizations among the foreign-born citizens. The Catholic Slovak Ladies' Union, meeting here yesterday, subscribed $100,000, and organized an active campaign among members for the loan drive. The union also "condemned as unpatriotic all so-called peace talk and criticism of the officials of our Government."

The Slovenian Catholic Union has pledged $100,000 of organization funds for Fourth Liberty bonds. Croatians of New York City, Calumet, Mich., and Detroit, and the Jugoslav National Council report organization of special soliciting committees for the Fourth Liberty Loan.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Retail trade as it concerns civilian consumers has taken on a less favorable aspect during the last week, according to Bradstreet's, due to the conservation resultant from unfavorable crop conditions in some quarters of the country and the prospect that many men will shortly be called into military service through the second draft.

"On the other hand," the mercantile agency continues, "war's requirements keep on expanding, the passing of extremely hot weather in the East has enabled outputs to be speeded up, and less-essential industries continue to be relegated to the background or are forced to take up war work where possible. Most markets, outside of those catering to the South, indicate that buyers are not so numerous as at this time last year, and, in a collective sense, the disposition is to buy sparingly—in a word, to shop more frequently."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Securities Committee Expands.

Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, and Charles S. Sargent, Jr., of Kidder, Peabody & Co., have been added to the recently appointed Foreign Securities Committee of the Investment Bankers Association of America. Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. is Chairman.

American Smelting Earnings.

The American Smelting and Refining Company earned more than $10 a share on the common stock in the first half of 1917. The statement for the same period this year is expected soon, and should supply an interesting contrast of figures with those of 1917, in view of the alteration of operating conditions which has occurred. There was no fixed selling price for copper in the first half of last year, wages and materials costs were much lower, and labor was more plentiful than it has been since Jan. 1. Some of the porphyry properties have reported an increase of more than 70 per cent. in the cost of "making" copper in the quarter ended June 30, as compared with the record a year before. The American Smelting and Refining, assisted by its various by-product lines, probably did not suffer so heavy an increase as this, but it is not expected that the balance for the common stock will be as large as in the first six months of 1917. Factors whose influence on profits cannot yet be estimated were the income and costs of its smelting and refining operations on custom contracts and the reservation for war profits.

Oil Stocks Decline.

Stocks of petroleum in the midcontinent and Eastern oil fields decreased 1,378,458 barrels in July. In June and July together stocks were drawn down 2,346,974 barrels. In these figures is supplied a reason why oil companies are hastening operations for new production as rapidly as possible.

The Mexican Oil Situation.

Stocks of companies with holdings of oil lands in Mexico have displayed little unrest among owners this week because of uncertainty over the Mexican Government's attitude toward taxation and the status of leases. Mexican Petroleum shares have been firm and Standard Oil Company shares have not changed appreciably. An influence, probably, is the fact that there have been numerous differences between the Mexican Government and American concerns doing business south of the border during the last three years, without unfavorable results of a drastic nature.

All Calculations at Sea.

The wisest old heads in the cotton trade have often had to confess, in the last year, that their calculations had been all askew, but such confession was more nearly universal after yesterday's market than ever before. Even the men who had been bullish were dumfounded by such an amazing rise. "I used to think I knew something about cotton," said one veteran member of the Exchange, "but now I know I don't know anything." One explanation went back to the last wild days of the wheat pit in the Summer of 1917, and suggested that some of the allied Governments have been buying cotton in huge quantities, unobserved by the market.

Where the Speculators Were.

It is likely that the sensational rise in cotton will add force to the outcry against the "specualtors" in the staple. But the speculators responsible for the rise are not on the cotton exchanges. Just as during the big bull movement last year, the speculative element has fought the market all the way up; sold it down at every opportunity, but has been helpless in the face of more powerful influences. Consequently an advance that might have been evenly distributed over a week or more has been held back until it could be withstood no longer. Between the manufacturer who has already marked up his prices to a point that would give him a profit on prices 10 cents a pound higher for raw cotton, and the farmer to whom every advance means only encouragement to hold out for a still higher figure, the mere market speculator cuts a small figure.

Railroad Stocks Popular.

For no apparent reason, it was almost a railroad market yesterday. Canadian Pacific provided the leading sensation, gaining 5 points, but St. Paul made 1⅝, New York Central 1⅛, Norfolk & Western 1, Reading 1¼, Union Pacific 1½, and other rails gained in proportion. There was no news regarding the railroad contract negotiations, but the general feeling appears to have grown steadily more optimistic.

GOLD MINES REPORT DEFICIT

Alaska Company Hopes for Relief from Government.

The Alaska Gold Mines Company reports a deficit for the June quarter amounting to $14,248. The gross value of the products sold was $294,691, a decline of $282,925 from the same period last year. Operating expenses absorbed $303,274, and in place of an income of $7,714 from outside sources in the second quarter of 1917, there was a loss from similar operations of $5,665. In the June quarter last year the company had a profit of $114,234.

Charles Hayden, President, said in the quarterly statement yesterday that operations were hampered by lack of competent labor and a steadily increasing cost of supplies.

"These conditions, uniformly true of all gold mines," he added, "have been brought to the attention of the proper Government officials, and it may be that some relief will be afforded the industry in the near future."

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Members of the New York Cotton Exchange yesterday voted to declare Saturday, Aug. 31, an extra holiday.

The City Treasurer of Lynn, Mass., yesterday sold to S. N. Bond & Co. $100,000 of notes in anticipation of taxes, maturing Nov. 26, at 4.14 per cent. discount, plus a premium of 55 cents.

The Chile Copper Company produced 7,556,000 pounds of copper in July, compared with 9,280,000 pounds in June and 7,506,000 pounds in May.

MORGAN WILL LOAN UPON ACCEPTANCES

Banks and Trust Companies Expected to Join in Developing an Active Market.

MONEY AT 4½ PER CENT.

Initial Rate Will Be Charged Instead of 6 Per Cent. Now Ruling on Stock Exchange.

What bankers declared to be the most important step taken in connection with the development of an active discount market in this country since the establishment of the Federal Reserve Banks was the action of J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday in announcing that beginning on Monday the firm would make call loans based on eligible acceptances at a preferential rate, one considerably lower than the prevailing market rate for call loans based on Stock Exchange collateral. Following the leadership of the Morgan firm in establishing an "acceptance call money" rate, it is expected that a number of the larger banks and trust companies will undertake to make such loans and thus facilitate the development of a free and active market in acceptances eligible for rediscount at the Federal Reserve Bank.

The initial rate fixed for acceptance call money is 4½ per cent., compared with 6 per cent., the prevailing call money rate for Stock Exchange loans; but, of course, this rate will not remain stationary, but will fluctuate in accordance with the supply of funds and the demand for accommodations.

J. P. Morgan said that he had decided upon the policy of lending money on acceptances at preferential rates in order to encourage the use of bankers' and trade acceptances, and create a broad market for them. The acceptance call money rate, he said, would make possible the growth of the acceptance market, which is so necessary for the development of the financing of the nation's domestic and foreign business along sound banking principles. He thought the innovation would be complementary to the efforts of the established and proposed discount companies in building up in the United States a broad market for commercial bills.

Available for Short Periods.

Mr. Morgan explained that it was expected that funds put out on acceptances would be those which banks and banking houses had available for short periods. In the event that the lending institution found it necessary to call in loans it would first demand the liquidation of loans based on acceptances and defer the calling of Stock Exchange loans. For this reason he thought that the present condition of the money market would be strengthened inasmuch as the likelihood of calling Stock Exchange loans would be considerably reduced if all institutions buttressed these so-called secondary reserves by a line of acceptance call loans. The banker mentioned the fact that while at present he would be reluctant to call a Stock Exchange loan, knowing that it would have to be transferred to another institution, and in so doing create a slight strain on the general money situation, he would have no hesitancy whatever in calling an acceptance demand loan because the borrower could promptly go to the Federal Reserve Bank and either sell the acceptances or rediscount them. Such sale or rediscount would not disturb the money market in the least.

Although in a few exceptional cases, discount companies and bill brokers have been able to obtain loans on acceptances at 4½ and 5 per cent., it has been customary for banks to charge 6 per cent. for such accommodations. This high rate for loans has prevented a development of the acceptance market, for when a broker must pay 6 per cent. for accommodations he cannot swing bills quoted at 4¼ and 4½ per cent. It frequently happens that dealers in acceptances find that the market is against them and consequently they elect to defer the sale of acceptances which they may have on hand. In such cases it is necessary for them to borrow money to carry the bills. With the call rate at 6 per cent., such transactions can only be consummated at a loss, while if the rate is 4½, the dealers can afford to carry the bills until such time as the market becomes more favorable.

Bankers commended J. P. Morgan & Co. for taking the initiative in establishing the acceptance call money rate. They said that it was the only thing lacking in the machinery that had been set up in this country with the view of making New York an international bill market like London and Paris. They pointed out that if America was to retain the financial position it has attained by reason of the European war, it was essential for the bankers to take a broad and farsighted view of the banking situation and guide their steps accordingly, even though it may mean a small monetary loss here and there. Stress was placed on the fact that a bank which refused to put out money on acceptances at 4½ per cent., just because it could get 6 per cent. by investing in Stock Exchange loans, would be adopting an extremely narrow policy. It was suggested that banks should carry a line of both classes of demand loans.

Low Rates in London.

In London, the call money rate is 2¾ per cent. This rate is based on commercial bills and acceptances. The rate for Stock Exchange call loans, of which there are an exceedingly small volume by reason of the fact that settlements are made fortnightly, is 6 per cent. The 2¾ per cent. acceptance call loan rate has been very helpful to London, for low rates attract business. After the war London and New York will compete for commercial bills and acceptances required for financing foreign trade, and the acceptance call money rate will, it is said, exert a controlling influence in the distribution of the paper. The market which offers the best facilities and the most favorable rates will naturally command the business.

Another advantage of the acceptance call rate is that banks outside of New York City will no longer invest their surplus funds in New York Stock Exchange loans, but will place all or part of such surplus funds into acceptance loans. They may effect these transactions either locally or through their New York correspondents. At present, when an out-of-town bank finds need for its money it instructs its New York correspondent to call its loans. This sometimes creates an uneasiness in the money market, especially if the amount involved is large. On the other hand, if the out-of-town institution has acceptance loans and suddenly calls them, the borrower can take the bills to the Federal Reserve Bank for sale or rediscount. In such cases the money market is not hurt.

In case of Stock Exchange collateral loans, the banks require a safe margin; but in case of prime acceptances no margin will be required and the loans will be made for the full face value.

Wool Situation Unchanged.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"So far as the domestic wool situation is concerned, there is no change from the routine which has been the rule for the past few weeks, valuations going forward on the new clip with the utmost expedition and payments being made by the Government. Reports to the National Association of Wool Manufacturers show less activity at mills but a larger percentage of the active machinery engaged on war orders."

COTTON ADVANCES 290 POINTS IN A DAY

NEW PRICE RECORD REACHED

In one of the wildest and most sensational bull markets that ever occurred within the compass of a single day on the New York Cotton Exchange, cotton prices yesterday went up, at the maximum, 290 points, or $14.50 a bale, and closed virtually at the top figures of the day, with the market still strong, for net gains of 263 to 282 points. Had bidding gone only 10 points further in October, the leading future contract month, it would have been necessary to discontinue trading, as this would have represented the limit of advance permitted in a single session under the rules of the Exchange. The rule has not been so threatened before since it was adopted.

Not only did the closing prices represent, by a wide margin, new high records in prices for the current season, but in all but the late and inactive months they were the highest ever reached in future contracts in the history of the Cotton Exchange. October, actually selling at 34.90 cents a pound, its top price, was 40 points over the highest record ever before made by any contract for future delivery. On April 4 last 34.50 was paid for May contracts at the crest of the big bull movement, just before its collapse, but this came near the close of a full season of steady advances in price. Nothing like yesterday's sensational advance, in the first month of the new season had ever been seen before.

Explanations Hard to Find.

Explanations of the cause of the rise were hard to find, most veteran cotton men confessing themselves baffled by the sudden turn of the market. It had been a general opinion around the ring for some days that the market was getting in a dangerously oversold condition, and that any bad crop news might cause trouble, but such crop news as there was yesterday was on the whole favorable, and at the opening the big short element was still hopeful of breaking the market. When the advance came, it caught not only the speculative element, but the big spot houses short of contracts, with, it was rumored after the close, disastrous results.

One theory which found some favor was based on a parallel drawn with the last days of the wheat market in the Summer of 1917. At that time the speculative element had been persistently selling wheat short, on the theory that the price was unnaturally high, and bound to break. Instead, they found presently that representatives of the Allied Governments, under orders to buy every bushel of grain offered in the market at any cost, had been buying in their offerings as fast as made, and there was actually no wheat to be had anywhere in the country to meet the demand. In the sequel wheat went above $3 a bushel, and Food Administrator Hoover closed the market. Arguing from the similar behavior of the cotton market yesterday, some observers contended that representatives of the Allies, seeing peace in sight, and ample tonnage to move cotton next year, had been trying to get in ahead of the market by quietly buying in everything offered, and had swept the market bare of contracts, with disastrous results not only for speculative shorts, but for domestic and some export trade buyers, who had been selling recently in hope of "scalping" the price to themselves on the expected big crop, and who now found themselves obliged to go into the market and cover their needs at any price.

Many Panicky Rumors.

The course of the market was not the least peculiar feature. The opening was quiet, with prices only up from 12 to 25 points, and this was immediately lost in a recession which brought the list down to and even below Thursday's close. For the first hour and more the market was actually dull, but gradually picking up and gathering strength as it advanced. Then a succession of panicky rumors about the crop made their way about the ring. It was rumored that the National Ginners' Association would put the crop condition at 57 per cent., a deterioration of 16 points in a month, and utterly unprecedented at this season of the year. Reports persisted of highly unfavorable private crop advices, amounting almost to failure, and cutting down the expected yield by several million bales. And with the appearance of these rumors the market woke up and began to soar.

In the first rush prices advanced from 140 to 150 points, carrying the entire list into new high ground for the season. At this point, however, an abundance of fresh offerings from the South and from Wall Street appeared, and although the bidding continued active and eager, offerings overmatched it, and there were recessions of 10 or 15 points. The reaction was only temporary, however. Within another hour the demand had worked through all these new offerings, no more were to be had, and for the last hour the ring was the scene of wild excitement, with brokers four or five deep clamoring for contracts, and prices jumping 5 and 10 points to the sale.

MAGAZINES TO SAVE PAPER.

Tonnage Consumed to be Cut 10 Per Cent. Under New Rules.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The War Industries Board, through its Pulp and Paper Section, made public today its regulation for the control of paper used in the production of all periodicals entered at the Post Office Department as second class mail matter, with the exception of newspapers and agricultural publications, which are made the subject of special regulations.

These regulations, which cover magazines generally, are made effective for weekly periodicals Sept. 15, and for bimonthlies and quarterlies which are put on sale subsequent to Oct. 2. Inability to comply with the regulations, because of mechanical reasons, by the dates proposed must be set forth in letters to be filed with Thomas E. Donnelley, Chief of the Pulp and Paper Section.

The regulations fix the weights of paper that may be used by periodicals, while allowing the consumption of stocks of heavier paper on hand; suggest specific methods for curtailment in tonnage from that used last year and add an arbitrary reduction of 10 per cent. on average tonnage, with no guarantee of adequate supply under the reduced tonnage; suggest discontinuance of many alleged wasteful practices and also the selling of advertising with a guarantee of circulation, requiring a rebate if the circulation falls below the guaranteed amount.

Spens to Control Grain Exports.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—All transportation permits for export grain and grain products will be subject hereafter to the approval of C. E. Spens, manager of inland traffic of the Food Administration. This action was taken jointly by the Railroad Administration and the Exports Control Committee in order to prevent port congestion and speed up transportation. WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—No definite information has been received in the last twenty-four hours respecting the tropical disturbance in the Caribbean, but it is believed that it is approaching Jamaica and will pass that island some time Saturday.

Barometric conditions in the United States have not changed materially. Pressure continues high on the North Pacific Coast and thence inland to the Missouri Valley. The Atlantic Coast high is rapidly diminishing in intensity. Scattered rains have occurred in North Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and Illinois. Temperature has varied irregularly, being slightly warmer in the northern portion of the middle Atlantic States and considerably cooler in the Middle Mississippi Valley and Eastern Kansas.

Generally fair weather is probable during the next forty-eight hours in practically all parts of the Washington forecast district except in Northern New England and the East Gulf States, where showery conditions are indicated.

There will be no material change in temperature except along the lower lakes, where somewhat cooler weather may be expected.

Winds for Saturday and Sunday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coasts will be moderate southwest to south, fair; South Atlantic Coast, moderate east to south, fair.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York and Southern New England—Fair Saturday and probably Sunday; not quite so warm Sunday.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Saturday and Sunday.

Northern New England—Probably local thundershowers and not so warm Saturday; Sunday, partly cloudy.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

9 A. M.	71	72	9 P. M.	73	80
12 M.	74	80	11 P. M.	73	72

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 78; for the corresponding date last year it was 71; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 72. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 69; at 8 P. M. it was 82. Maximum temperature 88 degrees at 4 P. M., minimum 68 degrees at 7 A. M. Humidity 88 per cent. at 8 A. M., 57 per cent. at 8 P. M. The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.08 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.00 inches.

SAW 2 OTHER MEN IN CAR OF SLAIN PAIR

SHOTS CAME FROM BEHIND

Police Believe Person Sitting in Tonneau Fired Them—Still Work on Jealousy Theory.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Aug. 23.—August L. Kupfer, Superintendent of the Perth Amboy Cigar Factory, and Miss Edith Janny, young cashier of the Hotel [illegible], who were shot to death in Kupfer's automobile in Rahway, N. J., early Thursday morning, were in the Highland Park Hotel, near New Brunswick, from midnight to 1:15 o'clock Thursday morning.

This fact was established today by Chief of Police Burke of Perth Amboy and County Detective Galatian of Elizabeth. There is a conflict between the statements of two men who saw the couple. Chief Bedford of Highland Park declared there was a second man, wearing a light suit, in the party. But Rudolph Osterwald, proprietor of the Highland Park Hotel, stated positively they were alone all the time while in his place.

The shooting occurred about an hour after the pair left the Highland Park Hotel. It would require that much time to reach Rahway, the police said, if the car was driven slowly or if they took a circuitous road.

Could Recognise Voice.

The Rev. Dr. Frank Moore, Superintendent of the New Jersey Reformatory, in front of whose home the double murder was committed, reported to the police that he was positive two men besides Kupfer and Miss Janny were in the car when the shots were fired. One of the men he remembered wore a light suit, and Dr. Moore said he would be able to recognize anywhere the voice, which said:

Dr. Moore thought at first this referred to the body of the girl, and it was not until he went out to the front of his house that Kupfer's body was found near the gutter.

It was shown at the autopsy in Rahway today that the shots were fired from behind, and that both victims were killed by bullets fired, the police think, by a person sitting in the tonneau of the machine. The police investigated a report that Miss Janny had been married two months ago to a man now in military service in France, and had been keeping this a secret. In a small wrist watch she wore, however, a miniature photograph of Kupfer was found.

The police will question tomorrow Isaac Saxe and Mrs. Genevieve Hendrickson of Perth Amboy, both of whom were left at their homes by Kupfer at 11 o'clock on Thursday night. The police are of the opinion that neither of these persons in the excitement incident to telling their story after the crime was discovered was able to recall all the facts.

Still Stick to Jealousy Theory.

The energies of the detectives are centred on the theory that the murders were committed by some one who was jealous of Miss Janny's alleged preference for Kupfer. Employes in the cigar factory recalled an incident which occurred when Kupfer was driving on a street in Perth Amboy recently. He pointed to a man walking near by, according to the story, and said:

"That fellow will get me some day. He's got it in for me. I'm not to blame, but he's got it in for me, and he'll get me."

An effort is being made to find this man.

M. A. McCoy, a structural iron contractor of Perth Amboy, told of hearing an altercation between Miss Janny and an unidentified man in the dining room of the Hotel Madison a week ago last Sunday at noon. The man talked in a loud voice, which McCoy could not help overhearing. He told Miss Janny she was not treating him right, and complained she had "thrown him down" for another man who had money. He accused her of "thinking too much" of his rival because he had money, McCoy said.

Kupfer's two-carat diamond ring, said to have been valued at $600, and at first believed to have been stolen by the murderer, was sold by Kupfer more than a week ago, the police learned today. Whether he was robbed of money has not been determined. The police found $0.35 in his clothes. While Kupfer usually carried a good deal of money with him, it is not known how much he had when he left Perth Amboy Wednesday night.

It was established today that the small hand mirror found in the bottom of the automobile belonged in the car and that the powder puff with it was owned by Miss Janny.

MRS. MELLEN ASKS DECREE.

Accuses the Former Railroad President of Cruelty.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Katherine L. Livingstone Mellen of Stockbridge today filled suit here for a divorce from Charles S. Mellen, former President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company. Cruel and abusive treatment and attempts to damage her reputation were charged.

Mr. Mellen recently began proceedings for a separation and a hearing had been set for Sept. 10. In his plea he referred to letters alleged to have passed between Mrs. Mellen and a New York hotel man and charged her with desertion. The Mellens were married at Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1893.

Mrs. Mellen alleges that on Nov. 18, 1916, and June 7, 1917, her husband "struck, beat, kicked and bruised your libellant to her great injury" and that he had made false and cruel charges against her "and cruelly and wantonly attempted to defame her and disgrace her to her great injury."

The petition asks that his real and personal estate be attached to the amount of $500,000 for the support of Mrs. Mellen and four minor children.

POLICE GAMES NET $250,000 IN ADVANCE

Department Prepares for 150,000 Spectators at Sheepshead Bay Exhibition Today.

Records for attendance at an open-air event in this country will be broken at the police games at Sheepshead Bay this afternoon, according to the calculations of those in charge of the event. There will be more than 1,500 participants in the games, and arrangements have been made to take care of 150,000 spectators. Deputy Commissioner Wallis, in charge of the exhibition, said yesterday that approximately $250,000 had already been netted by the sale of tickets.

Forty-two army airplanes will perform in the air. Among the events on the ground will be a sham battle, in which a cavalry charge on an intrenched position will take place. Thousands of rounds of blank ammunition will be fired.

The money raised will go toward equipping and maintaining the volunteer police reserve, an auxiliary numbering more than 9,000 men and 5,000 women, serving several hours a week without pay and subject to a general call to aid the city in case of emergency. The order of events for this afternoon follows:

Inspector Dwyer, in making the appointment, sent a letter recognizing Mr. Franko's services in the Home Defense League and the Police Reserves.

MAYOR LIMITS AUTO USE.

Mayor Hylan sent a letter yesterday telling John H. Delaney, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, who has charge of the municipal garage, not to allow Magistrates sitting in the night courts to use city automobiles. In his letter the Mayor said:

"I want you to discontinue the use of automobiles by any Magistrate in the city from the municipal garage. I was a Magistrate, sat in the Night Court in New York, and I never found any necessity for having a city automobile, and never was molested by anybody. A Magistrate gets a good salary, and if he wishes to ride home in an automobile let him hire one."

The Mayor also wrote to W. M. Bridges, editor of The Challenge Magazine, who sent a protest to the Mayor against landlords and agents demanding excessively high rents in the negro section of Harlem. Such action, Mr. Bridges said, is causing a large death rate. In his letter the Mayor wrote:

"If a list could be published of these landlords who are profiteering by demanding exorbitant rents, in many instances from those whose boys are in the war, who refuse to rent their apartments to people because they have children or because there are more than two in the family, it would go a long way toward preventing unpatriotic action on the part of some landlords."

BOOST JEWISH RECRUITING.

British Mission and Heads of Zionist Organization Join Forces.

Members of the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission and members of the Zionist Organization of the United States had luncheon together at the City Club yesterday afternoon and discussed means for recruiting the Jewish brigade now fighting with the British Army under General Allenby in Palestine. Two battalions already have been recruited in New York and vicinity. The recruits are sent first to Canada for preliminary training and then to England for the finishing before going to the Holy Land.

It is understood between these recruits and the British Government that, when the war is over, they may remain in Palestine if they choose, take up land, and make new homes for themselves in the ancient land of their fathers. So far the recruiting has been done among those who would not be taken in the United States draft. It was the opinion of those who attended the luncheon that nothing should be done that might interfere with filling the United States Army under the prospective new draft law.

It came out at the luncheon that the British are recruiting 3,000 men here for service in Siberia. British nationals are wanted for the infantry, artillery, and the engineers. One young British Lieutenant present remarked that he could imagine no more exhilarating service than to bowl through Siberia on an armored car, taking pot shots at Bolsheviki.

COURT PUTS TRAVIS BACK UPON TICKET

KISSEL TO TAKE AN APPEAL

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down a decision last night reversing the order of Supreme Court Justice Cropsey, who had held that the petition of State Controller Eugene M. Travis, who is seeking a renomination from the Republican Party, was invalid because it had not been properly certified.

Justice Cropsey held that the petitions of Controller Travis did not entitle him to enter the primaries because the notaries who had acknowledged the signatures on the petitions had not been authenticated by the County Clerks in the various counties where the petitions were circulated. The Appellate Division held that the authentication by County Clerks was not necessary.

John Kissel, an opponent of Travis for the Republican nomination, who brought the action to restrain Travis from running in the Republican primaries, said last night that he would take the case to the Court of Appeals.

An appeal was filed yesterday with the Appellate Division by the Board of Elections asking to have declared illegal the designating petition of Anna Kraft of 1,004 Trinity Avenue, the Bronx. It was stated that the number of the district in which Miss Kraft intended to run did not appear in her petition.

Nathan D. Perlman, representing the regular Republican organization of the Sixth Assembly District, of which Samuel S. Koenig is leader, appeared before Supreme Court Justice Ford yesterday in support of motions to compel the Board of Elections to strike from the list of candidates for County Committeemen, to be printed on the primary elections ballots, the names of thirteen men and women who were nominated by Committees on Substitution to take the places of former candidates who had "refused to run." The nominations, Mr. Perlman said, had been effected without their consent or even knowledge, and they were anxious to keep their names off the ballots. Justice Ford reserved decision.

When Attorney General Merton E. Lewis learned yesterday that Governor Whitman had come to New York to spend the last week of his campaign here, he said:

"This is encouraging. Perhaps he contemplates while here telling the enrolled Republican voters what he thinks of the subway situation. It is to be hoped that he will tell them why he favors the ratification of the prohibition amendment without giving the voters a chance to vote upon it. Perhaps he will tell them what Brisbane said to him at the Hotel St. Regis. The subway situation particularly is pertinent. The Governor has it in his power to order an investigation of the Public Service Commission and to find out why, with an expenditure of upward of $3,000,000 a year for the maintenance of the commission and its organization, the shuttle system should have been so badly designed as to result in its complete failure when opened to the public."

Mr. Lewis did not take seriously the declaration of Representative W. W. Cocks, manager of the Whitman campaign, that the Governor would carry every county in the State, with the possible exception of Albany County.

Mr. Lewis will make twelve campaign speeches in five days next week. He will spend four nights in Manhattan and one in Brooklyn.

SILK TRADE "OVER TOP."

Its $100,000 Sale in W. S. S. Drive Helps $1,200,000 Day.

With more than $100,000 worth of stamps disposed of in the first day of the drive, the silk trade salesmen of the city were the first "over the top" yesterday in the campaign which the National Council of Traveling Salesmen is waging to sell $25,000,000 worth of War Savings Stamps by Aug. 29. Although $100,000 had represented the entire quota underwritten by the Silk Committee of the Pioneer Division, they expected to reach $250,000 this evening.

From all reports received yesterday at the Council headquarters at 1,246 Broadway, it was said that the $25,000,000 goal would be reached by next Thursday, if not exceeded. The next best record to that of the silk trade was achieved by the embroidery salesmen with $75,000 to their credit. P. K. Wilson & Sons, 130 Fifth Avenue, led in this trade with $7,000 worth of stamps.

The banner house in the silk trade was Samuel Eiseman & Co., 114 East Twenty-third Street, whose salesmen turned in $10,000. The Wholesale Clothiers, under Charles W. Endel, Chairman, reported $48,000 on Thursday and expected to go over $100,000 last night. Late returns raised the sales on Thursday to $1,200,000.

McADOO ON TRAFFIC TOUR.

Secretary Highly Satisfied with Progress of Improvements.

Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, accompanied by a party of railroad men, spent six hours yesterday in an inspection of the Jersey City railroad and dock terminals. Mr. McAdoo expressed himself as highly satisfied with the progress of improvements inaugurated there.

Much of the inspection was devoted to the developments at Weehawken, Mr. McAdoo observing with keen interest the work being done in the new yard extensions. He made a close scrutiny of the terminal facilities of the Pennsylvania, the Lehigh Valley, the Lackawanna, and the Erie. Included in the party were Regional Director Martin of the Delaware & Lackawanna, Erie, and Pennsylvania lines, A. J. Stone, Federal Manager of the Erie, and E. M. Ryan, Federal Manager of the Delaware & Lackawanna Railroad.

BARS THE IRISH WORLD.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 23.—The Irish World was put on the banned list of newspapers here at a meeting of the Directors of the Greenwich Bureau of Business Affairs held last night.

A committee composed of James E. Quan, Robert L. Chamberlain, and A. W. W. Marshall was appointed some time ago to see that no German newspapers were sold in Greenwich. The committee waited on the local newsdealers, who agreed to discontinue offering the newspapers printed in the German language for sale. The principal newsdealer in town, it was reported last night, was still selling the German papers as well as The Irish World. The committee will act at once. If the practice is not stopped, one merchant who is a Director of the bureau says he will start an independent stand.

FIRM ON OIL DECREE.

Companies Operating in Mexico See No Change in Her Attitude.

The American and British petroleum interests in Mexico do not expect that the Mexican Government's modifications of the recent decree in respect to taxing of foreign owned or foreign operated oil wells in the Mexican Republic will result in anything but enforcement of the original decree in a little different form, according to advices received in New York.

The original decree, promulgated on July 31, required that the oil companies file statements showing from whom the properties were purchased, or leased, and all other material facts regarding ownership or leasehold.

Practically all the companies refused to obey, and the United States Department of State sent a strong note to the Carranza Government protesting against the enforcement of the decree. On Aug. 12 the decree was modified to the extent that companies having invested money in Mexican petroleum properties for the purpose of development need not file the statement called for, but must pay a regular bi-monthly tax of 50 per cent. on royalties paid on output. The royalty paid by the operator to the owner of the real estate in which the well is sunk is usually one-eighth of the output of the well. Therefore the Mexican Government demands one-sixteenth of the output of each foreign-controlled well.

The penalty for violation of the modified, as well as of the original, decree, is a declaration by the Government that the claims of the operators to the properties shall be void. That would mean virtual confiscation of millions of dollars invested by American and British citizens, and this, the operators of the properties believe, the Mexican Government has in mind to do, notwithstanding the modification of the original decree.

If that were done, the Carranza Government could, if it chose—and the operators believe it would not hesitate to make such a choice—cut off the supply of Mexican petroleum to the Entente Allies. Not long ago, Mr. Requa of the Oil Administration in Washington said that the Allies and the United States needed 90,000 barrels of Mexican oil a week.

The principal operating oil companies in Mexico, controlled by foreign capital, are the Aguila Oil Company, controlled by Lord Cowdray and his associates; the Mexican Petroleum Company, controlled by Edward L. Doheny of Los Angeles, Cal., and his associates, and the Penn-Mex. Fuel Company, which is controlled by Pittsburgh capital. The Standard Oil Company has comparatively small interests in Mexico, as has the Texas Company. The Gulf Refining Company and the Royal Dutch Oil Company also operate Mexican wells.

DEPTH BOMB KILLS FOUR ON ORIZABA

SEVERAL OTHERS WOUNDED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The explosion of a depth charge on board the United States steamship Orizaba on Aug. 17 killed Lieut. Commander William Price Williamson and three enlisted men, and wounded Commander R. D. White and eighteen men. Commander White was thrown to the deck. He suffered a broken jaw and fractured kneecap. Lieutenant John C. Tyler was injured in the knee, chest, and elbow. The others were only slightly injured.

The enlisted men killed were S. T. Lambert, oiler, of Riverside, N. J.; Frank J. Mayer, baker, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Arthur K. Baird, seaman, of Pittsburgh, Penn.

Secretary Daniels has ordered a court of inquiry to investigate. He said that the department's reports said no material damage was done the vessel.

Although severely wounded, Commander White made a report in which he praised the officers and men for their conduct.

"I wish to invite attention to the remarkable behavior of the officers and men immediately subsequent to this explosion," he said. "About ninety minutes later a submarine was sighted coming from abaft the port beam. In spite of the fact that half of the after gun crews had been hurt and that there was every reason for demoralization, the guns were promptly manned and were ready to fire almost immediately.

"I wish especially to invite attention to the work of Surgeons Winn, Skillern, and Krepps. These officers worked incessantly from the time of the explosion until daybreak next morning. The most modern methods were employed, and many men who might have suffered serious consequences were about the decks next day, manning their guns. So far there has not been a single case of infection.

"Finally, I wish to say on the ship that I have never known such spirit to exist in any of my previous service. Officers and men alike have risen to their responsibilities in a manner truly amazing. There has been a splendid spirit of loyalty and co-operation."

Lieutenant Commander William Price Williamson was a son of the late Rear Admiral Thomas Williamson, who served on the staff of Admiral Farragut in the civil war. A brother, Thomas Williamson, Jr., paymaster in the navy, is serving on a transport. The officer also is survived by his wife, mother, and four sisters.

Commander Williamson was born at Norfolk Aug. 10, 1884, while his father was stationed at the navy yard. He entered the Naval Academy as a midshipman in 1903, and was graduated in 1906. He became Ensign in 1908, and Junior Lieutenant in 1910. He was promoted to Lieutenant in 1914, and in 1916 served as Inspector of Ordnance in the naval magazine at Alongapo, Philippines. He remained there until he was ordered aboard the Orizaba as Lieutenant Commander and executive officer.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—An increase in the wages of coal miners as a substitute for the payment of bonuses, for the stopping of which drastic steps are to be taken, will not be approved by Fuel Administrator Garfield. President Frank J. Hayes and other officials of the United Mine Workers of America received this answer from the Fuel Administrator today in response to their request for a flat increase in wages in lieu of the payment of bonuses.

Bonuses were characterized by Dr. Garfield as "an evil." He announced that the first action toward forcing the abandonment of the practice would be a reduction of 20 cents a ton in the price of coal in the Cambridge and Hocking fields of Ohio, and a reduction of 5 cents a ton in all other Ohio fields except the Eighth District. From these fields, it was said, were received most of the complaints as to the payment of bonuses.

The Big Reason for Saving Today
We can think of several excellent reasons why most anyone should want to save money on clothes, but at today's Sale reductions the savings themselves seem almost as important as the fact that the clothes in question are Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes.
Hart Schaffner & Marx Suits
For instance, you will now find many good all-wool Summer Suits at $19.50, $27.50, $32.50, $37.50, and up to $49.50, that were remarkable value at their pre-sale prices. And at these reductions the value of many is simply emphasized by their suitability for Fall wear.
